VICTORY FOR FARE BILL

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 8.—Under a resolution unanimously adopted by the Senate today, the Judiciary Committee is directed to make a thorough investigation of the $500,000 slush fund report put into circulation by Senator George F. Thompson of Niagara. The committee is prepared to go ahead with its work as soon as the attendance of the principal witness—the man who is supposed to have offered this substantial bribe to Senator Thompson in return for his support of the Carson-Martin six-cent fare bill—can be secured.

While the Senate was preparing for its slush fund investigation, the Assembly spent an hour and a half debating the Carson-Martin bill, which would give the Public Service Commission power to raise street car fares, even where these had been fixed by contract with municipalities from which the franchises were obtained. After debate the Assembly passed the bill by a vote of 77 to 68.

Prior to the adoption of the investigation resolution by the Senate, Senator Thompson went before the Judiciary Committee and told a sub-committee of that body the name of the man who is alleged to have offered the bribe on behalf of the traction interests interested in the passage of the bill. Almost the first word uttered by Senator Thompson when he appeared before the Judiciary Committee was in voicing a demand that the newspaper correspondents be put out of the room and the doors locked. His request was complied with. Senator Thompson told his story to a sub-committee composed of Senators Burlingame of Kings, Chairman; Walton of Ulster, Lusk of Cortland, Brown of Otsego, Foley of New York, and Walters, President pro tem. of the Senate, ex officio.

Subpoena for a Lobbyist.

After the subcommittee had reported to the full committee and the resolution under which the investigation is to be conducted had been prepared, approved by the committee, presented to and adopted by the Senate, Chairman Burlingame prepared a subpoena calling for the attendance as a witness before the committee of a man who during the present legislative session has been representing important public utilities at the Capitol, but has not been seen here since Senator Thompson gave the interview which led to the prospective investigation into the $500,000 slush fund. A Sergeant at Arms went to New York later in the day, carrying the subpoena with him.

While it is the plan of Chairman Burlingame to have the Judiciary Committee concentrate during the early stages of the investigation on the alleged $500,000 bribe, to the end that this matter may be sifted and a report made before the Carson-Martin bill comes before the upper house for final action, the committee will not be limited to that episode. Senator Thompson contended in the Senate last night for an omnibus investigation of lobbying activity at the Capitol during the last two years, and when the resolution framed by the Judiciary Committee was presented to the Senate it was seen that he had scored a victory on this point.

Shorn of the language common to all resolutions of this character in which the powers are defined and provision made for the necessary funds, the resolution under which the inquiry is to be conducted reads:

"Whereas, Senator George F. Thompson, representing the Forty-seventh Senate district, did, on April 7, state on the floor of the Senate that he was in possession of information tending to establish that certain persons are engaged in an attempt to improperly influence said Senator to supper certain pending legislation; now, therefore be it

"Resolved, that the Committee on Judiciary of the Senate be authorized and empowered and directed to make a full and complete investigation of such alleged attempt, and of any illegal or improper conduct whatsoever in connection therewith, or with legislation pending at this or any previous session of the Senate, and to report thereon to the Senate with such recommendations as in its judgment the public interest requires."

"Third House" Agitated.

The meeting of the Judiciary Committee was scheduled for 10 o'clock and Senator Thompson was on hand promptly at that hour, prepared to tell his story. But it was nearly half an hour later before a quorum could be drummed together. After Senator Thompson had demanded a closed session and the reporters and spectators had trooped out a guard was placed on the door. In the corridor beyond was a cluster of "Third House" members who have been at the Capitol to promote or oppose legislation for hire and who questioned the news-

Clemenceau Saves the Life of His Would-be Assassin

PARIS, April 8 (Associated Press). President Poincaré has commuted to ten years' imprisonment the death sentence imposed upon Emile Cottin, who in an attempt to assassinate Premier Clemenceau on Feb. 19 last, shot and severely wounded him.

The commutation of sentence was on the recommendation of M. Clemenceau himself.

Cottin's lawyer, before seeing President Poincaré, was received by the Premier, who said that he had decided to propose a liberal commutation of the sentence.

B. R. T. MEN FAVOR CALLING A STRIKE

INVOKE AID OF HYLAN

Ask Mayor to Intervene on Behalf of Demands Refused by Receiver Garrison.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 employes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company met at Arcadia Hall in Brooklyn last night and expressed themselves unanimously in favor of a strike, but left the calling of such a strike to the discretion of a sub-committee of the Executive Committee, which they empowered by acclamation to order the walkout unless they could obtain the demands of the union through amicable agreement either through Receiver Lindley M. Garrison directly or through Mayor Hylan, whose aid they invoked.

P. J. O'Brien, Vice President of the Amalgamated Street Car Organization, said that there was no immediate danger of a strike unless Mr. Garrison persisted in his attitude toward the union, and no settlement could be reached by Mayor Hylan or the War Labor Board, which organization, he said, would sooner or later intervene unless an agreement were reached.

The expression in favor of a strike was not a formal vote but in the form of a standing expression of opinion supporting the sub-committee. The meeting was secret, and the leaders afterward said the men were solid in their demands and if no other way of obtaining them could avail they would strike.

Because many of the union members were at work, two meetings were held in Arcadia Hall last night. More than 3,500 conductors and motormen and the scattered few of the khaki and vlub clad women ticket sellers and guards attended the first meeting, at the close of which William Collins, an organizer of the American Federation of Labor, made a statement, which, he said, the unionists had approved. The statement follows:

"We have been guided by the action of the receiver when he published the notice on March 11 that he would deal with a committee of his employes, and that he was not concerned whether they belonged to a labor organization or not.

"We have pursued this thought to its logical conclusion; that where it was not possible for the receiver and the committee to get together, we would place our case in the hands of the National War Labor Board.

"In view of the action of Receiver Garrison we feel that your committee had done everything in its power to adjust the matters in controversy in a peaceful way. The committee has kept in mind the fact that the traveling public of Brooklyn must have transportation to and from its work that it is a vital part of the life and welfare of this community.

"Therefore the committee recommends that a strike vote be taken in order to bring the pressure of public opinion upon the company, to have them agree to submit the matters in controversy to the National War Labor Board.

"In taking this action, it is for the purpose of placing the company in its proper position before the traveling public of Brooklyn, this vote to be placed in the hands of the committee to be put in operation after every honorable effort has been made to reach an amicable understanding with the receiver."

Send Letter to Hylan.

The letter which was sent to Mayor Hylan follows:

Brooklyn, April 8, 1919.

Hon. John F. Hylan, City Hall, New York.

Dear Sir: We, the undersigned committee representing the employes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, in meeting assembled, were selected to wait upon you for the purpose of seeking your aid in the bringing about of an amicable settlement of the difficulties between ourselves and the company.

We do this in the hope that you as the representative of the people, whose interests represent many million dollars in the property and which should be safeguarded against any unnecessary loss to the taxpayers through labor controversy, which, we believe, can be avoided through your intercession.

Expressing the hope that you will give this matter your personal attention because of its very great importance to the welfare of our community, we beg to remain, respectfully,

JAMES SHERIDAN, Chairman;
ARNOLD E. MILLER,
WILLIAM RILEY,
AARON COPMAN.

"It is Mr. Garrison's next move," declared Collins, speaking of the result of the meeting. He added that the B. R. T. employes were in favor of a strike at once, but that their committee had counseled against immediate action because of consideration for the public. A strike, he declared, would be resorted to only after every other means had failed. The union committee would continue its negotiations with the receiver, said Collins, in the hope that Mr. Garrison would consent to meet them after

BERLIN, April 8, (via Copenhagen.)—"What will you do against the Munich menace?" asked THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent of General von Hoffmann, whom he visited at the staff quarters at the Edeh Hotel after the news of the proclamation of the Communist Government in Bavaria had reached here.

"We shall do whatever our Government desires. If they so command, we shall even march against Munich to restore order there, provided, however, that we shall not be needed in Berlin and other places near the German capital. We are fully prepared for any outbreak in Berlin within the next few days and are confident that the Bolshevist terror will again be averted."

The General referred to various preparations in the streets or public buildings, which again lend to the city an aspect of being held against an enemy.

"These preparations, which cannot have escaped the enemy, are so perfect that perhaps the Spartacus Party will be induced to defer their outbreak to a more opportune moment."

"When would that arrive?"

"Nobody can tell when," replied the General. "Maybe within a week or a month, but it is sure to come when the Bolshevist conflagrations spread to so many cities that our comparatively small forces will no longer be able to cope with them. Much certainly depends on the action of the old Bavarian Government and the Diet. They have hardly any reliable troops at their disposal, excepting Colonel Epp's regiment, formed of Bavarians in Thuringia and now concentrating at Hamburg. If the old Bavarian Government can get no help from the Berlin Government, the Bolshevist danger will grow terrible. Few persons here and hardly any in the Entente countries have any idea what a formidable enemy the Spartacus Party is. They are strongly organized all over Germany, and their agents carry the conviction of fanatics. They have plenty of money at their disposal, furnished by the German idealists, who are really wealthy maniacs who have lost their common sense and suffer from jaded nerves.

"To a larger extent the money comes from Russian sources. The Russians, to our knowledge, print daily 150,000,000 rubles for their own use, and much for Bolshevist propaganda. They use three kinds of counterfeit money, including German fifty-mark bills and English pound notes which cannot be distinguished from the genuine.

"The Spartacides are very liberal with these counterfeit notes. They employ hosts of agitators, keep branch organizations in all the larger German cities, and have established a most effective spy system.

"We know that the Spartacide leaders have a plan ready for mobilization of their forces all over Germany which will take effect the moment the inner political circle are in their mind absolutely assured of the success of a general rising.

"They will not risk this plan until that time has arrived, and God only knows how close it may be. Unemployment drives people into the Spartacide ranks by thousands."

General Hoffmann complained that some of the Entente papers had accused the German authorities of flirting with Bolshevism in order to extort more favorable peace conditions, while at the same time officers of the voluntary corps were suspected of cherishing reactionary ambitions under the pretense of fighting the Spartacides.

"Verily, my officers sacrifice themselves purely out of patriotism. Who else but they could save Germany from the pestilential enemy?"

Odessa Reported Captured by Ukrainian Soviet Troops

PARIS, April 8, (Associated Press.)—The Ukrainian Soviet troops have captured Odessa, according to advices from Kiev transmitted by wireless from Moscow under date of April 7.

The news has not been officially confirmed.

LONDON, April 8.—The French squadron has departed for the Black Sea. The Perekop operations have been concluded and the road to Crimea is open.

The Paris Matin on Sunday last announced that the Bolshevist pressure on Odessa was increasing and evacuation by the allied forces there was imminent. It was added that these forces would probably fall back ultimately to the Dniester River in order to protect Bessarabia and Rumania, and that the Isthmus of Perekop had been fortified for the protection of the Russian naval base of Sebastopol.

GEN. SMUTS LEAVES HUNGARY FOR PARIS

Had Authority to Arrange a New Armistice, but Did Not Do So.

ALLIED CIVILIANS TO GO

American Wives of Hungarians Will Quit Budapest with British Residents Saturday.

BUDAPEST, April 7, (Associated Press).—While General Jan Christian Smuts, who was sent here by the Peace Conference at Paris, had authority to arrange a new armistice between Hungary and the Entente Powers, it appears that he did not do so before his departure Sunday morning by way of Prague.

Bela Kun, in speeches yesterday and to-day, attempted to make the people believe that General Smuts's visit was a recognition of the aims of the Communist Government.

British residents of the city will leave for Paris by way of Vienna on Saturday. With them will go the American wives of Hungarians, who will be permitted to take with them their money and effects. The Government seems to be doing everything possible in favor of Americans and other foreigners.

Great earnestness is displayed by the members of the new Government in carrying out the work assigned to them. They are ready to discuss their plans and to solve problems, and they refrain from abusing capitalism. The maintenance of strict discipline to protect the bourgeoisie and to prevent Red Guard outbreaks has been decided upon.

Jules Alpari, a prominent Communist, and Jules Sevresi, People's Commissioer in charge of socialization of factories, argues that communism is the only method by which Central Europe can be saved from total ruin. Capitalism, they maintain, is unable to cope with the threat of bankruptcy, high wages and the unwillingness of laborers to work. They point out that under Communism workmen cannot strike and are obliged to accept a reasonable wage.

All who dare, however, from waiters to manufacturers, inform the correspondent that none by a few madmen want nationalization of property and other similar Communist schemes.

It is thought certain here that the Communist movement was engineered by Count Michael Karolyi, the former President, to scare the Allies by the spectre of Bolshevism and thereby draw attention to the situation in Hungary. It was a measure of despair, the results of which have scared out those who planned the move, as it has given an opportunity for Bela Kun to attempt to become a dictator of the Trotzky type. The Communists are opposed by the Socialists, who are attempting to form a moderate Socialist Government.

Count Albert Apponyi, the last Hungarian Premier under the old régime and a member of one of the oldest and wealthiest families, is living, since the Communists gained control of the Government, in a modest two-story house, with his wife, two daughters, and a governess, and also with two families which the Government has billeted upon them. It is said the Government intends to place other families in the house, reducing the Apponyi family to the use of two rooms.

The Count, who is 72 years old, hopes to retain the use of his study overlooking the Danube, as he says he has work to do which the Communists may class as intellectual. The old statesman is still tall and vigorous. His study contains many photographs commemorative of his visits to the United States, the last one being in 1911. The Count said to the correspondent:

"I am an old man and I am looking at this new movement from a philosophic point of view, wondering if it will succeed. Certainly it is a most interesting experiment. I have been treated so far with every courtesy by the officials, but cannot pass an opinion as my class has no longer any rights. The country is ruled by one class. Fortunately my future is assured because I am past the working age and my son and girls have sufficient education to make their own way in the world.

"You may say that I think the Allies are responsible for such situations as in Hungary. They are brought on by dallying and not making peace and leaving boundaries undefined. Also, the so-called League of Nations is merely a trust organized by the victors without asking the consent of the others."

ITALIANS VERY DISSATISFIED

Say They May as Well Quit Paris if Jugoslavs Are to Get Fiume.

RECALL SECRET TREATIES

Contend They Are Not Bound to Allies if Dalmatia Promise Is Repudiated.

BUT CAUTION MAY PREVAIL

Fear Defiance of Conference Would Mean Loss of Economic and Financial Support.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

PARIS, April 8.—"Why stay in Paris at all?" ask the cynical extremists of the Italian group at the Peace Conference. "We have nothing to gain here and everything to lose."

It is not probable that such counsel will prevail with the discouraged Orlando and truculent Sonnino, but what the extremists say at least reflects what these statesmen are thinking as to the tentative program. And it is true that measured only by the standards of the old régime of bargaining, acquisition of territory, and balance of power, Italy might for the time being feather her own nest more successfully if she went away to take what she claims instead of remaining to receive what the Peace Conference may be disposed to give her. But that feeling is offset by one of caution that the nest might not be comfortable later on, and that in it would hatch a brood of new troubles, not the least of which would be lack of economic and financial support from the United States.

Nevertheless talk of defiance is the talk of today at Italian headquarters as the conviction grows that Fiume is to be given to Jugoslavia instead of to Italy. They are calling attention at those headquarters to the fact that there were two secret treaties in 1915, one of which everybody seems to have forgotten. That was the one in which Italy pledged herself not to make a separate peace with Germany. But that agreement was made at the same time and by the same countries and individuals as the London treaty by which England and France agreed to give Dalmatia to Italy as a reward for coming into the war.

Now, the Italians say, if England and France repudiate the Dalmatian promise of their own volition or because compelled to do so by America, the Italians are equally free to repudiate the agreement not to make a separate peace.

Their program under those conditions would be first to make separate peace with Germany with the provision that Italy get much needed coal from Westphalia. Second, a separate peace with Austria with arrangements satisfactory to Italy concerning the Tyrol. And, third, a separate peace with Hungary, by which Fiume, not included in the London treaty, would be ceded to Italy. Of course, the logical first result of the carrying out of such a program would be immediate war between Italy and Jugoslavia.

Allied Commission Said to Hold Italian Commander Responsible.

PARIS, April 8.—An official Serbian telegram from Belgrade says that the special commission of American and allied officers has terminated its inquiry into the Spalato incident of March, when armed Italian sailors wounded Serbian civilians and soldiers.

The commission, according to this dispatch, considers that responsibility for the incident rests on the Italian naval commander, who had approved the arrest of civilians by sailors, who were armed, though not on duty.

Paris Temps Pleads for Unity of Allies; Calls the Munich Upset a Warning to Them

PARIS, April 8.—While the Peace Conference sky is alternately dark, with rumors of discord and bright with hopes of a settlement before Easter, the Temps editorial today takes the establishment of the Soviet Republic at Munich as the text for a reminder that the allied chiefs have yet other difficulties to face than the task of agreeing among themselves.

"There is no doubt," says the writer, "that we shall witness a new attempt to inaugurate a Soviet régime in Berlin. Even if it be unsuccessful, the fact remains that Scheidemann's Government seems both weak and unstable, whereas it is in the Allies' interest to conclude peace with a strong Government. The dangers of the situation are obvious.

"What is to be done? If we wait until Germany stablizes, we know neither when that will be nor what security we shall get at the end nor what risks we must face in the meantime. The alternative possibility is to hasten a peace that shall be signed by Scheidemann's plenipotentiaries and ratified by the Weimar assembly.

"If that course is taken the Allies must bear strongly in mind the possibility of Germany trying to evade our terms. Our best safeguard is union."

The article concludes with an appeal for a new and closer cooperation.

"Whether Germany signs or not," it says, "there must be a special bond uniting the Allies politically, militarily, and economically, so as to maintain our solidarity and preserve the guarantees we hold as long as the results of our common victory may be jeopardized by German chaos. It is the most pressing of our duties to create this bond."

PRESIDENT'S SHIP WILL SAIL FRIDAY

SEE WILSON DETERMINED

Recall Speech Wherein He Asked if America Would Draw Out When Interests Narrowed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—By order of President Wilson the Navy Department today took measures to expedite the departure from New York of the steamship George Washington for use by the President for his return journey. Orders were given for her sailing at the earliest possible time, and announcement was made that she would probably leave on Friday instead of next Monday, as scheduled.

The Navy Department has received two messages from Admiral Benson, now in Paris. The first, received yesterday, inquired when the George Washington could sail. It is understood that the response was that the steamer could be ready to sail by Friday.

Today came the second message, which requested that the sailing of the George Washington be "expedited at once by direction of the President."

Acting Secretary Roosevelt said this afternoon that the vessel should be able to reach Brest by April 17.

From what can be ascertained here, the President is preparing for eventualities, and his action in calling for the return of the George Washington to France is regarded as a warning that he will withdraw unless the Peace Conference crisis is not ended quickly.

There is a feeling here that the President is insisting that he cannot yield anything in contravention of his original fourteen points, when construed in conjunction with the original armistice terms, and the replies of the Allied Powers to the notes in which he asked them whether they were willing to agree to an armistice on the basis of Germany's acceptance of the fourteen points.

Intimations from Paris that President Wilson would not hesitate to return to the United States rather than surrender what he regards as vital principles in connection with the effort to arrange the Peace Treaty are not surprising to those who have been in touch with the President's attitude from the beginning of the war and his desire to bring a peace of justice.

On April 13, 1916, in a speech at the New Willard Hotel, here, President

BLUFF NO ELEMENT IN WILSON'S STAND

MIGHT SUMMON CONGRESS

Suggestion Is Made of an Appeal to Negotiate Peace Treaties from Washington.

PARIS, April 7.—The formal announcement that the steamship George Washington had been ordered by President Wilson to return to Europe without delay—which confirmed the information cabled from Paris to THE NEW YORK TIMES Sunday—created what amounted to a sensation in all quarters concerned in the effort to establish world peace.

The announcement gave rise to much excited comment. Coupled with it was an unmistakable intimation from an authoritative source that the President would return to America on the George Washington if full agreements on all the major points in dispute between the big powers were not reached by the time the steamship arrived on this side of the Atlantic.

In the speculative comment heard here this afternoon the word "bluff" has been used cautiously by some of those who contend that the President would not dare, could not dare, to withdraw from the Peace Conference.

But all the information in the possession of THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent indicates that the President is not bluffing. With thorough knowledge of how the recall of the George Washington will be construed, he has placed himself in a position where, as a matter of pride, he will be obliged to leave France if a settlement is not assured within the brief period the George Washington will take to make the voyage. In other words he cannot afford to leave the impression by remaining, that he has tried a supreme bluff, and that it has been called.

But "bluff" is too vulgar and undignified a term to apply to the attitude the President has felt called upon to assume. The situation is entirely too serious to permit him to adopt that attitude without full realization of its consequences. His orders to the George Washington obtain a deeper and more momentous significance in the face of the optimistic public statements of Premier Lloyd George and M. Pichon that an understanding has been reached on all points in dispute. Apparently the President—out of the wealth of his experience in the past four months—when he saw agreements reached one day upset on the next, has not supreme faith that these understandings will stick.

What happened yesterday at the President's Paris residence emphasizes his determination to get action or get out. The four other members of the American Peace Delegation called on him to discuss the general situation with particular regard to what was to

WARSAW, April 7, (Associated Press.)—Thirty-three Bolsheviki were executed at Pinsk, on the eastern frontier of Poland, on Saturday. They were charged with plotting and uprising for the purpose of overpowering the weakened garrison and seizing the city.

An allied commission, composed of Americans, British, and French, is conducting the fullest inquiry and may send a special mission to Pinsk from Warsaw for that purpose. Some reports which have reached Warsaw place the number of executions as high as 250, but Colonel Francis E. Fronczak, Health Commissioner of Buffalo, who was in Pinsk at the time for the American Red Cross, fixes the number of thirty-three.

Colonel Fronczak said that, according to the military officials, 200 Bolsheviki were discovered plotting in a hall on the outskirts of the city Saturday afternoon. The building was surrounded, but a majority of the Bolsheviki managed to make their escape. About seventy were captured and marched to the city market place, where every second one was shot.

Colonel Fronczak was in a hospital around the corner at the time when he heard the shots. Later he counted the bodies. His affidavit has been turned over to the American military authorities. Pinsk was captured from the Bolsheviki a month ago.

REPARATIONS ALMOST FIXED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 8.—I am informed that President Wilson is stating the American finalities to the Council of Four this afternoon. It has been intimated that as soon as the President was well enough to take the helm again conference matters would promptly be brought to a decision.

The chapter of conciliation will be closed, and a new one of frank speaking will be opened. This will not mean an attempt to dictate to Europe, but the President's attitude and America's abilities and limitations in European settlements will be freed from misapprehension.

European diplomats habitually take all the rope one gives them. They have construed the President's amiability as meaning that they would get what they wanted if they kept coming back after it. Whenever they are convinced that the limit of concession has been reached they will probably come to terms.

Any one who has had experience in bargaining in a Paris shop can make a correct mental picture of the methods employed in the Conference involving the greatest issues the world has ever known. And they are not employed by the Continental representatives only; the British Premier, too, is a past master in the art of bargaining.

A man very close to the French Government said to me this morning: "Don't be pessimistic. Peace is in sight."

When I asked him whether the French would continue to press their demands he replied:

"Yes, to the point of getting all we can, but not to the point of breaking up the Conference. Wherever America, is, there France will be also."

President Wilson is ready for plain talk and bold strokes. He is undoubtedly chagrined at the light view taken by many Europeans of the obligations of the armistice agreement, which he regards as inviolable. But his reappearance in vigorous health and good fighting mood will probably have the desired effect without his adopting extreme measures.

France will conclude that she can manage with less territory and more American good-will. Italy will conclude that she has been demanding rather too much, while England will decide that she has a good deal to be thankful for, after all.

Hope of Agreement Strengthens.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 8.—President Wilson has so far recovered from his illness that he got out of bed and dressed today and attended the session of the Big Four, the others present being Clemenceau, Lloyd George, and Orlando. The meeting was held at the President's residence, the Hotel Bischoffsheim. Mr. Wilson showed the results of his indisposition, but it is reported that he is full of determination to get ahead in the work of making peace or know the reason.

On the whole, the feeling that full agreement is in sight is growing. All the signs indicate that the threat of President Wilson's withdrawal, implied in his orders to the George Washington to return to France, is having an effect.

Optimism and pessimism seesawed today among those concerned in the determination of the world's destinies. Whatever may be the general opinion, those who have talked with the President since Sunday have come away convinced that he has gone too far to permit him to remain here for any considerable period if harmonious agreements are not reached on all the disputed major matters.

The President takes the attitude that the peace treaty must be formulated in accordance with the principles laid down in his "fourteen points," which all the allied powers have accepted as the foundation for making that treaty. Divergences of view over some of these fourteen points have been frequent recently, but there is a hopeful feeling that the treaty will be made in accordance with these Wilsonian tenets.

The disposition of the Saar Valley and the Rhine provinces probably remains unsettled, but the Reparations Commission is nearing complete agreement, has got so far, in fact, that the drafting of the reparations articles of the peace treaty is under way.

Although some of those supposed to be informed on this subject are saying today that complete agreement has been reached, the truth is that several important details remain undetermined.

One of these affects the French claim to the priority of purchase of certain German products. Under the agreement now under discussion by the Reparations Commission Germany would be obliged to turn over to France each year a certain percentage of her production of specified commodities, and the cost of this percentage would be credited to Germany in the French account for reparation.

It is also provided in the reparations agreement that Germany shall pay France and Belgium in kind for products destroyed or taken away.

How to work out the details of this is a problem. Many thousand head of fine French cattle were driven into Germany, and France wants back all those remaining and payment for those killed. So it is evident that many perplexing details remain to be adjusted before the reparations agreement in complete form can be put into the peace treaty.

Progress Made on Big Problems.

PARIS, April 8, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson met the Premiers of Great Britain, France, and Italy today for the first time since he became ill. The discussion of responsibility for the war and the Saare Valley, which was unfinished today, will be continued tomorrow.

It was not indicated whether the President made any reference to the summoning of the George Washington.

On account of the President's weakened condition the afternoon session was comparatively short, Mr. Wilson lying down immediately after its adjournment, although it was stated at the "White House" that he was gradually improving and expected to attend all the meetings of the Council hereafter.

The return of President Wilson to the Council of Four and the progress made on various questions have removed much of the tension which existed in Conference circles, and have led to renewed confidence in an early and satisfactory conclusion of the deliberations.

The reparations problem is now considered definitely settled, and only minor details concerning the functions of the commission to allot the annual installments from Germany remain to be arranged.

The Polish question, including the status of Danzig, is also nearing settlement on the basis of internationalization of the city. The establishment of Danzig as a free port avoids the necessity of recognizing the claims of either Poland or Germany, while the former will have a corridor to the Baltic to the limits of the internationalized town.

The Council of Four met this morning at the residence of Premier Lloyd George. President Wilson was not able to attend this session.

The overnight tension had not been dispelled when the Council of Four met today. In Conference circles, however, it was felt that today's sessions would serve to clear the atmosphere.

The first question taken up at the forenoon session of the Council, at which Colonel House represented President Wilson, was that of procedure. This was considered in an effort to accelerate the work of the Council.

It was said by American delegates early in the day that the general situation was improved somewhat because of the agreement reached by the Commission on Reparations on the main features of the reparations question, which left only a few unsettled details for adjustment.

Members of the American delegation declined to give an explanation of the many rumors in circulation that the Conference would soon complete its work. One member, when asked for definite information on the situation, said:

"You know the George Washington has been ordered to Brest. That is a good subject for speculation."

The meeting of the Commission on the League of Nations for consideration of the completed draft of the covenant, which had been planned for tonight, was postponed until Thursday. It is understood that the postponement was made necessary by the inability of President Wilson to attend a meeting earlier than that date.

WILSON STANDS TO HIS GUNS.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 7.—In today's remarkable twists, contradictions, and eccentricities of the official Peace Conference news, there seems to be a good reason for the rule that the official sources of such news must never be quoted or named. It might make them seem inconsistent. This morning we were told, not as a matter of gossip and rumor, but officially, that the case was apparently hopeless, with nothing agreed upon in the Big Four, and no likelihood of an agreement. This evening, from the same source, comes the report that the Big Four are getting closer together and making progress, but—and there is everything in the "but"—that it would not be surprising if the American delegation withdrew from the Conference and went home if things did not radically change by the end of this week.

There is relevancy to this talk of going home. In fact, word was received from Washington today that the George Washington would sail on April 14, arriving at Brest on April 22.

President Wilson is determined to stand by his own principles, to which all the other nations pay at least lip service, and to stand by the terms of the armistice by which the Allies agreed with Germany to do certain things. He resents the tendency of some of his European associates in the Conference to disregard the armistice obligations and to twist the Fourteen Points into unintended applications to meet special selfish ends.

But the real feeling in Paris is that the American delegation will prevail and will not withdraw, and that all talk of Americans or Italians or anybody else leaving the Conference before the finish will come to nothing.

GRAYSON REPORTS BETTER TONE IN PARIS

His Cable to Tumulty Indicates a Slight Improvement in Conference Conditions.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Late press dispatches from Paris today indicated that a more hopeful view as to the progress of the peace negotiations was entertained than had been for several days, and this view was reflected in a cablegram received tonight by Secretary Tumulty from Rear Admiral Grayson, the President's personal physician, who reported that the general situation had improved slightly.

Secretary Tumulty said he had not been advised as to the situation which had led the President to order the George Washington to Brest, and that Admiral Grayson, in sending the message received tonight, evidently had assumed that Mr. Tumulty was cognizant of the state of affairs through press dispatches from the French capital.

RIVER AND RAIL ROUTES FOR THE NEW NATIONS

Report to Peace Conference Provides for Free Commerce Through Enemy Territory.

PARIS, April 8, (Associated Press.)—A report on regulations and restrictions to be imposed upon communications in enemy States in order that the newly created nations in Central Europe may have access to the sea has been completed for the Peace Conference by the Commission on the Regulations of Ports, Waterways, and Railroads. Freedom of transportation through Germany and Austria and equality of treatment in ports and harbors have been provided for, as has been the international regulation of traffic over the Rhine and Danube Rivers.

The report does not approach the problem of international regulation of great waterways outside the domains of present enemy States, nor does it deal with the Vistula, the great river artery of Northern Europe, since the commission, when formulating its conclusions, was not aware whether the peace settlement would give the navigable reaches of the Vistula entirely to new Poland or leave the mouth, with the city of Danzig, in German hands.

The regulation of transportation over the Rhine and Danube forms probably the most important part of the report, which provides for the entrance of France, Switzerland, and some non-participating States to the present Mannheim Convention between Germany and Holland, covering the navigation of the Rhine.

The European Commission controlling the mouths of the Danube will be continued, representatives of present enemy States being excluded from it, and a similar International Commission will be established provisionally for the Upper Danube. This will last until a new general Danube Convention is established.

A new international convention covering the navigation of the Elbe and Oder Rivers is recommended to protect the interests of Poland and Czechoslovakia and give them freedom of navigation, without discriminating duties, down through German territory to the North and Baltic Seas. These States would also receive free port privileges at certain North German harbors in order that they might be enabled to develop their export and import commerce—a regulation applying to Saloniki after the Balkan war, by which Serbia benefited, being taken as the model for the plan.

The report recommends that a pledge be exacted of Germany in the peace treaty to maintain unimpaired the free zones at Hamburg and other ports under conditions as they existed before the war.

To provide a southern outlet for the trade of Czechoslovakia, the report recommends that the new State have the right to run its own trains, with their own crews, over certain designated railways in Austria-Hungary, without, however, making any provision to insure further trainsit through Jugoslavia or Italian territory lying between what is left of Austria-Hungary and the Adriatic.

An attempt to introduce some general regulation of this problem broke down against opposition within the commission. Recommendation is made in the report, however, for an extension of the present Berne Railway Convention, providing for the interchange of traffic on Continental railways, which expires Jan. 1, 1920, until a new convention can be negotiated.

GERMANS RESIST NEW EXPORT RULES

COMPLAIN OF LONG DELAYS

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 8.—An interesting sidelight on the present situation in Paris is the manifest disposition of German officials to resist the allied terms. They are even citing the "fourteen points" as reasons why the Allies should be more lenient with them. This disposition is shown in the response of the German Government to the notes of the President of the Interallied Armistice Commission, which met the German representative at Cologne to arrange for the regulation of German exports and a system of blacklists.

Here are extracts from the German Government's note, obtained today from an official source:

"The German Government must first point out that it does not appear practicable to come to such a comprehensive agreement for the organization and control of German exports at a time when the armistice is admittedly drawing to an end. Their hesitation to accept this arrangement is increased by the fact that the adoption of the system intended by the allied and associated Governments would involve a direct contradiction of the principles which have been accepted both sides as the basis of the peace principles which have been solemnly announced as including the greatest possible economic freedom for trade of all peoples.

"If, however, we really had to reckon, even now, with a considerable extension of the armistice period—a period which has already exceeded all bounds of expectation—it would still be unacceptable, since it is not to be reconciled with the interests of German industrial life, and, consequently, as it might appear, with the corresponding real interests of the allied countries themselves.

"The German Government cannot regard the proposed changes in the blacklist system as promising any betterment of general conditions existing over those at present.

"Leading men in the highly developed economic system of the associated countries can, of course, not be unaware of the fact that every restriction applied to the economic life of a people has far-reaching and harmful results which make themselves felt through the whole economic organism. They must also know that an industry which for nearly five years has been weakened and has suffered from the greatest privations on the part of the working classes and a serious lack of the most important raw materials can only be expected to be revived to any extent if the necessary impetus is given to it by considerable freedom of movement.

"Work is at the present time by far the most important asset of economic Germany, both for the Germans themselves and for their creditors. If the pressure exerted upon Germany becomes unbearable, if Germany loses her right of economic self-determination, the consequence will be that the willingness and ability of Germany to work will decrease still further.

"In that event it is to be feared that even the limited number of those who stuck to their work, physical or intellectual, and who are cited as an example to other sections of the people who have long since despaired, will also lose all hope of any successful revival, and will be deprived of their one remaining motive for exertion and of their will to work."

AGAINST "FREE IMMIGRATION."

California Senators Pass a Resolution Addressed to Peace Delegates.

SACRAMENTO, April 8.—The Senate adopted today the Inman resolution, urging American delegates at the Peace Conference to oppose a request of "certain representatives at the Peace Conference" for free immigration.

The resolution was adopted without debate after references to the Japanese had been eliminated. In its original form the resolution said "Japanese representatives" had requested a covenant for free immigration.

After the resolution was adopted Senator Inman requested that further consideration of his request to introduce a bill prohibiting Japanese from leasing agricultural land in California be made a special order of business tomorrow. The request was granted after Senator Breed had attempted to induce Inman "to wait a few more days" for an answer to a cablegram the Senate had sent Secretary Lansing in Paris asking if discussion of the proposed anti-Japanese legislation would embarrass American representatives in their peace deliberations.

FOR PEACE WITH MUNICH?

Peace Conference Circles Are Discussing the Possibility.

PARIS, April 8, (Associated Press.)—There is much apprehension in Peace Conference circles as to the effect the establishment of a Soviet Government at Munich may have on the conclusion of peace.

As the Munich Government appears from press dispatches to be well established, the peace delegates are considering the eventual necessity of negotiating two peace treaties with Germany, one with Berlin and the other with Munich.

FOCH MADE PLANS, FORESEEING THE WAR

Gives Credit to Gen. Wilson of British Staff for Quick Mobilization.

LONDON, April 8.—That Marshal Foch foresaw the danger, before the outbreak of the war, of German aggression is indicated in a letter which he has sent to London to be read at a dinner which the members of the Houses of Parliament are to give soon after Easter in honor of General Sir Henry Wilson, Chief of the Imperial General Staff. Marshal Foch says:

"Long before the war General Wilson and I worked together to prepare for the struggle against the German peril, which we both foresaw. It is due to the success of his mobilization arrangements and his careful and detailed plans for transporting troops that the British Army was able to arrive quickly on the field of battle as soon as the Government had come to a decision.

"During the war, in the most anxious days, especially those of 1917 and 1918, how often—it was almost every day, sometimes every night—we worked together to strengthen as rapidly as possible a weak spot in the link, to combine our efforts, to reinforce our hard-tried armies and once again to enable them to go forward. And as I recall these memories, still so fresh in my mind, I can see him always before me as one of the most capable, most loyal, and most valiant soldiers of the allied armies, and one of the greatest servants of his country."

CABRERA IN NIETO'S PLACE.

Enemy of United States Heads Mexico's Treasury Department.

MEXICO CITY, April 7.—The resignation of Rafael Nieto, for four years Under Secretary of the Treasury and for more than a year in full charge of the department, was accepted today by President Carranza. Luis Cabrera, ex-Secretary of the Treasury, succeeds him. Señor Nieto is expected to run for Governor of the State of San Luis Potosi.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Rafael Nieto recently returned to Mexico City after a fruitless effort to secure a loan for his Government from New York bankers. Cabrera is regarded in Washington as one of the bitterest enemies of the United States in Mexico. During the war he toured Latin America endeavoring to align the Latin Republics in a policy of neutrality with Mexico, where the German Minister von Eckhardt was operating his anti-American activities unchecked.

BRITISH SEE CRISIS AS SERIOUS MATTER

SPECULATE ON WILSON MOVE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 7.—According to the Paris correspondents of the London papers, President Wilson's orders for the George Washington to return to Brest as soon as possible have caused considerable speculation. The Daily Express's Paris correspondent says that the Dominion delegates are "profoundly disturbed at the situation, their point of view being that it is impossible for them to justify the Treaty of Peace in their several Parliaments, as they have had no real voice in shaping its clauses."

The Daily News correspondent says: "The order for the George Washington's return is the latest sensation for quidnuncs to bite their teeth on." The correspondent adds: "At the same time I do not suggest that the President's order means nothing at all. It may be read—and I have no doubt is meant to be read—as a sharp reminder to the world in general and to certain sections of the world in particular, that the President of the United States lives properly on the other side of the Atlantic, and that there are some limits to the length of his stay on this side. Personally, I connect the incident with the announcement made from a British source on Saturday that agreement has practically been reached on all important points. I will not stop to discuss the precise saving value of the word 'practically.' The fact remains that an agreement has not been reached on all important points."

The Daily Mail's correspondent says: "I have reason to believe that the President has made up his mind that peace must be made quickly, and that he for one does not propose to remain indefinitely in Paris."

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent says that it may be unwise to draw any inference from President Wilson's action in recalling the George Washington, "but it must have been clear to President Wilson that certain inferences would be drawn, and the conclusion is irresistible that he is indifferent whether they are drawn or not."

FRENCH VIEWS ON SITUATION.

Press Ridicules Idea That Americans and French Are at Odds.

PARIS, April 8.—The views of President Wilson's attitude on French claims before the Peace Conference put forth by "certain American circles" are declared by the Matin today to be "entirely fantastic." President Wilson, the Matin says, is conscientiously studying the final details of the preliminary peace.

The Petit Parisien comments in much the same vein, emphatically denying that there are differences between the French and American delegations, especially regarding financial questions, as has been asserted.

The Paris papers in general reiterate the view that it will be several days before the work of the conference will be completed in such a way that peace may be made simultaneously with Germany and her allies. They say that the meetings at Versailles will probably take place within fifteen or twenty days, however.

According to The Journal, the plan for a buffer State at the mouth of the Vistula has been abandoned, the handing over of Danzig to the Poles to be probably the course adopted.

The Echo de Paris says it is able to state that the solution of the reparations question reached by the conferees provides complete reparation. The plan, it adds, calls for the annual meeting of an interallied commission to decide upon the sum that Germany shall pay the following year.

It is believed, this newspaper also states, that Geneva has been definitely chosen as the seat of the Society of Nations. The plan for a triumphal parade in Paris along the Champs Elysées has apparently been abandoned, it says.

BIG BERLIN STRIKE TO BE STARTED TODAY

Metal, Machine, and Construction Workers, and Tramway Employes to Go Out.

LONDON, April 18.—Reuter's Berlin correspondent says he learns that the whole of Berlin's metal, machine, and construction workers, and the tramway employes will start a general strike tomorrow.

The railway men are also firmly resolved to strike unless their demands are conceded, the correspondent adds.

Ruhr Strikers Repudiate Union Leaders—Muelheim Tied Up.

BERLIN, April 7, (Associated Press.)—The strike of the miners in the Ruhr industrial district has taken a new trend, the strikers devoting most of their efforts to bringing out the members of the unions and others who are still at work.

They have drawn up an appeal declaring that the miners will not be bound by any agreement made with others unless sanctioned by their own council. The miners repudiate the leaders of the four largest miners' unions and declare that these are no longer their representatives.

The appeal says that miners will decide the proper time for the cessation and resumption of the strike. They dispute the figures of the union officials as to the number of miners on strike. The strikers maintain that 381,000 men are out in 238 mines in the Rhine-Westphalian district. Union officials say that 144,800 are on strike.

RIOTERS KILLED AT DELHI.

Outbreak in Indian City Put Down—Eight Dead, 12 Injured.

LONDON, April 8, (via Montreal.)—In disturbances in Delhi in the last few days eight persons were killed and twelve injured, a dispatch from Reuter's correspondent at the Indian Capital says.

The city now is quiet.

An official communication says that on April 3 disorderly mobs gathered in the neighborhood of Abdin Square and Mohammed Ali Street. A State railway official named Dykes was killed by a rifle shot, and the mob killed a Greek resident. Shots were fired in the afternoon from a house, which led to further disorders.

Order was restored at 3 o'clock, when it was reported that three persons had been killed and a number wounded.

The postal employes went on strike that day.

ADMIRAL STRAUSS SAILS.

Goes to Europe to Command Mine Sweepers in North Sea.

The Cunarder Orduna and the White Star liner Cedric sailed yesterday for Liverpool with pasengers and mails, and got away from their piers without the aid of tugs. Among the first cabin passengers on the Orduna was Rear Admiral Joseph Strauss, U. S. N., who arrived here two months ago after laying the great mine barrier across the North Sea. He said that twelve new American mine sweepers left last Sunday, that four more will go today, and that two are already over there. With this fleet he expects to pick up thousands of mines drifting about in the North Sea and a menace to merchant shipping. Others on board were the Countess of Kingston, W. C. Gracey, United States Consul at Birmingham; R. B. Holliday, United States Consul at Manchester, and a number of Y. M. C. A. and K. of C. workers.

Among the crew of the Orduna is former Sergeant Major Charles Garrett of the Royal Field Artillery, who has won the Victoria Cross with bar, the D. C. M. with bar, the Medal Militaire, French and Belgian War Crosses, South African and Egyptian medals, and other decorations. He has been wounded twenty-seven times. Garrett got the first Victoria Cross in 1896 at Omdurman, when he was a Sergeant in the 17th Lancers, for riding through the Dervish lines to save the life of the Colonel of his battalion. He got the bar to his cross, as it could not be awarded him twice, at Ypres, when Michael O'Leary received his, in 1915. The City of Liverpool, where he has made his home for many years, gave him a house in a good district, $3,000 in cash, and he has a pension of $15 per week from the British Government.

MILITARY RULES AT SOVIET CONGRESS

ASK LEDEBOUR'S RELEASE

Government Stirred for Socialistic Legislation and Unified Courts of Labor.

BERLIN, April 8, (Associated Press.)—The Soldiers' and Workmen's and Peasants' Congress assembled today in a tense and irritable atmosphere of uncertainty. Strong military measures were taken and all spectators attending the congress were searched for arms.

The Congress unanimously adopted a motion by the Independent Socialists demanding the same immunity for its members as is enjoyed by the members of the National Assembly. A motion by the same party demanding the release of Georg Ledebour was adopted, although the Right Socialists voted against it.

Two hundred and eighty-eight delegates had been expected, representing 260 Workers' and Peasants' Councils and twenty-eight Soldiers' Councils. Many of the delegates, however, were prevented from attending, including some from the occupied regions of the Rhine, the Ruhr district, and South Bavaria.

There was one woman delegate, who sat at the Central Council's table. Some foreign representatives were in the galleries. Surprise was caused by the announcement that there were nine delegates from German Austria.

The confirmed Majority Socialists will have a majority in the congress, but it is considered premature to draw inferences from this, owing to the absence of party discipline, and some surprises are expected.

The congress appears to have stirred the Government into the preparation of considerable socialistic legislation which has been delayed up to this time. A semi-official announcement today says that preparations for the creation of unified courts for labor to govern all labor relations are so advanced that they can be laid before the committee of the Labor Ministry soon after Easter. The committee will settle the details.

It is planned, the announcement adds, that in the near future there shall be a systematic, clear, and purposeful construction of all labor legislation, and that unified labor courts are contemplated for workingmen and employers.

The Government has also declared May 1 a national holiday in Germany.

SOVIET MOVE AT HAMBURG.

Spartacide Leaders Almost Strong Enough to Set Up New Republic.

COPENHAGEN, April 8.—A political movement of great importance is imminent in the region of Hamburg, reports from Berlin say.

Drs. Herz and Hauffenberg, Spartacide leaders, it is added, have almost succeeded in making themselves masters of the situation and in converting Hamburg and the region between Hamburg and Bremen into a Soviet Republic.

BLUFF NO ELEMENT IN WILSON'S STAND

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

be done in this critical week. Secretary Lansing, Colonel House, General Bliss, and Henry White found the President in bed, but looking fairly fit after his trying attack of near-influenza. What he said to them is not disclosed in detail, but it is known that he said enough to convince them that he felt it was beneath the dignity of the President of the United States and his fellow commissioners to be longer subjected to what they regarded as a lack of consideration in their disinterested efforts to bring a peace that would be lasting.

The President informed Secretary Lansing and the others that he had cabled for the George Washington to return to Europe immediately. He indicated very clearly that it was his intention to go back to America on the George Washington unless a thorough peace agreement was in sight when the vessel reached a European port. What is more important, it was understood by his visitors that his purpose was to have the entire American peace delegation withdraw from the conference if a settlement was delayed beyond that time. There was a thorough discussion of the whole situation, and, while the impressions carried away by the visitors may not have coincided in every point, there is reason to believe a rather general feeling existed that matters in the Peace Conference were not as satisfactory as the Lloyd George and Pichon statements would suggest.

Small Powers Resent Secrecy.

It is possible that out of the present conditions may come a new method of attempting to adjust the world's affairs. The action of the so-called Big Four—Wilson, Clemenceau, Lloyd George and Orlando—in taking upon themselves the settlement of all great problems affecting peace has caused much dissatisfaction, particularly among the representatives of the smaller nationalities. The representatives look upon the Big Four's sessions in camera as a marked exemplification of the secret diplomacy which has been condemned by allied statesmen ever since the outbreak of the war in Europe in August, 1914.

The argument is now advanced that better progress would be made, a better feeling would prevail, and better understandings would be reached, if all the matters at issue were discussed by the entire Peace Conference. Whether this suggestion was considered at yesterday's meeting at the President's bedside is not known.

What would be the President's subsequent course if he withdrew himself and the entire American delegation from the Peace Conference? The probability is that on his return to Washington, or even before leaving France, he would issue a proclamation calling Congress in extraordinary session. With Congress reassembled, the President could appear at a joint session of the Senate and House, and explain the reasons for his withdrawal from the Peace Conference.

Congress Might Be Summoned.

In his address he might recommend that Congress adopt a joint resolution stating the terms on which relations with Germany, Austria, and Hungary would be resumed by the United States. On compliance by these enemy nations with the President's terms, peace treaties between them and the United States could be arranged—probably in Washington.

One argument advanced in the effort to prove that the recall of the George Washington does not carry the significance attributed to it is that by withdrawing from the Peace Conference President Wilson would give a death blow to the child of his heart—the League of Nations. But the argument does not appeal to some men who have inside knowledge of the situation from the American point of view. It is contended that the peoples of the world are too deeply committed to the League principle to permit its abandonment. Therefore, it is asserted, the formation of the League would be left to a new Congress of Nations, probably called by the President of the United States, to which neutrals would be invited.

The plans for the organization of the League have made such progress, it is pointed out, that there is no chance that the League plan will be abandoned.

PRESIDENT'S SHIP WILL SAIL FRIDAY

Wilson, about a year before the United States entered the war, not only asked his hearers whether they were willing to go into the war, but also whether, after they had gone in, they would be willing to "draw out the moment the interest centres in America and is narrowed from the wide circle of humanity."

The President said, in part:

"We are nonpartisans as between classes, as between interests, as between personal ambitions, as between those who desire power and those who have it.

"Gentlemen, are you ready for the test? God forbid that we should ever become directly or indirectly embroiled in quarrels not of our own choosing, and that do not affect what we feel responsible to defend, but if we should ever be drawn in, are you ready to go in only where the interests of America are coincident with the interests of mankind and to draw out the moment the interest centres in America and is narrowed from the wide circle of humanity? Are you ready for the test? Have you the courage to go in? Have you the courage to come out according as the balance is disturbed or readjusted for the interests of humanity?

"If you are ready, you have inherited the spirit of Jefferson, who recognized the men in France and the men in Germany, who were doing the liberal thinking of their day, and just as much citizens of the great world of liberty as he was himself, and who was ready in every conception he had to join hands across the water or across any other barrier with those who held those high conceptions of liberty which had brought the United States into existence. When we lost that sympathy we lose the titles of our own heritage. So long as we keep them we can go through the world with lifted heads and the consciousness of those who do not serve themselves except as they conceive that they have purified their hearts for the service of mankind."

The sailing date of the George Washington from Hoboken was a matter which the officials at that port were not agreed upon yesterday. Captain Morgan of the Navy Department, in charge of the movement of liners at Hoboken, intimated that the liner was ready to sail on short notice. He insisted that she would not leave her dock until Monday, but he referred inquiries to Washington.

Army officials at the port of embarkation, who would not be quoted, were equally as sanguine that the President's ship would leave Hoboken Friday afternoon.

The work of loading the big ship proceeded yesterday without interruption. There seemed no special rush of the work, and to a casual observer there was nothing to indicate that any special effort was being made to get the ship ready for sailing. The ship will carry a general cargo.

Dining at the Hotel ST·REGIS

Is quite different from eating at any other restaurant in New York. It is a different conception of what dining really is; of what makes pleasurable luncheon, or tea, or dinner; of what satisfies and of what is right.

This difference is apparent in the quality and character of the food served, the quiet ease of the service, the comfortable and appealing fitness of the several dining rooms, and the distinguished people.

There is a different atmosphere at the ST. REGIS, pleasant and wholly satisfying.

$2,500,000,000 CROP OF WHEAT ASSURED

LARGE SURPLUS TO EXPORT

Washington Is Speculating on the Amount That Will Be Paid Out of Guarantee Fund.

WINTER WAS FAVORABLE

And Indications Are That Spring Production Will Exceed 225,000,000 Bushels.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Forecast by the Department of Agriculture today that the nation's Winter wheat crop would total 837,000,000 bushels, the largest crop ever grown, aroused immediate speculation as to the cost to the Government of such an enormous yield.

Under the bill passed by Congress in the closing days of the last session the Government is obliged to pay the difference between the guaranteed price of $2.26 a bushel and the world market price for every bushel of Winter and Spring wheat produced.

The value of the Winter wheat crop on the basis of an 837,000,000-bushel crop forecast would be $1,891,620,000. The Spring wheat crop, soon to be sown, cannot be estimated at this time, but Department of Agriculture officials today predicted it would range between 225,000,000 and 300,000,000 bushels, which would increase the total value of the nation's wheat crop to approximately $2,500,000,000.

The part of this $2,500,000,000 that the Government must pay to maintain the guaranteed price was a matter on which officials here declined to comment. It was said that the factors influencing the world market price, such as production in Argentina, Australia, and other countries, and the European demand, were too numerous to make any prediction at this time. The Department of Agriculture has no information as to estimated wheat production in the other wheat-growing countries of the world.

Money From One Pocket to Another.

Officials expressed the belief today that there would be a good foreign demand for American wheat, which would take care of the nation's surplus, and while the loss to the Government through its price guarantee might mount into the millions of dollars, so far as the actual wealth of the country was concerned, it would simply be taking money from one pocket and putting it into another.

The money, it was said, will go into the pockets of the farmers of the country, and officials believe the forecast indicates that farmers will be more prosperous and possess greater potential buying power than ever before in the history of the country. The large amount farmers would receive for their wheat, it was said, should find its way back quickly into circulation, thus adding to the general prosperity of the nation.

Today's forecast also indicated that America would have a greater surplus than ever before. The United States requires for its own yearly consumption about 5.3 bushels of wheat for each person. With approximately 110,000,000 persons in the United States, and adding approximately 75,000,000 bushels of wheat, which is necessary for seeding purposes, the demands of this country this year are estimated at more than 650,000,000 bushels.

With a Spring wheat production estimated at 225,000,000 to 300,000,000, it would appear that the surplus available for export would be about 450,000,000 bushels.

What these figures mean is indicated in statistics showing that before the war the United States exported on an average of 100,000,000 bushels yearly. During the war the greatest quantity exported in any one year was about 335,000,000 bushels, so that the available supply this year will be more than 100,000,000 bushels above the maximum ever exported, even when practically all the warring allied and neutral nations were depending upon the United States as the main source of their food supply.

Highest Percentage on Record.

The Department of Agriculture issued a statement commenting upon the condition of Winter wheat, saying:

"Ninety-nine and eight-tenths per cent. is the highest percentage on record, on the largest acreage ever planted in this country. The condition improved during the Winter, an unusual occurrence, due to the very favorable Winter weather, particularly the absence of alternate freezing and thawing, which appears also to have resulted in a minimum of Winter killing.

"A striking feature of the present situation is a uniformly good condition in practically all wheat-producing States, ranging from 104 in Ohio down to 96 in North Carolina, among the States having 1,000,000 acres or more. The lowest figure reported from any State is 89 in Wisconsin. Kansas, with approximately 11,000,000 out of the United States total of 49,000,000 acres, shows a condition of 101. The present moisture conditions throughout the entire country, with unimportant local exceptions, are very favorable.

"The Winter wheat promise on April 1 of 837,000,000 is nearly double the yearly average production in the United States for the five years before the war (442,000,000 in 1909-1913,) and is nearly 50 per cent. larger than the production during the war years 1914-1918, when the average was 562,000,000.

"The condition of the crop is higher than has been reported on April 1 since 1882, and the indicated yield is higher than any actual yield in any year with the exception of 1914, when the yield per acre was 18.5 bushels per planted acre following an April 1 condition of 95.6."

Production of Winter wheat last year was 558,449,000 bushels and in 1917 it was 412,901,000 bushels, while the record crop of 681,990,000 bushels was produced in 1914.

The condition of the crop on April 1, last year, was 78.6 per cent. of a normal, while in 1917 it was 63.4 and the average of the last ten years was 82.3.

There was an increase in condition from Dec. 1 last year to April 1 this year of 1.2 points, compared with an average decline in the last ten years of 5.9 points between those dates.

The production of rye was forecast by the Department of Agriculture at 101,000,000 bushels, compared with 89,103,000 bushels last year, 62,933,000 bushels in 1917, and 44,547,000 bushels, the average of the preceding five years.

The average condition of rye on April 1 was 90.6 per cent. of a normal, against 85.8 on April 1 last year, 86.0 in 1917 and 88.6, the average condition for the last ten years on April 1.

OFFER TO BUILD SHIPS AT REDUCED PRICES

Chairman Hurley of Shipping Board Sees Chance of Competing with Foreign Builders.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Construction of the latest type oil-burning cargo steamers at a price which will enable American shipyards to compete with the foreign nations was declared to be "highly probable" by Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board tonight in a statement announcing that the Submarine Boat Corporation of Newark, N. J., had made an offer to build eight 12,000-ton freighters at $149 a deadweight ton without any guarantee from the Government on either labor or material.

In making the offer to the Shipping Board, Henry N. Carse, President of the corporation, wrote that the experience gained in duplicating steel cargo ships in quantity demonstrated beyond all question that the procedure the company was following would enable it to continue shipbuilding successfully at the marked reduction in cost, even though it was "the lowest price quoted today in the world."

Replying to Mr. Carse, Mr. Hurley said that the proposal of the corporation was "most interesting at this particular time when war costs have reached figures that are out of all proportion with 1916 American prices of $64 to $68 a deadweight ton on oil tankers and of from $50 a ton for 5,000-ton cargo steamers to $69 a ton for high-class 9,200-ton cargo steamers with a speed of from eleven to twelve knots."

"Most prices mentioned and talked about for 1919 have been from $185 to $225 a ton," he added. "Your proposal most effectively answers the question as to whether our ship builders can compete in prices with foreign shipyards.

"The receipt of such a bid from one of our best shipyards, at this period in the development of our shipbuilding industry, will be most gratifying to the country, as it is safe to assume that if we can build ships at those figures now in a short time the prices will be further substantially reduced.

"Such a reduction also will give us an opportunity to firmly establish our shipbuilding industry and will allow us to obtain ships at prices reasonable enough to compete with foreign ship operators."

Plans for the type of vessel which the Submarine Boat Corporation offers to build were drawn up by Theodore E. Ferris, a naval architect and marine engineer, and are said to provide for a great degree of economy in operation, efficiency, and comfort for the crews, besides having many advantages which do not exist in vessels under foreign flags.

Describing the ships, Mr. Carse asserted that by utilizing oil for fuel a steaming radius of 13,000 knots would be obtained without refueling.

The first ships, Mr. Carse said, could be delivered six months after the ways were completed. Eight of the present launching ways at the corporations' yards would be taken as soon as available, he said, and remodeled to permit the construction at one time of four of the ships.

CLEMENCY IN ARMY CRIMES.

Special Board Cuts 9,339 Years from Sentences in 1,521 Cases.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The Special Clemency Board, appointed to review all cases of soldiers remaining in confinement, has considered 1,683 cases, or approximately one-third of the cases calling for its action, the War Department announced today.

The board has recommended clemency in 1,521 cases, reducing the average sentence from seven years and four months to one year and nine months. Recommendations of the board have cut a total of 9,339 years from the aggregate sentences. Five cases involving life sentence were considered, one sentence being reduced to two years, another to twenty years and clemency being denied in the other three.

ALLIES RESPONSIBLE IN ARCHANGEL MOVE

MAJOR WORK BY BRITISH

Send Equipment for Anti-Bolshevist Army and Food Supplies for Civilians.

LONDON, April 8, (via Montreal.)—In connection with the situation of the allied forces in Northern Russia, it is pointed out in authoritative circles that responsibility for the North Russia expedition is an allied one, undertaken with all due deliberation by the Supreme War Council. Great Britain, it is added, was intrusted with the coordination of allied measures and the supreme command, chiefly because the operation was largely a naval one and because all the arrangements at the northern ports fell to her.

Realizing the importance of the task Great Britain from the outset, it is said, threw herself energetically into the work. In addition to equipping the British and a large part of the allied forces to withstand the northern temperature, Great Britain supplied equipment and supplies for 25,000 Russian anti-Bolshevist troops and also sent to Archangel and Murmansk food for 700,000 civilians from British stocks.

Russian wireless reports of Monday show that there has been no change on the Archangel-Murmansk front. The Soviet army has seized nearly three and a half million poods of coal (about 63,000 tons) at Mariupol, from which place the coal was being removed.

PETLURA'S ARMY NEAR KIEV.

Ukraine Seeks to Resume Commercial Relations with Czechs.

BUDAPEST, April 6, (Associated Press.)—Forces commanded by Simon Petlura, the peasant leader of Ukraine, are said to be menacing Kiev. Reports indicate that they are within a few miles of the city.

PRAGUE, April 8, (French Wireless Service.)—A mission from the Ukrainian Government has arrived here to discuss the resumption of commercial relations between Bohemia and the Ukraine. The Ukraine Government is prepared to deliver oil in exchange for copper and glassware.

CANADIANS TO QUIT SIBERIA.

Soldiers There to Embark This Month Rejoice at News.

VLADIVOSTOK, Siberia, April 1, (Canadian Press.)—There is great rejoicing among the Canadian troops here over the official announcement that Canadian troops are to be withdrawn forthwith.

Embarkation will begin about the middle of April. General Elmsly will remain until the end of May, administering affairs.

MUST REPORT BY MAY 15.

Employers Warned of Duties Under Income Tax Law.

The time within which organizations and individuals must file with the Internal Revenue Collector statements giving the names and addresses of persons to whom they paid more than $1,000 in 1918 will expire on May 15. Collector William H. Edwards, calling attention to the nearness of the time limit yesterday, pointed out that a separate return is required for each employe.

"Banks, trust companies, and similar institutions," he said, "must make returns of information showing interest paid to or credited to the account of an individual if the amount so credited or paid was $1,000 or more.

"Real estate agents are required to report the gross amounts received in rents or other income and remitted to their principals if such amounts for 1918 were $1,000 or more."

REDS' BUREAU HERE ASSAILS BLOCKADE

Pictures Wants Under Lenine Regime, Described by Fellow-Agents as Entirely "Normal."

While pro-Bolshevist reports coming out of Russia paint conditions in that country as approaching the normal, the facts would appear to be, as presented in a statement issued yesterday from the Bolshevist headquarters in the World Tower Building, 110 West Fortieth Street, that the country is industrially in distress, and that the only hope of Trotzky and Lenine lies in the lifting by the Allies of the commercial and economic blockade. The Bolshevist representatives in this country maintain, however, an air of optimism and yesterday officially asserted that the indications were that trade restrictions would shortly be removed.

Together with this declaration, the statement pleads for the lifting of the blockade in the following terms:

"America is hurting herself by maintaining a blockade against Russia. The present situation is absolutely untenable without cable communication, without passenger traffic, and without an exchange of products between these two countries. Yet the solution is simple and lies absolutely in the hands of the American people. Put an end to the blockade."

In the statement, which was made by A. A. Heller, the Commercial Agent of the Bolshevist "embassy," it is said that Russia is now in great need of "a thousand and one things which are made in America and can be used by civilized communities."

Bruce-Lockhart, the former British High Commissioner to Russia, whose report was made public by the British Government last Saturday, said that industry was in state of "utter deadlock," and that all private industrial enterprises had been ruined as a result of the policies of Lenine and Trotzky. A statement to the same effect was made before the Senate Committee by Ambassador Francis. No reference to the Lockhart statement is to be found in the Heller document.

Expects Trade Relations.

"I am charged," said Mr. Heller in his statement, "with the work of establishing trade relations between the United States and Russia. Although nothing has so far been definitely decided as to the policy of the Allies, including the United States, toward Soviet Russia, there are many indications that trade relations will be established in the very near future. We want to be prepared for such an eventuality so that as soon as the existing blockade is lifted goods may be shipped without a single day's delay."

The statement went on to detail some of the supplies wanted and to suggest that merchants submit bids now, adding:

"The Russian Soviet Government is prepared to pay for its purchases in a manner which will make the trade independent of the depreciated value of the ruble. Firstly, it is ready to place $200,000,000 in gold in banks abroad as soon as trade relations are established. Secondly, there are large stores of raw material in Russia, such as furs, flax, hemp, hides, platinum, irridium, precious stones, &c., ready for shipment to the American market. The value of these exports will go toward balancing the imports into Russia."

Agent Heller next discussed the nationalization of industry in Russia by order of Lenine and Trotzky. As a result of this nationalization, he said that the only agency anywhere in any country in the world which can buy materials for Russia is the Bolshevist Government itself.

Sunday Movies Bill Goes to Governor

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 8.—The Assembly this afternoon passed the Thompson bill providing for motion pictures after 2 o'clock on Sunday afternoons with the sanction of local governing bodies. The vote was 84 to 58. Democrats generally and some down-State Republicans supported it. Rural members voted against it. The bill now goes to the Governor, who is expected to approve it.

BRITAIN WILL OWN OIL WELLS HERSELF

Her Recent Purchases in Mexico Significant of a Decisive Policy.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Recent purchase by the British Government of oil properties in Mexico is confirmed in official advices. Officials of the State Department are much interested in the situation because of the apparent establishment by Great Britain of a new policy of outright Government ownership of oil properties.

Great Britain, it was said today, had not waited for action by the Mexican courts or the new Congress called to meet May 1, but had bought the interests of her nationals which were involved in the question. These are the properties involved in the dispute that led to the dispatch by the British, French, and United States of protests against the "confiscatory" features of the Mexican Constitution.

The British action was said by a high official today to indicate that Great Britain did not intend that the property, acquired by British subjects in good faith and under the laws of Mexico at the time, should be "confiscated." Great Brtiain, this official said, was trying to obtain all the available oil-producing lands throughout the world to insure carrying trade for her merchant marine and cheap fuel for her navy and commercial vessels.

The British now own about 20 per cent. of the proved oil-producing properties of Mexico, including the Cowdray and Dutch-Shell interests, recent acquisitions.

ATTACK ERZBERGER FOR DANZIG AGREEMENT

German Newspapers Call It a "Deplorable Concession" to the Allies.

ZURICH, April 8.—Many German newspapers are attacking Dr. Mathias Erzberger and the German Government for the agreement reached with Marshal Foch at Spa last week concerning transportation of Polish troops from France to Poland. Some call the agreement "a new and deplorable concession" by Germany to the Allies.

The Vossische Zeitung of Berlin says that the passage of the Poles through Germany will be difficult because of the lack of means of transportation. It adds:

"Will Erzberger, who so easily consented to the allied demands at Spa, kindly tell us how he intends to solve this grave question of the transportation of the Polish troops?"

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROTTERDAM, April 8.—According to the Berliner Zeitung am Mittag the recent conference between Foch and Erzberger at Spa was of a much more important character than its ostensible purpose, the settlement of the Danzig question, indicates, for it extended to a discussion of the general situation. Stating that it is supplied by some one who was present at the conference the paper publishes the following account:

"For the first time Erzberger had an opportunity for a long conversation with Marshal Foch. Immediately on his arrival at Spa, Erzberger asked for a confidential interview. Foch first telephoned to Clemenceau and received Erzberger at 11 o'clock in the morning.

"In the course of conversation Erzberger not only gave his views on the Danzig question, but explained the whole internal and external position of Germany. In fact, Danzig played only a comparatively unimportant rôle. The second personal discussion without witnesses took place between Foch and Erzberger Friday evening before the signing of the Danzig agreement, and this conversation also had relation to the general situation. The Danzig treaty was signed at the same table at which the Kaiser signed his abdication."

OFFERS ORDINANCE TO CONTROL REDS

Measure to Stop Seditious Meetings in Alien Tongue Sent to Aldermanic Committee.

LEE ASSAILS THE MAYOR

Socialist Alderman, in Letter, Calls His Proposal "Stupid"—Says Purpose Is "Camouflage."

As a result of Mayor Hylan's letter to Acting Chairman of the Board of Aldermen Moran last week suggesting the framing of an ordinance that would prevent the holding of meetings in a foreign language by those who "preach murder and destruction," Alderman William P. Kenneally, Democrat, yesterday introduced the following amendment to the city ordinances:

Any person, meaning the owner, agent, occupant, or one in charge of place or building who shall permit on such premises any assemblage of persons advocating under any pretense, or in any language whatever, policies tending to incite the minds of people to a proposition likely to breed a disregard for law, or allow utterances likely to arouse people to sedition, or in any way tend to bring about disorder, revolt, or riot, shall be punished by a fine of $200 or by imprisonment for not more than three months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

The resolution was referred to the Committee on General Welfare. In connection with the resolution Alderman Algernon Lee, Socialist, called the attention of Acting Chairman Moran to the fact that there had been sent to the Board of Aldermen protests against Mayor Hylan's recommendation to bar meetings in alien tongues, as it would tend to destroy trade unions.

Among the organizations protesting, said Mr. Lee, were the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, the Cap Makers' Union, the United Clothing Workers, and the Kehillah. He objected to Acting Chairman Moran referring the communications to a committee without causing them to be read, as there was no means by which the Aldermen would know what the communications contained unless they were read.

Mayor Hylan was challenged by the Socialist Aldermen, in a letter sent to him yesterday, to make public the names of those persons "preaching murder and destruction," in a foreign language. In part the letter said:

"We are confident you cannot name one specific case. You have simply allowed yourself to utter a sensational and inflammatory fallsehood, couched in general terms, recklessly hoping that no one would call you to account.

"Your proposal is stupid on its face. Incitement to violence is a felony under existing law, no matter what language the inciter speaks; and it is neither more nor less criminal to 'preach murder and destruction' in English than in any other language.

"But looking below the surface, your proposal is worse than stupid, it is most pernicious.

"You seek to establish a special censorship over speeches delivered and meetings conducted in languages other than English. And you seek to deprive the whole body of non-citizen inhabitants of that right of free assemblage which the Federal Constitution guarantees, not to citizens alone but to the people as a whole. This unconstitutional purpose you seek to effect under the cloak of police power, which already covers a multitude of your sins.

"A large proportion of the residents of this city, and especially of the wage-working population, are immigrants not yet naturalized. A large proportion of those who are naturalized, having come to this country as adults and having little time for study, do not speak English fluently enough to use it in the conduct of their trade unions, beneficial societies, religious congregations, political clubs and other organizations, and in their public meetings.

"To prohibit aliens from holding meetings and to prohibit or restrict the use of the languages with which our foreign-born people are most familiar would go far toward destroying their organizations and would put them at the mercy of the union-hating employers and of grafting politicians.

"Is this your intent? It may well be part of your intent, for it harmonizes with the manner in which you have used the police to suppress the meetings of a recognized political party, to scab upon striking boatmen, to persecute striking waiters and striking waist makers, while failing to check an orgy of burglary, robbery, and other crime.

"But we suspect your purpose is chiefly that of camouflage.

"Your administration has broken every promise it made in campaign time. It has shown callous indifference to the grievances of the working people. It needs to divert public attention from its own misconduct.

"When you and your colleagues were called upon for action that would protect the people from food profiteers and rent profiteers you raised a cry of 'Anarchy!' and outlawed the red flag. When the right of city employes to organize and to refuse scab duty was asserted, your Police Commissioner and his millionaire Deputies screamed 'Sedition!' and organized a hall boycott against the Socialists. When attention was called to the dangers of unemployment, your factotum in the Board of Aldermen yelled 'Bolsheviki!' And now, knowing that your organization is becoming rapidly discredited all along the line, you seek to screen it from just criticism by catering to race prejudice and stirring up social discord through the utterance of a vile slander on a numerous and hard-working element of our population.

"Mr. Mayor, the Board of Aldermen may enact the oppressive law you propose. With the aid of the Ryans, the Wanamakers, and the Guggenheims you may enforce it. But you will fail. Abler men than you—the Ministers of Kaisers and of Czars—have played this desperate game. It is a pity you are not capable of learning by their experience. All you will succeed in doing is to render social progress most costly and painful, not to stop, or even delay, its course."

The National Civil Liberties Bureau wrote to the Board of Aldermen saying that an ordinance such as the Mayor suggested would violate "our most cherished traditions of American liberty."

The balcony of the Board of Aldermen was filled with persons who attended yesterday hoping to hear the debate on the resolution suggested by the Mayor.

Rent Inquiry Seems Assured.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 8.—It was learned tonight that the Legislature in all probability will accede to the proposal that a legislative committee be appointed to investigate rent conditions in New York City on account of pressure from tenants on the west side of Manhattan and in the Bronx. A concurrent resolution providing for the investigation is pending, and Speaker Sweet today promised to press it.

GERMAN REDS WAIT CHANCE

stormed and partly destroyed and the reserves looted, the damage exceeding 400,000 marks.

The police station was also stormed with the intention of releasing the prisoners in it, but the rioters were repulsed after the building had been considerably damaged. Grenades and rifles were employed in the attack on the station and many persons were wounded.

Government troops are advancing on the town and conflicts are anticipated. Large portions of the garrison have joined the insurgents, and it is reported that a quantity of arms has been distributed to the workmen and former soldiers from the citadel.

Herr Landsberg, Minister of Justice in the German national Government, was arrested yesterday at Magdeburg by members of regiments stationed there. General von Kleist, in command of the Fourth Army, and his staff and former Deputy Filkel were also arrested. Other arrests of Social Democrats and members of the bourgeoisie are planned at Magdeburg.

A motor car in which Herr Landsberg was being taken to Brunswick after his arrest was stopped at Helmstad and the Minister was liberated, a Berlin dispatch says. The machine was accompanied by a strong escort of the insurgents, but the police at Helmstad disarmed them. Herr Landsberg went to the police headquarters.

As a result of the arrest of Herr Landsberg a state of siege was declared at Magdeburg and a sufficient force of troops was set in motion to bring those responsible to justice, according to a Berlin semi-official statement. A majority of the Magdeburg garrison sympathize with the Independent Socialists.

The general strike was declared over the heads of the men's leaders. Eight thousand of the workmen attended a meeting this morning in the Dom Platz and resolved that the strike should continue until former Deputy Brandes, who was arrested yesterday, was released.

The tram service has ceased.

LONDON, April 8.—Minister Landsberg, who was rescued at Heumstad from a party of revolting Magdeburg soldiers, has been sent to Hanover, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Daily Mail.

The Police Commissary of Heumstad, with whom Herr Landsberg had taken refuge, learned that another party of insurgents was approaching. He put the Minister in an automobile and ordered it to proceed to Hanover.

GERMANY REPUDIATES MUNICH'S RED REGIME

Hoffmann Cabinet Is Recognized —Move to Confiscate Bavarian Property.

COPENHAGEN, April 8.—The German national Government will not recognize the new Soviet Republic of Bavaria, a semi-official Press Bureau message received today from Berlin declares.

It holds that the Soviet organization has not conformed with the provisional Constitution for Germany, which provides that representatives of the State Council shall be chosen at a general election and shall enjoy the confidence of the people. Therefore the national Government's decision is that the only legitimate Government in Bavaria is the Hoffmann Government.

Premier Hoffmann's statement to the effect that he has not retired from office but has only moved his headquarters from Munich is accepted by the national Government.

Advices from different parts of Bavaria show varying reception of the Soviet proclamation. At Nuremberg, after several hours of debate, the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council rejected the Soviet Republic ideas by a vote of 138 to 76. At Ansbach the Soviet Republic was proclaimed yesterday afternoon and work was at a standstill on the occasion of the general holiday ordered for the day. The banks were occupied by troops.

At Passau, close to the Austrian frontier, a meeting called by the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council declared for the introduction of the Soviet Republic and for an alliance with Hungary and Russia.

Regarding the situation in Munich a dispatch from that city says:

"It is announced by general headquarters of the First Bavarian Army that a Soviet Republic was proclaimed today (April 7) in Bavaria. Therefore the domain of the First Army is declared to be in an intensified state of siege."

Preparing to Confiscate Property.

MUNICH, April 7, (Associated Press.)—The general strike called as "a festival in honor of the proclamation of the Soviet Government" developed today without trouble, the streets merely being more crowded than usual in the mild Spring weather. Every one was really making a holiday of the occasion.

Some of the Soviet plans, should this faction succeed in ousting the old Government and come into genuine power, were announced today. The socialization of the theatre is one of them. Already a Commission for a National Theatre has been named, consisting of authors, theatre employes and members of the press, which has appointed an Executive Committee.

Another plan is that all stores, should they attempt to close, will be opened forcibly and socialized in the service of the public.

The Soviet leaders have drawn up a bill for the confiscation of property. Under the bill all fortunes of more than 10,000 marks shall be seized, a part confiscated, and the balance retained by the States, which will pay the legitimate owner from 3 to 4 per cent. interest.

It is planned to reduce rent and food prices forcibly, though by what means has not yet been announced.

The action of most of the South Bavarian Majority Socialists in favoring the Soviet Government is taken as an indication of their recent radicalization. They quit their former leaders, who had placarded all the Bavarian towns and cities, urging the men to do their duty and the individual councils to keep in close touch with the officials.

Five thousand citizens of Munich held a demonstration this morning. The 1st Infantry Regiment of Munich troops, it is announced, will serve as the basis of the Red Guard to be created.

Many prominent persons are reported to have been arrested, to be held as hostages.

Complete severance from the old German Imperialism, as declared still to be manifest in the Ebert-Scheidemann Government of Germany, and the establishment of a "brotherly connection" with the Russian and Hungarian peoples are announced in the proclamation of the new Soviet Government for Bavaria. "Long live the world revolution!" the proclamation concludes.

The text of the document reads:

"The decision arrived at for Bavaria is the formation of a Council of the Republic of Revolutionary Workers and Peasants of Bavaria, including all our brothers, now united, separated by no party lines. From now on no exploitation or oppression will be tolerated. The dictatorship of the proletariat has now become a fact. The legalization of a genuine socialistic community is now achieved, in which every workingman may participate in public life and in a just socialistic age.

"The Landtag has been dissolved and the old Ministry retired. People's Commissaries, responsible to the people and chosen by a council of the working people, will receive extraordinary powers to be employed in certain labor fields. Their assistants will be intelligent men from all parts of the revolutionary and socialistic community.

"Countless valuable forces of officialdom, especially from the lower middle official class, will be asked to co-operate in the new work. The bureaucratic system will be absolutely eliminated and the press will be socialized.

"As a protection for the Bavarian Council of the Republic against revolutionary attacks from without and within, a Red army will be created immediately and a revolutionary court will pursue ruthlessly every attempt upon the Council.

"The Government of the Bavarian Council Republic follows the example of the Hungarian and Russian peoples. It will resume immediately a brotherly connection with these peoples, but it declines any connection with the contemptuous Ebert-Scheidemann Government, because that Government is continuing under the flag of a Socialist republic the imperialistic, capitalistic, and military business of the disgraceful, broken-down German Empire.

"It calls upon all German brothers to take the same view. It greets all proletarians wherever revolutionary socialism is fighting—in Württemberg, in the Ruhr district, in the whole world.

"As a sign of the joyous hope for a fortunate future for all humanity, it establishes April 7 as a holiday for all humanity. As a sign of the beginning of the departure, the flight, of the age of capitalism, all work is stopped. Bavaria ceases, on April 7, in so far as it is not necessary for the welfare of the working people, to do labor.

"Long live free Bavaria! Long live the Council Government! Long live the world revolution!"

Communists Deride New Regime.

BERLIN, April 8. (Associated Press.)—Commenting on the entire absence of unity at Munich, which, it is asserted, insures a firm dictatorship, the Munich correspondent of the Tageblatt says that the Communists deride and mock the Soviet republic, and that the independents are quite divided, only the Munich group supporting the Soviets. The major States are declared to be completely split in Bavaria, those in the south being in conflict with those in the north.

Dissensions have already arisen among the founders of the new Soviet Government, the Acht Uhr Blatt today says, and an intensified state of siege has been proclaimed in Munich. The Communists in the Bavarian capital have decided that they will not collaborate with the Majority Socialists. They have demanded the removal of the Majority Socialists from the new Government, which they want to consist of Independent Socialists and Communists.

The city, owing to the state of siege, remains quiet. There was a tremendous run on the banks Saturday, but the bankers refused to pay out large sums.

The Vossische Zeitung's correspondent says that hatred for the Jews is expressing itself in hitherto unaccustomed forms.

The Nuremberg correspondent of the Vossische Zeitung explains that the Hoffmann Ministry first moved to Nuremberg, and afterward to Bamberg. A state of siege has been proclaimed at Nuremberg. The Peasant Councils of Middle Franconia reject the Soviet Republic.

Protests Against New Rule.

COPENHAGEN, April 8.—Demonstrations have taken place in Munich against the new revolutionary Government, according to Berlin dispatches today. The demonstrations were dispersed by troops.

Protests against the formation of the Soviet Government, voiced at a political meeting in Bamberg, are reported in dispatches from that city. Deputies of all the bourgeois parties of the three Franconian Governments, Upper, Lower, and Middle Franconia, met in Bamberg and registered a unanimous protest against the proclamation of the new régime at Munich.

"The whole population of Northern Bavaria," reads the protest, "is warned against allowing itself to be intimidated through fear of a vanishing minority, mainly consisting of persons predominantly of a foreign race. Bavaria is on the edge of a precipice and if it is not preserved from a downfall everything is lost.

"Bavaria will then become the prey of fratricide, plundering, and famine. A further consequence will be the complete collapse of economic life. Foreign countries will refuse food and assistance to a Bolshevist Bavaria, and help from Russia and Hungary is out of the question, as they are tortured by famine.

"Those who tell you this are your countrymen, and not foreigners who a few months ago knew nothing of Bavaria and who are indifferent to your fate."

A Berlin dispatch says that Erich Mühsam a prominent Communist, who is included in the Bavarian Soviet Government, has received unlimited powers from the Bavarian Central Council, and thus exercises an unrestricted dictatorship.

Mühsam and Landauer, (the Minister of "Popular Enlightenment,") are today the rulers who dominate Munich, with the support of the garrison, the Acht Uhr Blatt declares. It expresses the opinion that the Soviet Government will not last, as the people are opposed to the dictatorship and hope that the counter-measures taken by Premier Hoffman of the old Government will be effective.

Proclamation Called Error.

PARIS, April 8.—The proclamation of a Soviet Government in Munich, says a dispatch to the Matin from Zurich, was an error on the part of the men who proclaimed it. Many Communists opposed the course adopted up to the last moment, says the dispatch, realizing that it would have the effect of accentuating the hostile tendencies of Northern Bavaria, notably Franconia and Suabia.

The correspondent notes the proposition for the removal of the Diet to Bamberg and the pronouncement of Sunday by the Socialist Party which had been in power, by a decisive vote, against the Soviet proclamation. The party, however, declared that it would remain neutral in the face of an accomplished fact, raising no difficulties for the new Government, with whom it left all responsibilities for the situation.

The correspondent considers the proclamation a doubly severe blow for the Berlin Government, in the first place because of its possible influence on the Congress of German Councils about to assemble and in the second place because the setting up of a Soviet régime in Munich completely upsets all the calculations upon which the future internal policy of Germany had been based.

ACCUSES WIGMORE OF FRANKING ABUSE

COMPLAINS TO OFFICIALS

Refers Matter to Palmer and Burleson, and in Addition Wants Wigmore Disciplined.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Senator George E. Chamberlain of Oregon, Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, tonight complained to Attorney General Palmer and Postmaster General Burleson of the action of Colonel John Henry Wigmore of the Army Judge Advocate's office, in sending through the mails under an official frank a defense of the existing army court-martial system, in alleged violation of the law.

At the same time Senator Chamberlain made public his letter to the Attorney General, in which he asserts that Colonel Wigmore has been mailing out to the lawyers of the country copies of a pamphlet entitled "Military Justice During the War." The pamphlet was printed at the Government Printing Office and contains sixty-four pages. It was mailed under the official frank of the War Industries Board, now a defunct Federal institution. None of Lieut. Col. Samuel T. Ansell's letters are contained in the communication. It contains only letters written by Secretary Baker and Major Gen. Enoch Crowder, Judge Advocate General, in support of the existing system of military court-martial.

Senator Chamberlain tonight issued a prepared statement dealing with the action of Colonel Wigmore, charging that "this gross abuse of official position and the franking privilege is one of the thousand evidences of the length to which the Secretary of War will go, and permit his subordinates to go, in support of the discredited system of military justice."

Sending Out 70,000 Copies.

Colonel Wigmore, according to Senator Chamberlain's information, is causing an enormous public distribution to be made of the Baker-Crowder letters. Mr. Chamberlain says he understands that 70,000 copies of the document eare being franked out, mainly to members of the bar of the United States. Senator Chamberlain regards this as an effort to influence members of the bar in favor of the Baker-Crowder side of the controversy, and considers it wholly unfair to the bar of the United States for any one connected with the War Department to send out such a statement of the army court-martial situation.

Accompanying each copy of the Baker-Wigmore document sent out by Colonel Wigmore is a printed letter, signed by Colonel Wigmore, under date of March 25, and addressed "To My Fellow-Members of the Bar of the United States," making a personal appeal to the lawyers of the country to peruse the Baker-Crowder letters, and concluding with the assertion that "when the entire facts shall have been brought out and the motives behind the recent press publicity become plain, you will be well satisfied that you did not allow yourselves to be carried away by first impressions gained from sensational headlines, extreme cases, and emotional epithets."

Colonel Wigmore since 1893 has been a Professor of Law in the Northwestern University at Chicago, and since September, 1901, has been Dean of its Faculty of Law. He was appointed a member of the staff of the Judge Advocate General of the army, with the rank of Major, in August, 1918, and has recently been promoted to be a Colonel.

Contents of the Pamphlet.

The pamphlet which is being franked through the mails, along with the letter from Colonel Wigmore to the members of the bar, bears the imprint of the Government Printing Office, and its first page has this caption:

"War Department. Military Justice During the War. A Letter from the Judge Advocate General of the Army to the Secretary of War. In Reply to a Request for Information."

Two pages of the document consist of Secretary Baker's letter of March 1, 1919, calling on General Crowder for the facts regarding the army court-martial situation. This is the letter which was made public by Secretary Baker on March 9 along with the letter dated March 8, from General Crowder, attacking the personal and official conduct of Lieut. Col. Ansell. The document being sent out by Colonel Wigmore discloses for the first time that Secretary Baker received two replies from General Crowder in response to the Secretary's letter of March 1, one dated March 8, the other dated March 10. The March 8 letter was made public by the War Department, and is the one to which Lieut. Col. Ansell recently replied, which reply was returned by Secretary Baker, who refused to receive it.

The Crowder reply of March 8 is not contained in the Wigmore pamphlet, but the Crowder reply of March 10, which has not been given out by the War Department, is contained in the pamphlet. It covers 59 printed pages, and is a defense of the army court-martial system, dealing with individual court-martial cases cited for criticism, and general principles of military justice, and contending that the modern military code is "not archaic."

Text of Chamberlain Statement.

Senator Chamberlain's statement reads:

"Several members of the bar have just brought to my attention a communication addressed to each of them, purporting to be sent out by Colonel (former professor) John H. Wigmore, who has been serving in the War Department under General Crowder. I understand that some 70,000 of them have been printed at the Government press and are being mailed out.

"These communications are mailed in the ordinary official envelope of the War Industries Board. The communication is obviously a private communication and in no sense official. Believing that it is being transmitted by mail as official business in violation of law, I have brought it to the attention of the Attorney General and also of the Postmaster General for such action as each may deem it proper to take.

"My letter to the Attorney General is as follows:

The Honorable, the Attorney General:

Sir: I have the honor to transmit to you herewith a printed communication signed "John H. Wigmore, Colonel, Judge Advocate, United States Army," addressed "To My Fellow-Members of the Bar of the United States," together with its inclosure, which is "A letter from the Judge Advocate General of the Army to the Secretary of War," and I inclose also the franked envelope in which they were received. This letter, with its inclosure, is, I am advised, being given enormous public distribution—70,000 are to be sent out, I understand primarily to members of the Bar throughout the country, in official penalty envelopes bearing the "Official Business" frank of "The War Industries Board," Washington.

The Wigmore letter is in form and substance a purely private communication addressed by one lawyer to his professional brethren upon a purely professional subject. It is designed in part as a personal reply to my speech upon the subject of military justice in the Senate, Jan. 3 last. The writer frankly states throughout the communication that it is an expression of his own personal views and is in no sense an official communication upon the public business. In one place he says:

In addressing you in this direct fashion, I am deliberately breaking through the etiquette of the military service rigorously observed by me since my call to active duty in July, 1917. I am on the point of receiving my honorable discharge, (I hope,) within a few weeks, and I speak to you in this letter not merely as an officer of the army but also a member of the bar of thirty years standing, who has happened to have intimate observation of the methods of military justice during the war, as well as of the principal personages in charge of it in Washington.

And then, after declaring it to be his purpose to speak out in defense of the existing system, he says:

I therefore make this personal appeal to my fellow-members of the bar to peruse the inclosed letter and to give due weight to its presentation.

These communications, consisting of some seventy pages, all appear to have been printed at the Government Printing Office, and presumably at Government expense. But the principal purpose in calling the matter to your attention is to be found in the obvious fact that the transmission of this personal communication through the mails of the United States as official business at public expense is in flagrant violating of the penal laws of the United States prohibiting free transmission of private matter. It is to be observed also that the subject matter of of the commeunication can have no possible relationship to the business of the War Industries Board, and, besides, it is thought that the board has long since ceased to exist.

Accordingly, I have the honor to request that you cause this matter to be investigated with a view to applying the law to any such as may be found to have violated it. Very respectfully.

Incls.

Wants Wigmore Disciplined.

"Colonel Wigmore is in civil life a law professor. During the war he has been an official of the Judge Advocate General's Department. He is still an officer and was an officer at the time he prepared and sent out this communication.

"I regard his conduct as not only violative of the statutes made to protect the mails and the public treasury, but by reason of his criticisms of the proceedings before the Senate Committee of myself and of another officer of the army, I regard his conduct as conduct unbecoming an officer, of which the Secretary of War should take notice with a view to disciplinary action. Frankly, I do not expect the Secretary of War to do his duty in this regard.

"Colonel Wigmore is one of four or five officers who formerly served in the now defunct office of the Provost Marshal General, but who are now being retained in the service by the Secretary of War, upon the recommendation of the Judge Advocate General, to compile data in defense of the existing court-martial system and distribute them at public expense throughout the United States.

"The Secretary of War has a way of saying that communications which, to his embarrassment, point out the deficiencies of the existing system of military justice, are not 'helpful.' A reading of the Wigmore letter will prove convincing that the letter itself is not and cannot be helpful to the bar of the country, nor hurtful to the cause of military justice reform. I should, however, expect it to be resented. The frequent use of the first personal pronoun indicates perhaps a certain personal vanity and presumptuousness, and the letter also serves as a method of self-advertisement at public expense. It is a quite harmless manufactured production.

"The author of the commupnication conceded that he has been in no position to know anything about the subject during this war. He says: 'My official duties, however, have been almost entirely in the office of the Provost Marshal General, and I have not prepared (with a single exception) any official opinions on court-martial records. I am, therefore, not implicated in any criticisms upon the court-martial system.'

"Untrue and Misleading."

"He should have added—and perhaps with even greater truth—that he knows nothing about the court-martial system in any respect. His own letter and its inclosure have been shown, rather conclusively I think, to be utterly untrue and misleading. He is simply the counsel for the Secretary of War and the Judge Advocate General, engaged in special advocacy in aheir behalf.

"This gentleman, it may be remembered, has been the busy champion of the views—I should say, perhaps, erstwhile views—of the Secretary of War. He has been furnished an office, several commissioned assistants, and an office force for the formulation and dissemination of these views. It was he to whom the Secretary of War committed the task of preparing the letter from Mr. Baker to General Crowder of March 1 last, in which the former directed the latter to prepare a letter reassuring the people of the beneficence of the existing court martial system and to impugn those who would dare question it, and in which he had the distinguished Secretary say that the existing system was one which gave almost perfect justice.

"Since then the Secretary has seen a light that does not seem to have radiated to his military advisers. Their defense of the existing system hardly harmonized with the public statement made yesterday, in which the Secretary professed to accept many of the views of General Ansell as to the reformation of the existing court-martial system, views which, it must be remembered, are at the base of the Chamberlain bill, and which require the eradication of the existing evils which Colonel Wigmore and General Crowder so doughtily champion. This gross abuse of official position and the franking privilege is one of the thousand evidences of the length to which the Secretary of War will go and permit his subordinates to go in support of a discredited system of military justice.

"GEORGE W. CHAMBERLAIN."

Resents "Defamation."

Colonel Wigmore's letter, as mailed out with copies of the Wigmore pamphlet, after speaking of his experience in the War Department, says in part:

"I harve nothing to hope and nothing to fear from the authorities of the War Department. I have always, in our civil profession, acted sympathetically and spoke frankly in the cause of the reform of justice. My record shows that I do not belong either with the reactionaries or with the Bolshevists."

"These circumstances are mentioned to indicate that I have adequate grounds for a correct and untrammeled opinion, as an observer and a member of the bar, upon the comparative administration of military and civil justice, and that opinion is that the inclosed letter of the Judge Advocate General is a correct and reliable description of the facts and the spirit of American military justice during the war. I see where military justice, in the light of the war's experience, can be improved; but I will not remain silent in the presence of an unmerited attack, full of exaggeration and defamation, wholly unjust both to the system itself and those able and faithful men who have borne the burden of its administration.

"The legal profession, by its foremost traditions and daily practice, is accustomed to recognize the necessity of hearing both sides before passing final judgment. I therefore make this personal appeal to my fellow-members of the bar to peruse the inclosed letter and to give due weight to its presentation."

Had Baker's Sanction, Wigmore Said.

When Colonel Wigmore was in New York a week ago he told friends that the Crowder letter, in pamphlet form, with an introductory letter written by himself, was to be sent to more than 25,000 members of the American Bar Association. Colonel Wigmore said the letter had been approved by the Secretary of War and was being held for a War Department release before being made public.

Col. Wigmore is one of Gen. Crowder's closest friends and is the officer who drafted the letter that Secretary Baker wrote to Gen. Crowder on March 1, asking Gen. Crowder to make answer to the Ansell charger. In this letter the Secretary wrote that "I have not been made to believe, by the perusal of these complaints, that justice is not done today under the military law or has not been done during the war period."

The statement he wanted Gen. Crowder to write was asked for, Secretary Baker said, by a member of the House of Representatives. Gen. Crowder's response was the letter printed, in part, in the newspapers of March 11. It was in reply to that letter that Lieut. Col. Ansell, then a Brigadier General and acting Judge Advocate General, wrote the reply which Mr. Baker refused later to make public and which was printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES last Thursday.

The introductory letter written by Colonel Wigmore, which is the basis of Senator Chamberlain's letter to Attorney General Palmer, is dated March 25. A former army officer, who is familiar with the Ansell-Crowder-Baker controversy, said last night that the original Crowder letter had been mailed to 70,000 persons in this country and that 25,000 copies of the revised letter, with the Wigmore introduction, were now being mailed to lawyers in all parts of the country.

Insist on Justice to Ansell.

Members of the recently organized Committee of Former Judge Advocates of the United States Army said yesterday that they would not permit the military justice controversy to be submerged, as they expressed it, until full justice had been done to Lieut. Colonel Ansell.

"If Secretary Baker," said Major Roscoe Stewart, Secretary of the committee, "thinks that by asking Colonel Ansell to draft a bill to reform the law along lines which Colonel Ansell has advocated, he will stop this controversy he is mistaken. He now seeks to do what he should have done weeks ago. He says that Colonel Ansell's theories are correct, yet less than a month ago he wrote General Crowder that he had not 'been led to believe that justice is not done today' under the present much criticised system. In his March 1 letter to General Crowder the Secretary wrote that 'I wish to convey to you (General Crowder) here the assurance of my entire faith that the system of military justice, both in its structure as organized by the statutes of Congress and the President's regulations, and in its operation as administered during the war, is essentially sound.'

"This morning's newspapers indicate a great change of mind on the part of the Secretary. He now authorizes the Adjutant General to write Colonel Ansell that his recommendations 'merit earnest consideration,' and that with many of Colonel Ansell's suggestions the Secretary of War 'finds hmiself in hearty concurrence.' Yet only a few weeks ago he saw fit to order Ansell's demotion. I think this is all that it is necessary to say at this time. Let the public judge the situation from the facts as they are now known."

French Say Our Fliers Sank 12 U-Boats.

BOSTON, April 8.—French records credited United States naval fliers with having damaged and possibly destroyed twelve German submarines, according to Captain Thomas C. Craven, commander of the naval aviation forces in France, who returned on the Agamemnon yesterday. His department, he said, took a more conservative view, and reported the sinking of two and the damaging of eight enemy craft.

Garrison Answers Union.

Previously, in the early afternoon, Receiver Garrison after a conference with officials and operating heads drafted a reply to the union upon the demands it had presented. The letter follows:

Brooklyn, April 8.

Mr. James Sheridan, 1713 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn:

Dear Sir—I duly received yours of April 5 in reply to mine of April 4.

I note that in your letter you state that the committee of which you are Chairman was selected by the employes of the various branches of the system at mass meetings of the employes, and that the members of the committee are also employes of the system.

I am informed that the committee of which you are Chairman is the Executive Committee of Division 867 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, and that the mass meetings referred to by you were meetings of the members of your association. If is the fact, therefore, that your committee directly represents the Amalgamated Association and indirectly represents only some of the employes of the system.

The matter of wages, working conditions, &c., are matters which directly affect the employes of the system and the managers of the system. They do not concern outsiders, and I will not deal with outsiders concerning them.

Nothing is to be gained by either side by any evasion or pretense. You, and those who are advising you in this matter, desire to obtain a recognition by the managers of the system of the Amalgamated Association and the demands of increased wages and decreased working hours, &c., put forward by you are obviously used as a means of attaining the end you desire.

It is hardly conceivable that our employes, in any great number, do not appreciate the present conditions, and that, unaffected by any outside agitation, they would think at this time of formulating and presenting demands for general wage increase or other things which increase operating expenses. They are fully aware that within a year wages have been increased in a sum totaling four millions of dollars annually, and that, as a rule, our men receive as high or higher wages than those received by those in similar employment throughout the United States.

They know that their wages have been increased in a larger proportion than the increase of living cost.

They know that $20,000,000 must be borrowed by the management to finish the construction and equipment necessary for the proper operation of the system; that for lack of money the company had to default in interest payments on its obligations, and that its operating expenses are so high now that it cannot earn enough above them to meet its other fixed charges, irrespective of any return whatever to stockholders.

No one could possibly justify or vindicate demands by our employes for increased wages or other increased operating expenses at this time, and I do not believe that any considerable number of our employes think otherwise.

What outside organizations think is best for their own purposes, I, of course, do not know. But I do know that on the question of attempting to force the management to deal with such outside organizations, the right is all on the side of the management, and I am convinced that our men will be slow to engage in an issue of that kind, which could not possibly benefit them and might be seriously to their disadvantage.

As for your suggestion about arbitration, I am of one mind with the authorities in control of the Amalgamated in believing that that question is not susceptible of arbitration. As to the arbitration of other matters, there must be two parties before there can be any arbitration, and since I will not recognize the right of an outside organization to represent our men, there are not two parties here who disagree on any matter, and, therefore, there is no basis for any arbitration. Sincerely yours,

LINDLEY M. GARRISON,
Receiver.

Acts as Court Officer.

It was pointed out that Mr. Garrison's stand against "outside labor organizations" as expressed in the letter, had been taken with the full knowledge of the court, and that as receiver of the elevated and subway lines of the B. R. T. he was acting merely as an officer of the court. It was also indicated that the officers of the company thought that the differences of the unionized employes would be adjusted without resort to a strike, which would greatly hamper business in the city and result in widespread inconvenience to the public.

Besides the receiver, among those who attended the conference at the Brooklyn Rapid Transit offices, 85 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, were Colonel Timothy S. Williams, former President of the B. R. T.; J. J. Dempsey, Vice President, and Frederick Royce, General Manager. James Sheridan, to whom the reply was addressed, is Chairman of the Executive Committee of Division 867 of the Amalgamated, with whom the receiver had the former correspondence.

O'RYAN AGAIN HEADS NEW YORK GUARD

ALBANY, N. Y., April 8.—Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, commander of the 27th Division and former head of the New York National Guard, has been assigned to command the New York Guard, Adjt. Gen. Charles W. Berry announced today. He will at once establish his headquarters in the Municipal Building, New York.

In his order placing General O'Ryan at the head of the guard, Adjt. Gen. Berry directed:

"The organization, corps, departments, and other units of the New York Guard which now exist and which perpetuate the historical continuity and traditions of the New York National Guard, will be continued until further orders. The Commanding General will continue the reorganization of the State military forces as outlined in the report and recommendations of the Committee on Reorganization approved by the Governor."

A bill designed to carry out Governor Smith's recommendation that the Military Training Commission be abolished and that physical and disciplinary training be provided for boys from 16 to 19 years of age, was introduced in the Legislature today by Senator John A. Lynch of Richmond. The measure would provide for the establishment by the Department of Education of State camps for boys. The Commissioner of Education would be permitted, with the advice of the Major General of the National Guard, to substitute military drills wholly or in part for physical training. The bill carries an appropriation of $175,000.

EXAMINING DISABLED MEN.

550 Cared For Last Month by War Risk Bureau Surgeons.

At the offices of the medical unit established at 280 Broadway by the United States Public Health Service to co-operate with the War Risk Insurance office, 550 disabled soldiers, sailors, and marines were examined last month, it was announced by the surgeon in charge yesterday. Plans are now being perfected to handle the large numbers expected to apply when the New York City troops in the 77th Division return.

Men disabled from wounds, injuries, or sickness during service and have been discharged may file their claims with the Superintendent, War Risk Bureau, Room 108. Their necessary papers will be prepared by assistants, and they will then be taken to the examination rooms where the officers of the Health Service will make the necessary examination t complete the claim. Seven medical officers have been detailed for the work Applicants needing operation or special care, such as tubercular patients, will be sent to hospitals and sanitarium, established by the Government all over the United States for its disabled soldiers.

The Element of Time

A few years ago a young man went into a large national bank in New York City for the purpose of opening an account. He had $750. He was tritely informed that deposits of less than $1,000 were not acceptable. He left crestfallen and deeply chagrined. The few years between that time and the present have passed rapidly. That same young man's account is now very desirable. He banks with another institution which accepted his business in a friendly and helpful spirit, and the officers of which have always been glad to be of service and assistance to him on the broad basis that he deserved such recognition from the standpoint of character and worth.

Our policy is in direct opposition to the experience of the young man when trying to make his initial deposit, as recited above. We recognize his growing importance and are glad to be of service in such ways as we consistently can.

LONDON, April 7.—The Air Ministry has issued a statement announcing that all its resources are to be employed "to secure successful flights by British machines" in the transatlantic flight for The Daily Mail Prize. Some firms that wished to compete were without machines, owing to the whole output being under contract to the Government. The Air Ministry has released machines to them when necessary. Other firms were without the necessary engines, instruments, and wireless telegraph apparatus, and the same facilities have been afforded to secure these. The Ministry has endeavored to secure shipping priority, both for machines and pilots, in order to facilitate the arrangements for making the start from the American side of the Atlantic at the earliest possible moment.

The Air Ministry points out that pilots of machines may obtain assistance by means of wireless communication with passing ships. With this end in view, ships have been asked to assist in every possible way. The Marconi Company is instructing its ship operators to render every possible assistance.

Ships which hear aircraft during the night have been asked to fire lights to attract the airmen's attention. Should the vessel, however, sight an airplane and receive no wireless signals, she will send her position by wireless three or four times. In case its transmitter has broken down, an airplane in distress will fire a series of white Verrey lights at short intervals, or will send a S O S call. Ships have been warned that if such signals are observed or received, or if an aricraft is seen to be in difficulties, every endeavor should be made to go to the rescue.

Weather reports are being obtained by the Air Ministry from the United States Weather Bureau, the Canadian Meteorological Office, Newfoundland home stations, and ships along the route. Efforts are also being made to secure regular weather information from meteorological stations at the Azores. The Lisbon Air Ministry Meteorological Staff will forward special reports based on information obtained from these sources to the Royal Air Force's meterological officer at Newfoundland and the United States Weather Bureau, which will keep in close touch with the competitors before the start, and will forward all weather information to them as soon as it is received. The competitors starting from this side will receive weather forecasts direct from the Air Ministry.

As the competitors' machines are fitted with wireless appartus for short-wave message only, it is impossible to communicate forecasts or warnings direct from the land stations during the flight, and the method of transmission must therefore be via ships along the route. These vessels will also report surface weather conditions in their own neighborhood when they are able to get into touch with passing aircraft. The Marconi Company will help in collecting and transmitting this information from land stations and ships free of charge during the competition.

The Daily Mail's Limerick correspondent says it is expected that Major Wood will make a westward attempt on a Shortt biplane from Ireland about Thursday week.

The aerial experts at the Royal Aero Club are watching anxiously for news from the United States. The are speculating on the probabilities of several American "dark horses" entering for the transatlantic flight.

They realize there is no reason why Americans should go to Newfoundland, whence the British competitors will start. They can start from whereever they please on the American coast. They must, of course, formally enter before they start if they wish to compete for The Daily Mail prize, but they are not required to give long notice. Any day now may bring news of unexpected American competitors.

Experts here are in no way cast down by the difficult conditions the Sopwith team is finding in Newfoundland. As long as the competitors can get their machines to the aerodrome they see no reason why they should not start.

"It would be quite easy to clear away sufficient ground to give the airplanes room to take off," said the secretary of the Royal Aero Club today.

If it freezes next week, when other conditions will probably be propitious, the machines can run over the frozen crest of snow, and if it thaws they could lay down planks and so construct a platform large enough for a preliminary run."

The latest entry announced today is a Handley-Page machine, one of the planes built especially for a bombing trip to Berlin. There is considerable question as to the possibility of its reaching Newfoundland in time, but it will be a formidable competitor if it does.

Its wings have 126 feet span, and its length is sixty-five feet. It is fitted with four Rolls-Royce engines of 350 horse-power each and it is intended to carry 2,000 gallons of petrol for the trip, three pilots and navigators and one wireless operator.

TRIAL FLIGHT SATURDAY.

Sopwith Transatlantic Team Ready, Weather Permitting.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 8.—The first trial flight of the Sopwith biplane in which Harry Hawker and Lieut. Commander MacKenzie Grieve, British aviators, plan to cross the Atlantic, will be made next Saturday if weather conditions are favorable. At present the soft condition of the ground around the hangar makes it impossible to move the machine. It is expected that the wireless equipment will be installed by Thursday, when tests will be made through the British Admiralty wireless station in the vicinity.

A contract for one thousand gallons of gasoline held here for Captain Hugo Sundstedt, a Swedish naval reservist, who has applied for American citizenship papers, has been cancelled. He was planning a trans-Atlantic flight from Bayonne, N. J., by way of Newfoundland, and the cancellation is taken to indicate that he has either abandoned the trip or chosen a different route.

FRENCH AERIAL MAIL ROUTES.

Seven Are in Operation, Three Being Strictly Military.

PARIS, April 8.—Seven aerial mail services are in operation in France at the present time.

The routes are: Paris-Valenciennes, Paris - Brussels, Strasbourg - Longwy, Brey-Nancy, Paris-Bordeaux, Paris-St. Nazaire, and Tarascon-Nice. The Paris-Valenciennes, Strasbourg-Longwy, and Bricy-Nancy services are strictly military.

STARTS AGAIN FOR CAPE VERDE

French Aviator Begins Second Attempt to Cross Atlantic.

VERSAILLES, April 8, (Associated Press.)—Lieut. Jean Pierre Fontan started on a flight today to Casablanca, Morocco, from which town he will proceed to Dakar, in the French colony of Senegal, and thence to the Cape Verde Islands, with the intention of attempting a flight across the Atlantic from the Islands. He is accompanied by a mechanician, Philibert Cahouet.

A dispatch from London under date of March 18, said that according to reports from Paris, Lieutenant Fontan left Villacoublay for Dakar on March 16, but was compelled to land southeast of Blois because of a cracked cylinder. Lieutenant Fontan planned a flight from Dakar to Pernambuco, Brazil. The distance from the Cape Verde Islands to Pernambuco is 1,616 miles.

BARRED FROM OCEAN FLIGHT.

Argentine Government Refuses to Let Capt. Zuloaga Make Attempt.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, April 8.—Captain Zuloaga, the Argentine aviator who in 1918 crossed the Andes Mountains in a balloon, recently asked permission of the Argentine War Minister to attempt an airplane flight across the Atlantic.

It was announced today that the War Department had refused the aviator's application for permission to make the attempt. The Captain is the Argentine Military Attaché at Paris.

PROTEST FROM WOMEN.

Republican Club Resolution Calls Voters' League Non-American.

Resolutions were adopted at the annual meeting of the Woman's Republican Club, at 54 West Fortieth Street, yesterday, protesting against the recent action of the Woman's Suffrage Party in forming a league of women voters as a non-partisan party, declaring that "it is a menace to our national life and un-American in principle." Copies of the resolution will be sent to the Woman's Suffrage Party leaders.

At a luncheon that followed Senator William H. Calder spoke on "Republicanism," assailing the Democratic Administration as autocratic and declaring that if President Wilson returned from Paris with an involved treaty he would refuse to support the League of Nations. These officers were chosen: Mrs. James Griswold Wentz, re-elected President; Vice Presidents, Mrs. Marcus M. Marks, Mrs. Charles Bryan, Mrs. Albert H. Gleason, and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt; Treasurer, Mrs. Emil Glogau; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Paul Crandall; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Henry Schley.

Employment Office Bill Signed.

ALBANY, April 8.—Governor Smith today signed the Donohue bill, making available $50,000 for additional employment offices and branches to meet the emergency created by the curtailment of the Federal Employment Service.

SENATE ORDERS BRIBE INQUIRY

paper men closely with regard to proceedings before the committee.

The executive meeting was of morethan an hour's duration. Senator Thompson indicated that he would prefer to make his statement to "four or five friends," and the sub-committee was named. After the meeting members of the sub-committee were secretive, but it was learned that Senator Thompson told them who the man was who he said made the bribe offer. Senator Thompson told the sub-committee that he had known this man for some time and had had several talks with him at the Capitol with regard to legislation pending before the Public Service Committee, of which he is Chairman, but that the offer of the alleged bribe was not made at the Capitol, but at the Republican Club in New York City some time after the Carson-Martin bill was introduced. The man, Senator Thompson said, had been here during the session representing important public utility interests.

Senator Thompson was asked if he could make any suggestion as to how this story could be corroborated. It is understood that nothing very helpful was proposed by the Senator.

Former High Official Involved.

It was learned that "very incidental" mention was made of a certain former high State official who, according to Senator Thompson, approached him at a hotel in New York City and told him that he was authorized to assure the Seantor by a prominent official of a big traction concern that, if he would support or do nothing to obstruct the passage of the Carson-Martin bill he would receive important moral and financial support to land the Governorship next year, both in the primaries and in the general campaign to follow. It was admitted in a responsible quarter that it might become necessary to call as a witness this former high State official, whose identity is carefully guarded by the lawmakers.

The narrative of Senator Thompson was listened to with absorbed interest. It did not take long in the telling. The rest of the time was occupied by the sub-committee in drafting the resolution for the investigation. In this work Senator Thompson was invited to assist. He sat with the committee while the resolution was being framed.

The Senate had been in session about half an hour when the Judiciary Committee was ready to report. Chairman Burlingame merely told the Senate that Senator Thompson had appeared before the committee and given some information, whereupon he offered the resolution and moved its adoption.

Senator Cotillo of New York, a Democrat, offered a substitute resolution, which was drafted by him last night, Senator Thompson and others collaborating. This provided for an investigation by a joint committee of the Senate and Assembly, with the Lieutenant Governor as Chairman, which was to make its report to the Legislature of 1920. Several Senators urged Senator Cotillo to withdraw the substitute resolution.

"Senator Thompson has openly declared on the floor of this Senate that he held the Judiciary Committee under suspicion, and has voiced a peremptory demand for a proper setting of the stage," said Senator Cotillo. "Now let him set the stage himself, so that the scenery may be satisfactory."

Committee Resolution Satisfactory.

"The Burlingame resolution is quite satisfactory to me," said Senator Thompson, quietly. "This is now the Senate's investigation, and I am prepared to go ahead under any measure the Senate regards proper. If it suits the Senate it suits me."

"Is it broad enough? Does the Senator feel that, under this instrument, he can go ahead and investigate to his heart's content?" persisted Senator Cotillo, not without a tinge of sarcasm.

"Yes," said Senator Thompson.

"And the Senator is ready to give whole-hearted assistance?"

Senator Thompson said he was. The Burlingame resolution was then adopted without dissent.

The contempt charge pending against Senator Thompson when the Senate adjourned in the early morning hours was not mentioned in the proceedings held later in the day. Through his statement before the Judiciary Committee the Senator purged himself of this.

Senator Thompson said after the resolution had been adopted that he was well satisfied with the way things had turned out.

"The move made last night, which was for the purpose of bringing about a premature explosion, which they hoped would destroy the man who carried in the dynamite before he could plant it where it would do the most good for the people of the State, has been nullified, and now we are going to have an investigation which I believe will be on the level and bring results," he said.

Senator Burlingame said the investigation would be begun at the earliest possible moment. Many Senators do not agree with Senator Thompson that the inquiry will result in any disclosures that will be of value.

"I do not intend that any time shall be lost in getting the investigation under way, nor that it shall be permitted to get away from the immediate object," said Senator Burlingame. "The report that a $500,000 bribe was offered Senator Thompson will be sifted first, and on this we hope to be able to report while the session is still on. The committee will begin its hearings as soon as witnesses are available.

Passage of Bill in Assembly.

Until almost the last minute it was expected that the Assembly would put off action on the Carson-Martin bill until after the Senate had concluded its investigation of the bribe report. Speaker Sweet, however, is said to have insisted on "going to the bat" on the measure.

Assemblyman Mark Goldberg of New York City, a Democrat, led the opposition to the bill. He attacked it as a "monstrous piece of legislation," and declared the asking by the traction companies for increased fares was brought about through misappropriations amounting to $20,000,000, by inflated salaries paid to high officials, and by the payment of unnecessarily large dividends.

The Public Service Commission of the First District also came in for criticism. Assemblyman John Kennedy of Queens charged that it was "always on the side of the corporations and against the interests of the people."

Assemblyman Louis Martin, of Oneida, sponsor for the bill, denied that any outside influence was at work to obtain passage of the measure. He denied that the traction interests of the State were of any particular interest to him, and in answer to a question by Assemblyman Goldberg declared that the bill had been given to him for introduction by Harry B. Weatherwax, of Albany, Chairman of the New York State Electric Railway Association. Mr. Martin pointed out that forty-two cities in the State, through their Chambers of Commerce favored the bill.

"The men in those cities," he said, "do not fear the coming elections."

Mr. Martin added that 118 banks in the State, of which number only fifteen were New York City banks, were for the bill.

"And it can't be that all these men go about bribing people," he said. He added that he had introduced the bill, not in behalf of the traction interests, but to protect the innocent holders of traction bonds throughout the State.

Senator Thompson announced tonight that he had discovered a "joker" in the Fowler-Rowe Municipal Ownership bill, which has the backing of the City Club and the Mayor's Conference, and that it was put in to mask a move to make it possible for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit and the Interborough to secure through the Public Service Commission for the First District all the ends that would be attained through the enactment of the Carson-Martin bill.

"I have called the attention of Senator Fowler to this," said the Senator. "He was astounded at the discovery. He said the 'joker' had been inserted without his knowledge and he would have it eliminated before the bill was passed."

Vote on 6-Cent Fare Bill.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 8, (Associated Press.)—The Carson-Martin bill passed the Assembly with one vote to spare, the vote being 77 yeas and 68 nays. Fifteen Republicans voted with most of the Democrats and both Socialists against the bill. Two Democrats, C. C. Johnson and Beasley, voted affirmatively with the majority. The fifteen Republicans were: Adler, Bewley, Caulfield, Harris, Hawkins, Hopkins, Judson, N. U. Miller, Pellet, Slacer, Steinberg, Ullman, Weiss, Wells, and Whitcomb. Speaker Sweet was recorded in favor of the measure. The following members were not recorded: Duke, Gage, and Webb, Republicans, and Klingmann and Patrzykowski, Democrats.

At no time during the debate of nearly two hours was a direct reference made to the Thompson "Slush Fund" allegations.

FEDERAL DRUG RAID NETS SIX DOCTORS

ADDICTS HERDED BY POLICE

Action Taken Under the Harrison Law, Recently Upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Using the broad powers conferred by the Harrison Anti-Narcotic Law for the first time, the Federal Government last night reached into New York City and struck heavily at the drug traffic, arresting six physicians and four druggists and herding more than 200 addicts, shaken, quivering physical wrecks, not one of them more than 30 years old, into Police Headquarters.

The raids came with the suddenness of a shot, and were worked out and directed by Major Daniel L. Porter, Supervising Internal Revenue Agent for this district, the same "Shadow" Porter who came here a month ago after practically banishing illicit stills from the mountains of Tennessee, Virginia, and the Carolinas. Under arrest, charged in warrants issued by United States Commissioner Hitchcock with illegal dealing in narcotics, are:

DR. LEOPOLD HARRIS, 46 years old, practicing at 317 East Thirteenth Street.

DR. HENRY HARRIS, 27 years old, nephew of the foregoing and in practice with him at the Thirteenth Street address, but living at 914 Simpson Street, the Bronx.

DR. LOUIS FALK, 31 years old, of 331 Grand Street.

DR. A. L. CORDOZA and DR. DAVID M. BROWN, with offices at 1,982 Lexington Avenue.

JULIUS NELSON, store at 275 Broome Street, alleged prescriptionist for Dr. Falk.

J. FREILICH, store at First Avenue and Sixteenth Street, who is accused of filling the prescriptions issued by the Harrises.

Menace to the City.

The decision to attack the drug traffic in this city was reached some months ago, it was said last night, after many reports had gone to Washington indicating a steady increase in the illicit use of cocaine, heroin, morphine and other narcotic poisons; reports which were supported by the recent utterances of Health Commissioner Copeland warning that drugs were fast becoming a menace to the city. Although prepared to go ahead with the campaign, the agents of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, going on their assumption that the mainstays of the traffic were unscrupulous physicians, were unable to take action because of the legal protections enjoyed by the profession.

In the latter part of February, however, as pointed out at headquarters, the United States Supreme Court rendered a decision which interpreted the Harrison law so as to give the enforcing officers almost limitless authority. Major Porter worked for some weeks at Washington, and then with a strong force of special agents—men from all professions and trades, from lawyers and physicians to steamfitters and clerks—came to New York.

He immediately got in touch with Police Lieutenant Henry Scherb of the Narcotic Squad, and joining forces a systematic investigation of the drug traffic was begun. For weeks the agents loitered at night near drug stores, keeping tab on the customers and observing from window corners the relations between purchaser and seller. While the drug store watchers kept their vigil, others noted the sort of people that came for treatment to neigborhood doctors. In several instances the sleuths watching the physicians maintained lodgings across the street, or nearby, so that day and night scrutiny was maintained.

Slowly the evidence mounted, and place after place was absolved or found suspicious. Last night the revenue agents and the police set the stage for the round-up at a final conference at Police Headquarters. One by one as the streets darkened the men slipped out of Headquarters and were off to their posts. Some were merely to take care of long lines of trembling men they knew would be forming at certain drug stores; others were to again watch certain brass-plated doors, while others were to apply for treatment for "cures" for the habits they said they had.

Among the latter were Detectives Boylan, Moog, and Hagen, posing as "cokeys" with twitching faces and unkempt attire. According to the story these men told at Headquarters, when they were laying the foundation for their charges, they applied for treatment at the office of Dr. Harris. With true simulation they told of their plight and found, they asserted, that, for 50 cents each they could get prescriptions written for 15 grains of dope; for $1 twenty grains could be had, for $1.50 25 grains, and for $2 30 grains. They said they were directed to the drug store of Freilich, where the prescriptions were filled.

Other detectives visited the offices of the other physicians arrested, and the drug stores. The revenue agents and the police later said that in all $30,000 worth of narcotics were confiscated, half that amount being taken from the Freilich store. Dr. Falk, according to the police and the agents, was selling prescriptions for narcotics as low as 25 cents each. Major Porter said his men had found that once a prescription was offered at one of the drug stores the amount of narcotics obtainable was limited only by the purchaser's ability to pay.

Youths Ruined by Drugs.

Just as the accused physicians and druggists began to arrive at Headquarters the police started to bring in the addicts; thin, sunken eyed, furtive, and pale, some of them were; others, apparently in the flush of a recent administration of drugs, were rosy, bright-eyed, and confident of manner. So, when the 200 were crowded into two rooms in the basement of Headquarters the rooms echoed with laughs and jests, with groans, and eager pleas for "the stuff."

As the men, youthful in age but every one decrepit from drugs, arrived, they were ushered into the presence of two lawyer-agents, who questioned them. Those who plainly had just taken drugs invariably refused to talk, or if they did they spun long yarns of no value. The trembling ones, however, were ready to reveal all they knew, providing only that drugs were promised.

When all of those taken in the raids had reached headquarters, the examining agents moved their desks right into the rooms and brought in the arrested physicians and druggists. By this time the addicts were in a wretched state—men were alternately screaming and laughing, some were trying to roll upon the floor, while others clawed at their clothing or at their mouths—the men under arrest watching it all.

Soon one of the victims, about 22 years old, a sailor discharged from the service just three months ago, collapsed from lack of stimulant. Dr. A. J. Boone, one of the Internal Revenue Agents, treated him and brought him around. He had hardly restored life to the shriveled body of the ex-sailor, when another man, not yet 20 years old, but five years a drug addict, fell in a faint. He, too, was revived, and told Dr. Boone that he had tried to cure himself—"I got down once to fifteen grains a day," but he had found the fight too hard.

After obtaining the statements of the addicts, all but one was released. According to the agents, the records of the physicians and the druggists were seized and an examination of the books of Sherman disclosed that he had obtained ninety-five ounces of cocaine since March 20. In the store of Freilich, the police said, 250 ounces was found without revenue stamps, this constituting an additional violation of the law.

Discussing the raids, Major Porter and Lieutenant Scherb declared that they were only the beginning of a city-wide campaign to stamp out the drug evil. Referring to the gruesome sight which the drug-hungry men presented in the basement of Headquarters, Major Porter termed it "an exhibition of the results of the greatest destructive agent which is attacking our manhood today."

The penalty for violation of the Harrison law is five years in prison or a fine of $2,000, or both.

FURNITURE DEALERS DINE.

Col. Arthur Woods Says Unemployment Problems Are Being Met.

Problems of unemployment were discussed by Colonel Arthur Woods, who was appointed by Secretary of War Baker to aid discharged soldiers in obtaining work, last night at the dinner of the New York Furniture Exchange Association in the Hotel Pennsylvania. C. Ludwig Baumann presided and other speakers were Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the Republican County Committee; A. H. Arons, President of the Association, R. Braun, and Albert Leon.

Colonel Woods spoke of the nation-wide co-operation he was receiving and said the people need have no fear of the eventual solving of the unemployment problem. The majority of the thousands of soldiers without work in New York were men who did not live in this city before the war, he said.

"The men returning from the war are better fitted for the tasks of peace than before they went away," he continued. "The great feeling that stays with them now is the yearning to do better things. They can't understand why the things they did before do not now seem worth while. A former elevator man with two wound stripes and a decoration told me that the idea of running an elevator up a shaft only to bring it down again no longer appealed to him. He felt the war had equipped him for better things."

Mr. Koenig said the business world should do everything possible to restore capital and labor to its normal state. He suggested that employers give a certain time each week to instructing their employes of foreign birth in the fundamentals of American government.

TEACHERS PLAN DEFENSE.

Union's Executive Committee Votes to Back Up Officers.

With reference to the decision of the Board of Education to bar the Teachers' Union from meeting in school buildings because of statements made by members of the union on March 29 in Public School 27, it was said at the offices of the union, 70 Fifth Avenue, yesterday that the Executive Committee had voted unanimously to support the officers against any charges brought by the Board of Education. It was also announced that the case of the teachers would be discussed at the Public Forum of the Church of the Messiah next Sunday night, when Dr. Henry Neumann, head of the Brooklyn Ethical Culture Schools; Robert M. Lovett, editor of The Dial, and Norman Thomas, editor of The World Tomorrow, would speak.

ROOSEVELT ISSUES CALL TO VETERANS

Officers Want to Perpetuate America's Principles and to Keep Alive War Comradeships.

Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., announced yesterday that a caucus of American soldiers and sailors would be held in St. Louis on May 8, 9 and 10 to consider plans for the formation of the organization of service men to be called the American Legion. He is chairman of the temporary committee of organization and the vice chairman is Lieut. Col. Bennett Clark, of Missouri, a son of Champ Clark. The secretary of the temporary organization is Lieut. Col. Eric Fisher Wood of Pennsylvania.

In the call for the caucus it was explained that the idea for the organization of war veterans had originated among officers in the overseas service and that the preliminary caucus of about 1,000 officers and men was held in Paris on March 15. It was decided that a second caucus should be held later in the United States so that the men in service in this country might have a voice in the plans for the organization and in the final selection of the name.

"The purpose was to take the necessary initial steps toward the formation of a non-partisan and non-political association of the veterans of the Great War," says the call issued by Colonel Roosevelt, "an association which should keep alive the principles of justice, freedom and democracy for which these veterans fought; to preserve to future generations the history and incidents of their participation in the war; and to cement and perpetuate the ties of comradeship formed in service.

"The duties of the caucus will be to adopt a tentative constitution, and to appoint an executive committee which will act in conjunction with the representatives of the Paris caucus to make definite arrangements whereby the organization of the American Legion will be perfected and whereby all officers and enlisted men who have served in the military and naval establishments of the United States at any time between April 6, 1917 and Nov. 11, 1918, will participate in the election of representatives to a convention to be convened on or about Nov. 11. This convention will be composed of delegates from all States, duly elected by the veterans, and will meet with full power and authority to adopt, modify, or reject the steps taken by the caucus, and to take such further action as may be necessary.

"The temporary committee feels that at least half the delegates should be enlisted men, and that the American Legion will be a society devoted to the interests of all American comrades of the Great War, whether they served their country as officers or in the ranks."

Governors of all the States, as well as the adjutant generals, have been invited by the temporary committee to attend the caucus as honorary delegates. The number of soldier and sailor delegates to be sent to St. Louis by each State is to be double the number of its representation in Congress. The announcement said also that invitations would be sent also to "patriotic or veterans' associations already in existence and founded upon similar principles." The members of the temporary committee by States are:

LEGION MEETS IN PARIS.

Executive Committee Warns Erring Political Parties.

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune.

PARIS, April 7.—A solemn warning to erring political parties was sounded today at a special meeting of the Executive Committee of the American Legion—the new born organization which is to be the G. A. R. of this war, and expects 4,000,000 members. The ideals and purposes of the American Legion as expressed by Brig. Gen. William G. Price of the Keystone Division were applauded by privates, noncommissioned officers, and Colonels in the conference.

"It is unfortunate to put the American Legion in comparison with political parties," the General said, "but it will uphold what is right so firmly and forcefully that whatever party is wrong will learn to fear it. It is a brotherhood of men who have realized thoroughly their responsibilities to the nation. Those who have been over here are going back with altered ideas about many things. The armistice has been signed, peace is near, but the men of the legion have just begun to fight for those things they have been taught most dear.

Today's meeting was presided over by Colonel Milton J. Foreman of Chicago, who was made Permanent Chairman. In America a similar committee is working to organize returned soldiers, under the direction of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., to co-operate with this committee. Colonel Foreman was authorized to appoint a sub-committee of fifteen. As members of the committee of the A. E. F. go home they will merge with the committee in the United States. The consolidated committee will meet in June for a permanent organization for the first convention of American veterans of the world war on Nov. 11.

DETAINED SOLDIERS GO TO CAMPS HERE

2,700 Americans Who Fought in British Army to be Discharged at Mills and Merritt.

SHIP HAD NO MANIFEST

But Mauretania Was Assured by Cable of No Immigration Difficulties, It Is Said.

After being detained on board the Mauretania for nineteen hours after their arrival on Monday evening, the 2,700 officers and men who went from the United States to enlist in the British Army in 1915, 1916, and 1917, and were expatriated from their own country, were taken from the Cunard pier, foot of West Thirteenth Street, at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon in ferryboats. They were split into two parties, 2,100 being sent to Camp Mills via Long Island City, while 600 were sent to Camp Merritt, N. J.

The delay, according to Deputy Immigration Commissioner Byron H. Uhl, was due to the ship not having any manifest containnig particulars regarding the 2,700 troops or any papers to prove the identity of the men, as to whether they had been citizens of the United States or residents in the country before they enlisted in the British Army.

Purser Spedding of the Mauretania told the immigration authorities that the officers and men were put on board at Southampton as military passengers to New York, and he did not manifest them as he would have done in the case of civilians. The officers and men were being paid by the British Government until they had been demobilized in this country, he said.

The officers who came with them to attend to the mustering out here, also had to stop on board for the night, and there was no trouble with the troops when they were told that orders had come for them to go to camps near New York.

The 600 who lived in or around New York felt it more than the others, because their folks had been waiting outside the pier yesterday for ten hours or more and never caught a glimpse of them.

Lieutenant H. L. Whitelaw and Captain R. W. Melklejohn of Paradise Island, Fla., who were among the officers arriving on the Mauretania, said they were present in Southampton when a British officer showed a cable dispatch from Washington to Purser Spedding stating that the 2,700 troops would be allowed to land in New York without any difficulty on the part of the immigration authorities.

The officer commanding Camp Mills said last night:

"Two thousand and one hundred officers and men, belonging to the United States, who have been serving in the British Army in France from six months to three and a half years, arrived here this evening with 110 British officers and non-commissioned officers, who were sent over with them. We have given them the most comfortable quarters the camp affords, and after they have been disinfected the troops will be manifested and sent to their homes.

"British officers were here today and they said that there would be twenty-eight days' pay for each man and transportation to his home town when he was ready to start, which should be within forty-eight hours."

General McManus, Assistant Chief at the Debarkation Depot, Hoboken, and his staff did all they could on Monday to get the 2,700 troops released but were powerless to do anything because they had not been manifested. Each one had his protection paper signed by the United States Consul General in London and the British Foreign Office to show he had joined the British Army in Canada or England as an American, but these were not regarded as sufficient proof by the Immigration authorities on Monday night. The soldiers were annoyed yesterday when they read that some of the newspapers had accused them of rioting, and said they knew how to obey orders by this time, and were content when they knew what was going to be done with them.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Commissioner of Immigration Caminetti said tonight that the 2,700 officers and men, including many Americans who arrived in New York yesterday on the Mauretania after having been discharged from the British Army, would be treated as aliens until their nationality was proved.

"Since the ship sailed from England without a manifest list," Mr. Caminetti said, "the immigration officials have no way of telling whether the soldiers ever lived in this country or not. I understand that besides the Americans on board there are many who lived in England and the West Indies before entering the British Army. Of course, these men will have to be treated as ordinary immigrants. The Americans will be released as soon as their identity is proved."

The Commissioner said he was unable to say whether the Cunard Line would be subject to a fine of $27,000, or $10 for each non-manifested passenger. He said that was a judicial matter which could not be decided without investigation.

WORLD WAR VETERANS' POST

First Is Organized in Boston and Named After Gen. Edwards.

BOSTON, April 8.—General Clarence R. Edwards Post No. 1 of the World War Veterans was organized at the headquarters of the Department of the Northeast today. Nelson P. Clark of Beverly was named temporary Secretary. The first member admitted was a private of the 101st Infantry, to whom had been awarded the Croix de Guerre and the Distinguished Service Cross.

A telegram received from Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who has been active in organizing the society, said a convention would be held in St. Louis May 1. Post No. 1 will send delegates.

Vanderbilt in Salvation Army Drive.

Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt yesterday accepted the chairmanship for New York City in the Salvation Army Home Service Fund Campaign scheduled for May 19-26. He will take active charge of the general and sub-committees. Commander Evangeline Booth extended the invitation and with the other Salvation Army leaders is delighted at the acceptance, for they say it indicates the new esteem and standing the Salvation Army has won as a result of its war work.

Attend Babies' Welfare Meeting.

Purchase English Hosiery

For Small Children, Girls and Boys

HOSIERY made in England is renowned for the exceptionally fine quality of yarns which enter into its weaving and for its soft finish and smooth texture, resulting in a uniformly high quality.

For service, it is not to be compared with any other Hosiery as it is able to withstand the trying tests to which children usually put it.

Its style, whether it be embodied in the unusual colorings, differently embroidered clox, or the novelty tops, is exclusive. It is particularly attractive when worn to correspond with the colored frocks or suits of children.

A Shoe Shop Where Children and Girls ARE NOT LEFT TO THE MERCY OF A SIZE RANGE

IN THE Franklin Simon Shoe Shop there are shoes made especially for children from 4 to 6 years, sizes 8 to 10½, and shoes made especially for girls from 6 to 9 years, sizes 11 to 2.

Not only are the length and width of the feet of the young child different from the older girl, but all of the proportions are different—the toe, the arch, the instep, the ankle and the heel all develop differently and the question is not one to be solved by mathematical calculation, but by study and experience.

So infants' shoes made in larger sizes do not become Franklin Simon's children's shoes—just as children's shoes in larger sizes are not Franklin Simon's girls' shoes.

ARMY AND MARINE CASUALTIES

Brings Reported Total Up To 283,622; 186 Dead in Latest Army Lists

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Three army casualty lists, containing 1,316 names, were given out at the War Department today, bringing the total for the army up to 277,090, including 4,534 prisoners released and returned, after an official recheck which makes due allowance for all changes of status so far announced and eliminates duplications. One Marine Corps casualty list, which contained 24 names, was issued, bringing the total for that arm up to 5,632. The total for the army and Marine Corps is now 283,622.

Army lists issued today contained the names of 33 killed in action, 10 died of wounds, 44 died of accident, 99 died of disease, 92 severely wounded, 77 wounded to a degree undetermined, 930 wounded slightly, and 31 missing.

The Marine Corps list contained the names of 9 killed in action, 12 died of wounds, 2 died of disease, and 1 died of accident.

PERSHING SAYS 77TH UNITS EMBARK SOON

Notifies War Department Division Is Assigned to Early Convoy.

ALDERMEN ASK FOR PARADE

Home Associations May Call Mass Meeting to Protest Against Baker's Ruling.

WASHINGTON, April 8. — Practically the entire 77th (New York National Army) Division has been assigned to early convoy, General Pershing today notified the War Department.

The following organizations of the 77th were included in today's announcement: Division Headquarters, Headquarters Troop, 153d and 154th Infantry Brigade Headquarters, 305th, 306th, 307th, and 308th Infantry Regiments; 304th, 305th, and 306th Machine Gun Battalions; 152d Field Artillery Brigade Headquarters, 304th, 305th, and 306th Field Artillery Regiments; 302d Engineers, 302d Engineer Train, 302d Ammunition Train, 302d Field Signal Battalion, 302d Train Headquarters, 302d Sanitary Train, 302d Mobile Ordnance Repair Shop, 77th Military Police Company, Salvage Company No. 18, and Sale Commissary Unit No. 307.

The following additional units were announced today as assigned to early return: Aero Squadrons 26, 369, 641, 642, 644, 802, and Medical Detachment and Ambulance Provisional Sections A, B, and C.

MAY CALL PROTEST MEETING.

77th Home Auxiliaries Empower Dr. Manning to Act.

At a meeting of the Home Auxiliary Association of the 77th Division held yesterday afternoon at 189 Madison Avenue resolutions were passed giving authority to the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, the Chairman, to call a mass meeting whenever he deemed such a step necessary. The meeting acted on the suggestion of Cleveland H. Dodge, who said there was a question in his mind whether a mass meeting should be held until the auxiliary could learn from the General Staff what plans were being made to bring the division back in such a manner as to permit a divisional parade.

Dr. Manning, who presided, said that the Association had been heartened by the statement made by Secretary Baker, before sailing for Europe on Monday, that efforts were being made to permit the Seventh-seventh to parade. He agreed with Mr. Dodge that it would be good policy to wait a few days for further developments before calling a general mass meeting. Meanwhile, he said, the various regimental auxiliaries associated with the Association would continue to hold meetings to voice the sentiments of the members in favor of a parade.

The Welfare Association of the 302d Ammunition Train have announced a meeting for Saturday night in the Engineers' Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, while the 306th Field Artillery Welfare Association will hold a similar meeting on Sunday night in the DeWitt Clinton High School. The Auxiliary of the 303th Field Artillery will hold a protest meeting on April 15 in the Engineers' Building.

At the suggestoin of Major S. Fullerton Weaver of the advance party of the 77th Division the association adopted as an official poster a design submitted by the advance party. The poster, which is headed "Well done, 77th," represents a doughboy being acclaimed by cheering crowds. It is planned to place the poster on sale, the proceeds to be given to the 77th Division Association.

The Board of Aldermen yesterday adopted the following resolution, which was sent to the Acting Secretary of War and the Chief of Staff of the army:

Whereas the Board of Aldermen of the City of New York has learned from statements made by officials of the War Department at Washington that plans for the parade of the 77th Division on its return to this country may have to be abandoned or materially modified; and

Whereas the City of New York has spent a considerable amount of money in preparation for the reception of all of its home-coming troops, such as the construction of grandstands and the erection of monuments and arches, which up to the present have been utilized for the parade of but one returning division, the gallant 27th; and

Whereas, The 77th Division is composed almost entirely of men residing in this city, in whose records of gallantry and heroism on the battle fields of France, notably in the bloody struggles of the Argonne Forest, this city has taken an especial pride.

Resolved, That the Board of Aldermen of the City of New York, reflecting the heartfelt and overwhelming sentiment of the city, urgently petitions the Secretary of War to so arrange matters that the 77th Division on its return to the city may parade as a fighting division, in order that the people of the city may have the opportunity to pay their tribute of homage and respect to the brave men of this division, living and dead, for the hardships they underwent and the sacrifices they made in our behalf.

Failure to have the division parade in the city will be a keen disappointment not alone to the relatives and friends of the soldiers, but to our entire citizenship; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Acting Secretary of War at Washington and to the Chief of the General Staff of the United States army.

Lieut. Col. Douglas Campbell, head of the advance party, with headquarters in the Biltmore, conferred yesterday with the Mayor's Committee on the reception plans. It was decided, according to an announcement, to go ahead with the original plans, in the belief that permission for a divisional parade would be eventually given.

Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan yesterday issued a statement in behalf of the men of his command, in which he said that the 27th Division was ready to do everything in its power to induce the War Department to accord the same parade privilege to the 77th as it had received. He said, in part:

The 27th Division has had the honor of parading in New York City, and we, all of us, should like to see the same privilege accorded the 77th Division. We stand ready to help in any way we can—by use of armories or any other facilities we may have.

Certainly the men of the 77th Division from New York City have the same desire to parade in their home city that the 27th had, and their families and friends and the people in general feel that they have the right to see them. It is the only recompense the soldier has for his service, and the same may be said of the families in relation to their sacrifices.

The refusal of the War Department to permit the parade may be construed as discrimination against the drafted men, and that would be most unfortunate.

The Executive Committee of the Association of the Eleventh Engineers voted to send the following telegram to Secretary of War Baker at a meeting held yesterday at the Metropolitan Insurance Company:

On behalf of the relatives of the 11th Engineers we respectfully urge that you terminate immediately the prolonged discrimination against that regiment in violation of your sound, definitely announced policy of "first over, first back," as far as military exigencies permit.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association has announced plans for a three-day reception in honor of the 77th Division when it arrives.

STABILITY

There have been no ups - and - downs — no fluctuations of fortune— no tidal swings of panic and prosperity, in the affairs of this organization.

For 15 years we have moved consistently, persistently forward under the stabilizing influence of an ever-growing demand for our service.

DRAMA

By John Corbin

The Hindu "Romeo and Juliet."

First Hermit	Theodore Doucet
Stage Manager	Frank Conroy
Priyamvada	Ruth Boyd
King Dushyanta	Joseph Macaulay
Charioteer	Harold Meltzer
Anasuya	Marjorie Deen
Shakuntala	Beatrice Prentice
Mathavya	Geoffrey Stein
Gautami	Grace Henderson
The Voice of Durvasas	Perry Norman
A Dancer	Joan Bliss
Second Hermit woman	Suzanne Scianla
Second Hermit	Mr. Deeter
Father Kanwa	Frank Conroy
Chamberlain	Perry Norman
First Policeman	Otto Liveright
Second Policeman	Mr. Deeter
A Fisherman	Edwin Strawbridge
Matali, Messenger of Indra	Harold Meltzer

Somehow the interesting plays do get themselves produced, even though they are classics, and from the Sanskrit! When "Shakuntala" was brought to light a hundred years ago it was immediately recognized—and by no less an authority than Goethe—as one of the few great love dramas of the world. Written some fifteen hundred years or more ago—it is variously dated as coeval with the beginning and with the end of the Roman Empire—it is as fresh to us today, and as moving, as a play of the Shakespearean era. Its dramaturgy is absolutely Elizabethan, even in surprisingly minute details, and its spirit of ingenuous passion, of maidenly charm, and of lyric loveliness finds its nearest counterpart in the predecessors of Shakespeare, especially Robert Greene. Not infrequently it rises to the level of the great master himself.

Kalidasa took his story from the Mahabharata, refashioning it freely and with great skill. King Dushyanta, while hunting in the jungle, meets and loves a rustic maiden, Shakuntala, and pledges marriage with her. But an angry god puts a cloud upon his memory, so that when she comes to his court to bear his child he does not know her and repudiates her. A goddess intervenes and carries her away through the sky. Then the King's eyes are unsealed, and he wanders in search of his bride, the prey of remorse and ceaseless longing. After six years they are reunited. The child is Bharata, hero of the great Sanskrit epic. Except for its happy ending, the story bears a striking resemblance to that of "Romeo and Juliet." The passions, though quaintly tinged with Hindu character, are deeply human and of universal appeal. The heroine is one of the lovellest figures in all drama.

The text used at the Greenwich Village is shorn of all supernatural characters, which is perhaps no great loss. But the scene in which the King, who thinks himself childless, encounters the boy Bharata, and recognizes that he has a son, can ill be spared. For the lack of it, the scene of his reunion with Shakuntala becomes quite ineffective. In costume and scenery the production is extraordinarily beautiful, and much of the acting is excellent. Frank Conroy and Harold Meltzer, each of whom plays two parts, are admirable. But the King of Joseph Macaulay is unduly languorous and sentimental, while the Shakuntala of Beatrice Prentice is a mass of graceless affectations. This lack of adequate acting in the two leading rôles is a very severe handicap upon the production as a whole.

Richard Brant	Robert Edeson
Dr. John Calvert	Wilton Lackaye
Ruth Brant	Margaret Illington
Dolie Bennett	Katharine Kaelred
Evelyn Martin	Hazel Turney
Harold Spears	Richard Taber
Hilda Jones	Amy Ongley

Undoubtedly there is a timely idea and a vital purpose behind the production of "A Good Bad Woman." The names of Margaret Illington, Robert Edeson, and Wilton Lackaye, who head the cast, and of Richard Bennett, who staged the production, are a guarantee of sound artistic endeavor. But Mr. McGuire's play, though unquestionably sincere, affords a very unstable foundation for their efforts.

The subject is birth control—or, rather, the anti side of the question. A young wife who is suffering the not unusual doubts and fears, falls under the influence of a silly and vicious friend and resolves upon illegal treatment. Her husband, a manly and right-minded fellow, singularly lacking in tact, discovers this and casts her off on the spot, though she has obviously already repented. Then putting a pistol in his pocket he arranges for a meeting with the physician. In the encounter it transpires that the operation has not been performed, the physician having planned all along to bring the wife to her senses. So a rather distressing play has a "happy" ending.

In a word, a subject which is difficult and delicate at best, requiring the utmost persuasiveness of treatment, is made the theme of crude, old-fashioned melodrama. There is even a pair of comedy young lovers, who make an exceedingly silly contribution to the discussion. The result is as painful to aesthetic sensibilities as it is to the more common standards of good taste. The young woman who required the sort of enlightenment which this play affords would be notably lacking in sense, and would thus be probably the least likely of all to profit by it.

THIS FARCE JUST A "FABLE."

COME-ON CHARLEY, a farce in three acts and five scenes by George V. Hobart. Founded on stories by Thomas Addison. At the Forty-eighth Street Theatre.

William J. Drew	Charles Abbe
Howard Garvey	Russel Parker
Dorothy Drew	Amy Leah Dennis
Jerry Page	Russell Morrison
Amanda Higgins	Eunice Elliott
Jacob Lubin	Maurice Barrett
John O'Brien	Dan Kelly
Josiah Wainwright	W. H. Dupont
Percival Teeters	Frank McCormack
Tony	Edwardo Flammero
Harry Cuthbert Lynham	Robert Rendal
Charley Carter	Lynn Overman
Mrs. Bascom	Millie Butterfield
Panatella	Estella Taylor
Maurice Bannerman	M. Tello Webb
Teddy Ball	Vinton Freedley
Victor	Pierre Fordeaux
Hugo	Alphonse Metier
Madeline Norris	Marguerite Forrest
Jennie	Miss Arpentini
Major Norris	James Hester
William Negley	Charles Keane
Robert Kearney	Charles Mason
Morton Butler	Walter Allen
Inspector Shaw	Rawlin Herbert

By programing his newest farce as a "fable," George V. Hobart has presumably sought to evade the obligation of occasionally tempering his fancy with reason and reality.

"Come-On Charley," which had its metropolitan premiere last night at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre, is a free and untrammeled excursion into the field of farce writing, and as such is never convincing, rarely humorous, and generally banal.

The adventures by which the young gentleman of the title runs $10,000 into $500,000 provide the body of the play, and these are typically absurd examples of stage finance. It was probably in realization of their absurdity that Mr. Hobart put them forward as the dream of one of his characters, but it is doubtful if even this expedient will make an audience accept them.

The performance is undistinguished save in the case of Frank McCormack, who contributes a first-rate farcical characterization to an evening in dire need of it. The first-night audience received the play with the rapture which it lavishes only upon particularly bad plays.

King George Sees 'Abraham Lincoln'

LONDON, April 8. (Associated Press.)—King George and Queen Mary tonight witnessed John Drinkwater's play, "Abraham Lincoln." The performance was in a small suburban theatre, which never before had been visited by royalty.

"Abraham Lincoln" has attracted unusual attention, and many of the Cabinet Ministers and Members of Parliament attended tonight. This was the King's first appearance at a theatre in a long time.

"COME ALONG" IS BREEZY.

Good Tunes in a Musical Comedy with Scenes in France.

Major Barbara Benton	Regina Richards
Mess Sergt. Doolittle	Harry Tighe
Lieut. Frank Marshall	Charles Stanton
Sergt. Tom McManus	Paul Frawley
Private Peanuts Barker	Allen Kearns
Madelon	Marcelle Carroll
Mrs. Crosby	Ethel Due Fre Houston
Peggy Penny	Patsie De Forest
Nurse Eveson	Lora M. Prince
Mme. Juliet	Julia Kelety
Private Jeff Scroggins	Billy Clark
Sergt. Chauncey Holmes	Dan Dawson
Gen. Baker, A. E. F.	Ernest E. Pollock
Col. Mitchell, S. A.	John Holden
Algerian	Robert Milasch
Corporal Sue Taylor	Connie Madison
Private Jane Miller	Ellen King

"Come Along," seen at the Nora Bayes Theatre last night, is an unusual musical comedy, with the scenes laid in France at the present time. The book and lyrics are the work of Bide Dudley, well known as a theatrical writer, and the airs are by John Louw Nelson, a newcomer, who appears to have plenty of catchy tunes at his finger tips.

The plot, which is discernible throughout, is prevented from being objectionably visible by a number of lively songs brought in, however, in somewhat inopportune places. The play, on the whole, is unique and refreshing, perhaps the airs were written in the trenches. The girls wore no silk stockings nor spangles, but uniforms which were carried out in every detail of the Salvation Army, Red Cross, and Y. M. C. A. The problem of the chorus men was happily overcome by putting them in khaki.

The plot concerns two fashionable youths who are in love with the same girl in the pre-war days. The rivals go to France, and their home battles are taken up anew. The private, who is really loved by the girl, insults his rival, a Lieutenant, and he is put in the guard house for insolence to a superior officer. The best side of the Lieutenant's nature is appealed to, and they all get ready to sail toward the Statue of Liberty to live happily ever after.

SIDNEY DREW NEAR DEATH.

Four Doctors in Consultation Over Actor's Critical Condition.

Sidney Drew, the actor, is critically ill at his home, 876 Park Avenue, and very little hope is entertained for his recovery. His physician, Dr. Louis Fischer of 155 West Eighty-fifth Street, said early this morning that his patient developed symptoms of uremia during the day and that his life hung by a thread.

A consultation was held during the afternoon by Dr. Fischer, Dr. Walter D. James, Dr. Charles Beck, and Dr. Brown, the latter of Detroit, and they all agreed that the condition of Mr. Drew was critical. Mr. Drew is in a semi-stupor and does not recognize his wife or his physician.

Mr. Drew was appearing with his wife in "Keep Her Smiling" in Detroit when he became ill, and although Dr. Brown, the specialist who was called, pronounced his condition serious he insisted upon being brought to his home in this city. His temperature, which was 103 on Monday, went down to 100 yesterday, giving some encouragement, but later it went up again and his condition grew worse.

He is a brother of John Drew, the actor, and father of S. Rankin Drew, who was killed in France while serving with the Lafayette Escadrille. The young aviator was a son of Mr. Drew's first wife, who was a daughter of McKee Rankin, a prominent actor in his day. His first wife died and in July, 1914, he married Miss Lucille McVey, motion picture actress.

CIRCUS BILL FOR SOLDIERS.

Special Performance, with Wounded as Honored Guests, Next Sunday.

The veterans of the overseas forces, now waiting demobilization in camps near New York, and as many of those as can be accommodated who are now on furlough or leave in New York City, will be the guests next Sunday afternoon of the Barnum & Bailey and Ringling Brothers combined circus. The special performance for the American Expeditionary Force men will be in the Garden and the entire show, from the opening spectacle to the races that bring it to an end, will be given. As far as possible there will be preference, it was stated last night, to wounded men. Further details as to the performance and the plan of ticket distribution will be announced to-day or tomorrow.

The circus is now in its second week in the Garden and up to and including last night's performance had played before more than 150,000 persons. At every performance to date the Garden has been sold out. Miss May Wirth, the Australian girl rider, who is the ring feature of this year's show, has resumed her performances after a week's absence due to illness.

A Columbia 'varsity show, the first to be given off the campus since America entered the war, will be played in the ballroom of the Hotel Plaza on the evenings of April 28, 29 and 30, and May 1. It will be a musical comedy entitled "Take a Chance," the work of undergraduates. In the cast will be Harold Horan, Charles Sawyer, Mortimer Van Raalte, Edward T. Clark, F. W. Hetfield, I. C. Safir, A. R. Taylor, D. L. Harbaugh, James M. Fox, W. Tedford, Emil Gyss, H. A. C. Rauchfuss, J. Bernardo, L. F. Manheim, H. F. Burtis, and Percival Cowan.

Boy Violinist Makes His Debut.

John Corigl[illegible], a violinist of 16 years, born in thi[illegible] of Italian parentage, made his bo[illegible] in Aeolian Hall last night, assisted at the piano by Willy Schaefer. The young man is musical, though immature, and has studied of late with Alois Trnka. He played Handel's D major sonata, Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole," and among lesser works Israel Joseph's "Hebrew Elegy," Kreisler's paraphrase of the Paderewski minuet, and Godowsky's "Valze Macabre."

A Suggestion

The New York Times dislikes to omit advertisements specifically ordered for publication on certain days, but the volume of advertising offered The Times is so great that it is frequently impossible to accommodate all, and advertisements are crowded out in order that the space allotted to news may not be encroached upon. Today 61 columns are omitted and 110 columns published.

It is suggested that wherever possible, copy scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday or Friday, upon which days The Times is congested with advertising, be transferred to Saturday or Sunday, when more space is available.

MUSIC

By James Gibbons Huneker

Winifred Byrd Plays.

We always enjoy the piano playing of Winifred Byrd. She made her last bow of the season at a recital in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. Her general performance furnished forth several reasons for her popularity. She is musical—score one. She possesses a polished technique—score two. She is invariably musical—score one, two, three. That musical element in her playing is her chiefest charm. Alone it would cloak a multitude of technical defects; if there were many to cloak. With it she might even play without brains; there are so many hen-minded pianists of several sexes who scramble over the piano as aimlessly as a chicken without a head. In this case the severed head doesn't make the seraphim. But Miss Byrd has plenty of intellect. Her readings are logical, her phrasing praiseworthy because of its formal balance, her command of color discreet, tasteful, admirable, and her various touches penetratingly musical—that word will bob up again. With all her precision her style is large. And then she has lived and worked in the tremendous neighborhood of Teresa Carreno, that Valkyr of the keyboard, a genuine pupil of the great Venezuelan artist.

All is relative, and within her scale of dynamics Winifred Byrd is a master of her means. She draws from her instrument an astonishingly large and sonorous tone, and she respects her material, for she never makes ugly noises, even in the most crashing fortissimos. That she boasts the luscious tonal quality of Guiomar Novaes would be an unjust attribution. Nevertheless, her playing is rhythmically alert, sparkling, and when the spirit moves her she can be veritably diabolic. Yesterday her program did not develop in her traits of the runaway colt; it contained no fugue, sonata or Liszt rhapsody, yet it was interesting. The opening number, the seldom heard B minor Rhapsodie, Opus 79—the other Rhapsodie in this opus is in G minor and is oftener played—was delivered in a musicianly fashion. The rhapsodic in the piece is not of the Magyar; rather does it smack of the midnight oil, though the lyric episodes in D minor and B major are lovely. To our way of thinking she work was taken at too slow a tempo, massive as it sounded. After a charming version of the F major Prelude of Chopin, the drastic and dramatic first Scherzo in B minor by the same master displayed the pianist's solid attainments. She was dramatic, tender in the lilting broken tenths of the B major section, and the climax in the coda was like a wild ride across country on a windy, moonlit night. She used the interlocked octaves; she did not strike that top-B on the first page, a nasty jump when the tempo is a rushing one. Schumann's "Children's Scenes" were naïve, plaintive, delightful; Liszt, MacDowell and Saint-Saëns comprised the rest. The audience was enthusiastic throughout.

Carolyn Willard's Recital.

Carolyn Willard, a pianist from Chicago, gave her first New York recital before a friendly audience at the Princess Theatre yesterday afternoon. She was heard in Bach's D minor fugue, Brahms's rhapsody op. 119, pieces by Scarlatti, Debussy, Chopin, Sapelnikoff, Liszt, and three Americans. In this last group were MacDowell's E minor polonaise, Howard Brockway's F major caprice, and Lulu Jones Downing's "Memory Land."

TO SING OPERA FAREWELLS.

Caruso in "Aida" and Mme. Farrar in "Butterfly" Next Week.

Florence Easton will sing the soprano rôle in "Le Prophete" at the opera tonight in place of Claudia Muzio, who is indisposed.

Caruso in "Carmen" will open the last week of the Metropolitan season next Monday, others in the cast being Farrar, Sundelius, Whitehill, and De Segurola. On Wednesday next, Barrientos, Hackett, and Whitehill will reappear in "Mireille." The following night the stars begin their farewells, the Thursday subscribers carrying off the prize of "Aida," sung by Caruso, Muzio, Matzenauer, Scotti, and Henri Scott.

For Good Friday afternoon, Mr. Gatti has planned a special concert production of Gounod's "Gallia," with Sundelius in the solo air; Palestrina's "Missa Brevis," by the chorus under Setti, and Rossini's "Stabat Mater," with Ponselle, Matzenauer, Hackett, and Mardones. Next Sunday ends the regular opera concerts, the artists being Rappold, Braslau, Diaz, Rothier, and Marvin Maazel.

"L'Amore del Tre Re" will be repeated on Friday of next week, with Muzio, Martinelli, Chalmers, and Didur. The closing events for Saturday, April 19, include a matinée of "Madame Butterfly," with Farrar, Lazaro, and Scotti, and in the evening "The Barber of Seville," sung by Barrientos, Hackett, and De Luca. The company leaves for Atlanta on Easter Day.

Farrar Sings for Vacation Fund.

The Philadelphia Orchestra, with Geraldine Farrar and Serge Rachmaninoff as solo stars, gave a concert in the Metropolitan Opera House last evening for the Vacation Association, which has not held a benefit since early in the war, when a similar event here enlisted the Boston Symphony, Paderewski and Kreisler. There was a large audience last night, and the receipts for the charity were said to be about $6,000.

NO MILITARISTIC PEACE.

The burden of great debts will strain the resources and try the energies of the Entente nations for many years to come. It would be the grossest improvidence to put upon them, in addition to that, the cost of maintaining powerful military establishments by land and sea. That consideration is second only in the order of importance among the arguments for a League of Nations, the desire to escape the horrors and inhumanities of war being, of course, the first. It would be a dreadful backsliding if the Conference at Paris should yield to persuasion from any quarter to make a peace that should include great armies among its guarantees. In those lands where new and more enlightened views of the relation of nations to each other have come to be entertained it would be felt that we have already forgotten the lessons taught by this great war; that the lofty and humane purposes entertained and expressed when the Conference met, some three months ago, had been abandoned should an armed peace, a militaristic peace, now be offered for the acceptance of the peoples who have looked to their commissioners to give the world a real peace, not merely a truce.

It seems necessary to bring this sense of the duty of the Conference plainly into its view, for it is evident that old notions persist in the minds of some European statesmen. They die hard. This is natural enough, for Europe has been, for centuries, organized upon the militaristic plan. Peace as a fact may be established by treaty, but a treaty does not transmute rooted enmities into friendship, written agreements may not of their own force replace fear by full confidence. But the plan of peace as already accepted at Paris and made known to the world supplies, in the provisions of the Treaty and in the League of Nations, such assurances of peace as Europe has never enjoyed from the dawn of history to the present moment.

Take the case of France as perhaps the most suitable illustration. For more than half a century she has had reason to look upon the Germans as hostile. Since the Franco-Prussian war she has rightly regarded Germany as an enemy, and a very powerful enemy. The wanton attack upon her in 1914 showed that her apprehension was justified. Germany is now powerless, but France fears that she may again be a menace to the peace and security of the French people. It is for that reason that in the Conference the French commissioners have so urgently pressed the point of erecting new safeguards against German aggression. They have recovered Alsace-Lorraine, but they argue the necessity of giving France additional security by withdrawing from German control all lands west of the Rhine. It would appear also that there has been some pressure for a specific agreement on the part of Great Britain and the United States to come to the relief of France if she be attacked. Such an engagement would require the maintenance of considerable armed forces held in readiness for that service.

This is not in keeping with the great peace aim of the Conference, it is not in accord with the spirit of Mr. WILSON'S fourteen points, accepted by the nations of the Entente; it would indicate from the very beginning a want of confidence in the League of Nations. Security for France is provided in the very terms of the Treaty itself, if we at all understand what the Treaty is to be; it is provided expressly by the covenant of the League of Nations. The armistice, which embodies the preliminary peace, sets bounds to German militarism—the German Army shall not exceed 100,000 men. The enforcement of that restriction would be the business of all the Entente nations, for they are concerned in maintaining it. The chief purpose of the League covenant is to restrain and prevent external aggressions such as France seems to stand in fear of on the part of Germany. If the covenant is valid, if it is to be kept, France is secure. It is hard to see how any special or supplementary agreement between a few individual members of the League would be any more sacred than that pact.

The difference that has arisen between Italy and the Jugoslavs in respect to Dalmatia and the city of Fiume presents another obstacle to the prompt conclusion of peace. There is firmness, even obstinacy, on both sides, and that increases the fear that a complete yielding to either would leave the other party to the controversy with a grievance likely to engender quarrels out of which war might come. The harmonizing of such differences must be one of the foundations of the League. It is for that reason that Mr. WILSON has insisted upon an agreement that shall be equitable, an agreement that shall leave the two nations really friends. A hasty decision arrived at merely to get the matter out of the way will not do. It is, above all, important that the decision should be just. Therefore, Mr. WILSON has labored with infinite patience and great tact to bring both sides into a reasonable frame of mind, to the end that when the frontier line is drawn it shall be accepted without bitterness on either side.

It cannot be pointed out too often that this is the Congress of Paris, sitting in 1919, not the Congress of Vienna, swayed by the passions and principles of autocracy that controlled Europe a hundred years ago. The architects and artificers at Paris are raising, not a palace of peace enriched by the delicate tracery of a barren idealism, but a fortress of peace which the peoples of the world expect them to make impregnable against the assaults of the war spirit. It must rest upon unshakable foundations, for it would be poor evidence of their skill and competence should they rear a fabric that should fall of its own weight or yield to the first assault. It is the business of the Conference to provide against war, not to call into being treaties and armies as a provision for war.

RUSSIAN GOLD.

The attempt of Mr. LUDWIG C. A. K. MARTENS, "envoy" of the Bolshevist Government in this country, to get possession of the $153,000,000 worth of property here belonging to former Russian Governments, will force the question of recognition or non-recognition of LENINE squarely before our people. Mr. MARTENS and his aids realize that and evidently hope for a favorable outcome. Their extensive offices indicate that they are not devoid of funds at present, but no doubt $153,000,000 would be of considerable assistance to the Soviet Administration. For example, it has been suggested that this sum is the reality back of the Bolshevist talk of a $200,000,000 credit for American trade with Soviet Russia—a bird still in the bush, but of some importance if there are none in the hand.

Mr. MARTENS'S faction is called by its friends "the present Russian Government." It undoubtedly exercises authority of a sort over a considerable part of Russia. But there are other Governments recognized elsewhere—not so strong as they might be, but their weakness is due principally to allied irresolution in dealing with the Russian question. Some of these organizations are lineal descendants of the Kerensky Government, the last which we recognized.

Technically, BORIS A. BAKHMETEFF, Ambassador of LVOFF and KERENSKY, is still the Russian Ambassador to the United States, and his Government, dead more than a year, is the one which we recognized. Informally, the State Department has indicated that it recognizes the Omsk Government and co-ordinated groups as successors of KERENSKY, and Mr. BAKHMETEFF as their Ambassador. These Governments actually control at present a great part of Russia.

Mr. MARTENS'S Government we do not know officially. We have with it neither good nor bad relations, neither peace nor war. But our soldiers are being killed by its soldiers on the Archangel front. While that goes on it would be somewhat unusual for our Government to turn over to him the property of the Russian State in this country; it would be trading with those who are enemies in fact, whatever their status in name. Formal recognition of LENINE and cessation of hostilities would be the logical accompaniment of any admission on our part that the Martens bureau has a claim on the money.

COURT-MARTIAL REFORM.

Whatever the merits of the court-martial controversy may be—and so much smoke must proceed from a blaze of some sort—Secretary BAKER'S letter, directing Colonel S. T. ANSELL, formerly acting Judge Advocate General, to draft a bill embodying the reforms he advocates, may be regarded as an admission by the Secretary that he might have been wrong when he declared in his communication to General CROWDER on March 1 that justice had been done under the military law during the war period. Mr. BAKER'S mind was not receptive to charges and complaints. He had "entire faith," he asserted, "that the system of military justice both in its structure as organized by the statutes of Congress and the President's regulations, and in its operation as administered during the war, is essentially sound."

Now the Secretary, who, by the way, had received recommendations for changes in the military law from General CROWDER himself, finds that Colonel ANSELL'S suggestions in his letter of April 6 are "appropriate in form and substance and merit serious consideration"; but Mr. BAKER refuses to recognize officially the document written by Colonel ANSELL in which the late acting Judge Advocate General virtually indicted the Secretary of War for maladministration of the court-martial code, because he was primarily responsible for the conditions complained of. That document, a letter addressed to Mr. BAKER on March 11, had seen the light, and, if it can be regarded as evidence, is already before the public. He objects, apparently, not to Colonel ANSELL'S view that, as Secretary of War, he should be held accountable for court-martial sentences if they were unjust, but to the revelations made by the army reformer of his own relations with General CROWDER and of a passage between General CROWDER and the Secretary at the Army and Navy Club in Washington. Mr. BAKER considers these disclosures highly improper, but Colonel ANSELL may have felt that his back was against the wall, and that he must hit out right and left to defend himself. At any rate, his friends will say that he has won a personal victory by prevailing upon Mr. BAKER to consider his proposals for court-martial reform.

It is difficult to see how the Secretary of War could have taken any other course after Colonel ANSELL'S tremendous broadside discharged at both himself and General CROWDER. In some respects the personal aspect of the controversy is very unfortunate. No one doubts the integrity and great ability of General CROWDER; no one would accuse Secretary BAKER of intentionally permitting court-martial procedure that was inherently faulty to remain uncorrected, and his humanity cannot be challenged. At the same time, Colonel ANSELL has had a good case, in the sense that court-martial law, in spite of the revision of 1916, was still out of harmony with much that is commendable in the civil law. It may be that there was more bark than bite in many court-martial sentences—General CROWDER seems to have demonstrated that in his brief prepared at the request of Secretary BAKER, who regarded him not only as the ablest lawyer in the army but as a champion of the War Department.

As a matter of fact, both the Secretary and the General were overwhelmed with work and could not find time to be as analytical of court-martial blemishes, and wrongs for that matter, as Colonel ANSELL was. There still remained a good deal in the military code that was indefensible according to our democratic standards, and Colonel ANSELL has performed a public service in sticking to points he has made and insisting upon being heard. He has played a courageous part and should have credit for risking his career in a crusade for a principle. He will doubtless prepare a bill of amendments to improve court-martial procedure, but they should gain in value if revised by General CROWDER, an older and a better jurist, if stiffer in opinion.

In court-martial trials there has been too much soldier and too little lawyer, and therefore too much severity and red tape. The American people believe that Colonel ANSELL has been advocating a necessary reform, and they are disposed to look with indulgence upon his methods of getting a hearing, whatever some of his army associates may think of them.

TOO MUCH WHEAT?

Those who have been worried by the "vast food surplus" will have their worst fears confirmed by the official report that the outlook for the Winter wheat crop is the best ever reported. The condition is the highest ever known, on the largest acreage ever sown. The outlook is for nearly double the average production before the war and is 50 per cent. above the production during the war, when our exports were marvelous. There is likely to be 837,000,000 bushels of Winter wheat, for which the Government is pledged to pay $2.26 a bushel, or $1,801,620,000. That is a quarter billion more bushels than last year and 152,000,000 bushels more than the previous record. There is a similar alarming prospect of abundance of rye. We may not be ruined by too much cotton. The farmers have taken the highest advice, and are assured that there is ample authority in law for them to conspire to reduce their acreage to suit themselves. If they keep faith with one another, there will be a small enough yield of cotton to make it abnormally dear. If ever there was a country distressed by excess of materials for food and clothing, this is the one.

However, there are considerations to alleviate the woe of those who think rather of supply than of demand. The Director General's latest statistics showed that there were 2,035 cars of provisions at this port awaiting export. At North Atlantic ports there were 10,256 cars of export foodstuffs awaiting shipping to take them away. We are using 120 ships in bringing our soldiers home, and we are using every ship we can control in sending food to the starving. This combination of sense and charity is moving Congressmen to lament that we are thus engaged while other nations are making money. It's hard to suit everybody. There may be some who would be better pleased if we were doing the things they complain of others doing. But there are also those who are glad that our soldiers are coming back by boatloads and that the emptied ships go back full of $2.26 wheat. We are to have a vast surplus, but there will be a vaster need which it will meet, and, likely as not, at a profit rather than a loss. Not until all the world is fed is there any prospect of wheat going begging.

Those counting the cost rather than the good done are performing useful service. They keep the world in memory that there is abundance only because we risked a billion to produce it, and by that same token are entitled to ask fair payment from those able to pay and offering their credit where they have no ready cash. Nature is good to us, perhaps because we are good to the world. Let those anxious about the billion we are in danger of losing think more of the priceless service we are doing, and rejoice that it is in our power. As for the cotton conspirators, it is a privilege to feel that they may come to grief in their usual manner, by betraying one another. Usually those who enter cotton "combines" plant a little more individually in proportion to the prospect that the total planted will be reduced. There are almost always good crops in years like this, just as there is almost always cheap cotton in "hold your cotton" years. This promises to be a dreadful year for those who think that abundance of new wealth from the soil spells ruin.

CRIME AND HIGH EXPLOSIVES.

Police Commissioner ENRIGHT said some time ago, and quite properly, that it was a crime against the business interests of the city to talk of a "crime wave" when none existed. At that time the police were—and doubtless still are—insistent that there was no crime wave. But eleven burglaries during the past week-end, if they do not constitute a wave, certainly may be regarded as a ripple.

Perhaps the war has something to do with it; the war has diffused more widely a knowledge of explosives, and these are now used with somewhat greater care. No longer does a band of safe-crackers intent upon blowing a domestic treasury perform its nefarious work in the midst of the household, where flying splinters might do some damage to human life. The criminals wait till the family has gone to church, then enter the house, load the safe on an automobile while the neighbors look on with polite interest, cart it away to the park, and "crack" it on the greensward. Elsewhere a member of the party is assigned to tell inquirers that the loud explosion just heard was only the backfiring of an automobile. Another group of aspirants to easy money find that the safe, which had been violated before, now occupies a position under the light where passers-by can see it. Undisturbed, they move it back into the friendly darkness and break in at their leisure.

All this indicates an enterprising spirit on the part of our criminals which may perhaps require equal enterprise to counteract it. The District Attorney's office has asked precedence for two hundred burglary and highway robbery cases awaiting trial. This is well, for high probability of punishment has been found the best preventive of crime. But you cannot convict a man till you catch him. One may hope that the police will be able to restrict these recent activities, so diverting and yet so inconvenient.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Problem with Two Solutions.

Decision of the question whether or not the 77th Division shall parade as a unit depends on the direction from which it is approached and the side of it that is seen. To the staff and departmental officials, who tend, naturally enough and not improperly, to view armies and soldiers as implements for the accomplishment of military ends, the results to be attained by a parade at this time do not appeal strongly. The money it will cost is a large sum, they say, and the department has many uses for money that are more practical than is the pleasing for a day of a few million civilians.

There is to be considered, too, the fact that to keep the 77th men in camp till they have all arrived, instead of demobilizing them at once, will make it difficult, or at least inconvenient, to handle the regiments belonging to other divisions that in the meantime will be arriving at this port. It also will delay the discharging of these other troops, none of whom has any particular interest in the glorification of the 77th, and all of whom are likely to resent a seeming subordination of their interests and preferences to those of the New Yorkers.

Thus reason the departmental and military officials, and it cannot be denied that their arguments have weight and are worthy of consideration. Arguments are not conclusive, however, simply because they have weight, and the trouble with everything said against the parade is that it ignores what can be said on the other side—which is a good deal.

Recalling the Case of Verdun.

This controversy over the parade of the 77th Division recalls another, much more important, but in a way similar as based on a comparative valuation of what may be called the practical and the sentimental. It will be remembered that when there arose in France the question whether or not Verdun should be defended at any cost, the military authorities, with Marshal, then General, JOFFRE at their head, were of the opinion that the city, as a part of the battle line, was not worth as much expenditure of munitions and of lives as would be required to save it from the Germans. There were better positions, more easily defended, a few miles in the rear, they declared, and to these better positions they proposed to retire. They were overruled by men who, in spite of being both civilians and politicians, for once were wiser than the Generals, and in a military matter at that.

To abandon Verdun, the responsible heads of the French Government insisted, would have two most deplorable consequences—it would fill the French people with discouragement and humiliation, while it would cause equal elation among the Germans, for Verdun was a famous fortress, the losing and gaining of which would affect the popular mind to a degree far out of proportion to the technical military value of the little town.

Probably nobody is now in doubt as to which view was right. In the same way, while a parade of the united 77th Division will involve expense and trouble, not to have it will create a sense of bitter grievance in the hearts of a multitude of people. They joined cordially in honoring the 27th, but if the 77th does not receive equal honors they will see in the difference a most invidious distinction, and their patriotic fervor will be depressed, not increased. Perhaps human beings should not be like that, but they are, and not to take realities into account is the very reverse of the practical, though men calling themselves practical so often do it, when the realities are those of sentiment instead of dollars and cents.

Forbidden to Preach Sedition.

There will be, presumably, and almost inevitably, much excited denunciation of the Board of Education for closing the public schools to meetings of the Teachers' Union. The familiar complaints about infringing the right of free speech will be heard, and—well, the complaints will be as ill-based as they usually are.

In the first place, while speech is free in this country, it is not, any more than it is or can be, anywhere, free to the extent that anybody is free to say anything at any time and in any place. Restrictions of several kinds there are and must be, including those by which decency and the safety of our institutions are protected. On the other hand, the members of the Teachers' Union have not been reduced—as yet—to silence. They have simply been told that they cannot use the city's property in the campaign which they have undertaken against an important branch of the City Government. They are still privileged to hire as many halls as they please in which to accuse the Board of Education of tyranny, and to protest against the enforcement of discipline against teachers with a leaning toward Bolshevism, and a tendency to mingle socialistic and pro-German propaganda with instruction in the three R's.

In this instance, as in so many others, the use of schoolhouses for meetings of adults with opinions to express and doctrines to preach has resulted unhappily. The adults who gather seem always, or almost always, to be, not average, well-disposed citizens, but a more or less incendiary minority who want to change things—and to change them a lot and very quickly. That aspiration is not wholly indefensible, for a good many things would be the better for changing, but real light and leading have not often been found on tap at meetings in schoolhouses, and experience has proved that the Teachers' Union has neither to offer.

To Permit Sunday Baseball.

A bill to permit the playing of baseball on Sunday has been passed by both branches of the State Legislature and now goes to the Governor for signature. Should it become a law a considerable and not unimportant part of the State's population will be justly offended, and for inadequate reasons one business will have been selected from many businesses, all equally or more commendable, for the privilege of making money seven days in every week instead of six.

As a matter of fact, the playing of baseball, when done with a decent regard for the public proprieties and preferences, is, and long has been, legal in this State. It is only baseball as a commercial activity—for the gate receipts—that has been banned, and that kind of baseball has never proved its claim for an immunity from restriction that is not enjoyed by other industries no more mercenary than is this so-called sport.

Of course, attendance at a ball game is not the worst use that can be made of a Sunday afternoon, but it is equally far from being the best, and if it is to be permitted, like rights, in consistency, must be granted to all the other commercialized forms of amusement, and Sunday will become a day like another.

ART NOTES.

Rene Lalique's Jewelry on Display at Knoedler's.

René Lalique was probably the first modern artist to lift jewelry out of the region of vulgar display into that of a decorative art. This does not mean, of course, that before Lalique all jewelry was vulgar, nor does it mean that all the jewelry designed by him is more beautiful than anything made before his time. But the public which now has the enviable opportunity of studying and enjoying his work at the Knoedler Galleries must at once perceive its individuality and the fascination of its beautiful craftsmanship.

The term "l'art nouveau" has fallen into disrepute through the exaggeration of its sinuous forms, the easy adaptation of a carefully thought-out formula to trivial design. In the hands of a master the "new art," now past its youth, still keeps its charm. Lalique, as one of his French critics reminds us, is not only a jeweler or goldsmith, he is also a sculptor, an enameler, an engraver and a maker of glass. He knows all the crafts contributory to his chosen work and he knows also the principles by which an artist is guided. That is the lesson he has for the modern craftsman and industrial artist.

The later work in the exhibition at Knoedler's is largely in the medium of glass, and his carvings and castings in this material are marvels of fine workmanship. A jewel box is covered with a plaque of crystal and then carved in a leaf design. The exquisite play of light and shade over the crystal surface and the soft glow of the general tone make it an object of abiding beauty. There are other recent works in glass that play a larger part in household decoration, very beautiful bowls and shades for electric light, carved with graceful figures and expressing the spirit of the present in the modification of brilliancy in contrast to the spirit of earlier periods when glass chandeliers and girandoles were created to intensify glitter. There also are great bowls for flowers cast by the cere perdu method which involves an appalling amount of risk even in the hands of the most skilful. The whole exhibition is a triumph of craftsmanship.

PROHIBITION'S LIMITS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The scene is San Quentin, the State Prison of California, the occasion a farewell sendoff to one of the prisoners for whom Mr. Older had obtained parole.

"Buck English and Lowrie were roommates in the prison. They had a room with a bathroom, had accumulated a good library and were very comfortable together. The reason that Buck was allowed to occupy this room was that he was not locked up at night. He was in charge of the electric lights, and as they might go out any time it was necessary that he be able to attend to them.

"So when Buck heard that Charley was going out, he was in a position to celebrate the great occasion. He got together his friends among the prisoners, and it was decided to give Charley a farewell dinner. Each prisoner was detailed to get some portion of the feast by stealth from the kitchen. Buck said, 'I'll provide the drinks.'

"Having access to the kitchen by night, he took several pounds of dried apricots to his room, boiled them, squeezed them, and bottled the juice. In some way he got hold of hops and put them in with other things I have forgotten. After the job was done he corked the bottles, tied strings around the corks to hold them in as is done with champagne, and put them away for the great event.

"The night before Charley was to go out the guests assembled quietly in Buck's room. At midnight, when all the prison was asleep the feast began.

"'It was some dinner,' said Buck in relating it. 'We opened with soup, wound up with dessert, black coffee, and cigars. Then I stepped into the closet and brought in the bottles and cut the cord. The corks hit the ceiling.'"

It is no use to waste one's mental energy criticising fanatical reformers. They have no logic in their brains, no perspective, and no farsight. One might as well try to reason with a Bolshevik.

The point is, however, that, prohibition or no prohibition, if a man wants liquor he will get it. The above is only one of twenty different resources. While the fire of 1906 was raging in San Francisco, and for a month after, there was no liquor on sale in San Francisco. The saloons were closed, and, acting under the orders of General Funston, the soldiers raided the grocery stores and poured all the liquor down the sewer.

My sister, who lived in the district not overtaken by the fire, told me she never saw so many drunken men in her life. I asked a policeman the reason and he said there was a "blind pig" in every block.

The law may control the latent criminal instincts of all but the mentally perverted, but it never yet prevented a man from indulging in his private pleasures or vices. And the more his personal liberty is curtailed by undemocratic laws the more determined will he be to have what he wants. It is all very well to close saloons and prevent easy access to the stronger spirituous liquors, but it is an insult to every American citizen to extend the ban to beer and light wines—the latter is enough to make every Latin in our country turn Bolshevist—or to prevent those who can afford it from enlivening their dinner parties with champagne.

My antagonism to prohibition is entirely impersonal. A cocktail to me means no more than so much wood alcohol; claret and white wine are too reminiscent of vinegar to make any appeal to me. Nature did not gift me with the vinous palate, and when a host tells me that he has brought up a vintage wine for my pleasure I murmur my appreciation, but unless it is too sweet or too sour I see little difference from the ordinary champagne. If I have a dull man to entertain for an hour and a half, however, I am profoundly grateful to it, for I feel quite reckless.

But I bitterly resent being told that I cannot do anything I wish to do. Like the people of Great Britain and France, every intelligent normal citizen of the United States is intensely individual and a Proudhon anarchist. We have no desire to murder or steal, have no difficulty whatever in obeying those laws which since the beginning of civilization have been found necessary to preserve society from falling into chaos. We do not even think about them, and there would be no necessity for any legal machinery whatever as far as we are concerned. Laws and their enforcement are for the so-far inevitable criminals and "anarchists" whose abnormal instincts, according to certain brain specialists, will be eliminated in time by surgical operation.

Why do the prohibitionists overlook the dangers lurking in the indulgence of grape juice? I was once writing a story in which my heroine was to be tried for her life, and I cultivated the society temporarily of the Sheriff of the county in which the scene was laid. He confided to me that he liked his whisky and beer as well as the "next man," but never was drunk but once in his life. He—after some demur—consented to spend a day in Ocean Grove with friends. The day was hot and he was extremely thirsty. There was no beer and he was forced to refresh himself with grape juice. The more he drank the more thirsty he became. Finally a weird thing happened. His stomach—it was a very large one—acted as a still, the grape juice fermented, and he went roaring over Ocean Grove, shattering the peaceful calm of that sacrosanct preserve, until his terrified friends managed to find a conveyance and rush him out to avoid arrest.

"Never was so mortally ashamed in my life as when I came to," he added. "Been a good drinker all my life, and then to make a fool of myself on grape juice! I cursed the man who invented it."

This country is the headquarters of cranks and fanatics. The bee in their bonnets stings them into constant activity, and the rest of us are so easy-going that we sit back and merely laugh at them while they go ahead, driven by "l'idée fixe," and accomplish the letter at least of their ridiculous projects. But if prohibition becomes a law we shall have more drunkenness and vice than ever before, and I sincerely hope that the instigators will be the first to suffer.

GERTRUDE ATHERTON.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In my letter concerning the Sarre basin, in mentioning Sarreloui's I stated that the town was founded by Louis XIV., not Louis XVI., as printed in your column yesterday. The person responsible for this error may share the standpoint of the American who accompanied his wife into a Paris shop. After looking over some furniture she turned to him and said: "Which shall I buy, this Louis XIV. set or that Louis XVI. one?" To which he replied: "I don't mind a louis or two more or less; suit yourself, my dear."

MAURICE LEON.

LOOK FOR CONGRESS TO RECOGNIZE SIMS

He Goes to Washington, a Rear Admiral Again, to Report to Navy Department.

PLANS TO ENTERTAIN FLEET

Rear Admiral William S. Sims, U. S. N., during the war period commander in chief of the American naval forces in European waters, left for Washington to report to Acting Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday morning. The Admiral, who automatically reverted to the grade of Rear Admiral when he hauled down his four-starred pennant in London two weeks ago, will return to New York tomorrow or Friday. He will probably leave for Newport on Saturday to assume his duties as President of the Naval War College.

It was suggested yesterday that Congress might recognize, as it did in the case with Dewey and other officers of the Spanish war, Admiral Sims's two years' service as naval chief in Europe. Under the law as it now stands the Navy Department was powerless to prevent his automotic demotion following the Admiral's designation as head of the War College. Under the law the only Admirals possible in the navy are the officers holding fleet command and the Chief of Operations in the Navy Department. All of these officers are automatically demoted when relieved of those duties.

When Admiral Austin Knight was relieved of command of the Asiatic Fleet the Navy Department, as a further recognition of Admiral Sims's work in Europe, ordered that the rank relinquished by Knight when he hauled down his flag on the cruiser Brooklyn be given to Sims to be retained by him until he was relieved of the London command.

Scores of naval officers, including many of the British service, called on Admiral Sims yesterday to welcome him home. He also received many civilians, including newspaper men. To the latter he said he thought he had told about all he could tell when he arrived in New York on Monday. He was, however, asked a lot of questions, one of them being a request for an expression of opinion regarding the League of Nations. That question he smilingly declined to answer.

Everybody Asks About It.

"Everybody," said Admiral Sims, "asks me about the League of Nations. I have not been in Paris since the Peace Conference convened and it is apparent that I am not in a position to intelligently discuss that question. So I must beg to decline to answer."

It is expected that Admiral Sims will come to New York for a few days during the stay of the Atlantic Fleet in New York waters. During the fleet visit it is the intention of the city to give a dinner in honor of the officers of the organization at which Admiral Sims and Admiral Mayo, the Commander in Chief of the fleet, are expected to be the principal guests of honor.

With regard to the greater navy that the Navy Department has planned, Admiral Sims said that his views in naval policy would be officially given to the Navy Department. Official reports, he added, can only be made public by the Department and so for that reason he also declined to discuss the bigger navy question.

At the headquarters of the United War Work organizations, which have taken over the preparations for the entertainment of the officers and men of the Atlantic Fleet during the two weeks they will be in New York, it was announced yesterday that there will be no parade of the sailors. Major Randolph Coyle, U. S. M. C., who as the representative of the Navy Department is cooperating with the war work organizations, said it was the desire of the Navy Department to make the fleet visit as informal as possible. In other words every effort will be made to make it "a real holiday for the men," Major Coyle added.

A report printed yesterday that the war work organizations were not cooperating with the Mayor's Committee of Welcome was denied. The co-operation of the committee was officially requested yesterday.

Major Coyle said that the entertaining organizations would pay particular attention to the officers and men of the destroyers, who, owing to rough weather in the Atlantic, did not arrive in New York in time last December to enjoy the hospitality that was extended to the officers and men who served on the dreadnoughts under Rear Admiral Rodman, which vessels arrived here Christmas Eve, after more than a year's service with the British Grand Fleet.

Out in Terrible Weather.

"These men," said Major Coyle, "have stood on the open decks of their destroyers while the cold Winter hurricanes of the North Sea tossed the craft about like so many corks. Waves would smash over the tiny vessels with such force that it often became necessary for the men on watch to rope themselves to the deck. It was a rare trip when the men were not required to put in two hours out of every six, day after day. The boys would carry on clothed in heavy woolen underclothing, wind and rain proof trousers and blouses, and with heavy leather or rubber boots. It was a combination that was dubbed semi-officially as the 'modified Eskimo' outfit.

"Meals were out of the question, for on these ships it is impossible to cook when the sea gets up a bit. Canned soups—cold—and canned meats were about all the men could get. Coffee was generally made before the destroyer left port, and this was dished out as long as it lasted. After that, nothing resembling coffee appeared on the haphazard menus.

"Ordinarily the ship's schedule called for five days at sea and two hours in port, with those two hours of 'rest' put in overhauling the ship for the next deep-sea jaunt. If an S O S message came in, or if a submarine was reported in a nearby region, the ship would be ordered out immediately.

"When a division of destroyers was on duty, it would leave France or Ireland to meet a convoy of transports about 300 miles at sea. The destroyers would form a V-shaped protection, running in front of the troopships. Always they threw up a heavy smoke screen as they zigzagged their course into port."

The destroyers are armed with a twenty-one-inch torpedo tube, 4 five-inch guns, and a depth charge thrower. These "ash cans" carry about 270 pounds of T N T, and each ship carries more than a dozen charges. The handling of the ship and its armament is taken care of by 120 men and five officers.

Major Coyle said that the reception about to be given these men is the first public recognition they have received since America's entry into the war.

WELCOMED IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Rear Admiral William S. Sims, who arrived in New York yesterday from London, came to Washington late today to make a personal report to the Navy Department on his services as Commander in Chief of the American naval forces in European waters during the war. After a brief stay here the Admiral will go to Newport, R. I., for a rest before resuming the Presidency of the Naval War College, from which he was called for overseas duty a little more than two years ago.

As he stepped from his train at the Union Station, Admiral Sims was greeted by Acting Secretary and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and the heads of the bureaus at the Navy Department, and escorted to the President's suite in the station, where an informal reception was held. When he arrived at the gate from the train sheds he was greeted with martial music by a naval band and the cheers of hundreds who had gathered in the station. He stood rigidly at attention until the band had finished and then passed between double columns of yeomen reaching from the gate to the station building.

After posing with Secretary Roosevelt for moving pictures, Admiral Sims entered an automobile with Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt and drove to his hotel. Tomorrow he will go to the Navy Department to make his report and confer with high officers and will start tomorrow evening or Tuesday for Newport to rejoin Mrs. Sims and his children, who were at New York yesterday to welcome him home.

In greeting Admiral Sims, Acting Secretary Roosevelt handed him the following cablegram received today from Secretary Daniels in France:

"I regret that absence from the United States prevents my greeting you upon your arrival home and extending in person the thanks of the Navy and the whole country, too, upon the signal ability you have shown in the important and delicate duty entrusted to you as Commander of the United States naval forces in European waters during the great war, in which the naval forces under your direction won the praise and commendation of the world.

"The American people will give you the great welcome your distinguished service merits. In the new duty you are to assume as President of the War College, which assignment I was glad to make at your request, you will have the largest opportunity for usefulness. To your leadership in that great position, the navy looks for that initiative and direction which will impress the whole service with the spirit of progress and decisions which have marked naval performances during this war.

"With my congratulations upon your great work in these years of trial and success, and with sentiments of esteem and regard. "JOSEPHUS DANIELS."

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Award of Congressional medals of honor to two officers and five enlisted men for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action" was announced today by the War Department.

The medal was awarded posthumously to First Lieutenant William S. Turner, 125th infantry, for rushing an enemy machine gun single-handed and killing the crew with his pistol. "With the utmost bravery," said the citation, "he continued to lead his men over three lines of hostile trenches regardless of the fact that he had been wounded three times." Lieutenant Turner's home address was 25 Hinckley Street, Dorchester, Mass.

Second Lieutenant Patrick Regan, 115th Infantry, of Los Angeles, won the medal at Bois de Consenvoye when, "although severely wounded, he dashed with empty pistol into a machine gun nest, capturing thirty Austrian gunners and four machine guns."

First Sergeant Benjamin, Kaufman, 308th Infantry, 2,113 Pitkin Av., Brooklyn, N. Y., received the medal for conspicuous gallantry in the Argonne Forest, where, after being severely wounded, he attacked an enemy machine gun nest single-handed, throwing grenades with his left hand, and silenced the German post.

Sergeant Thomas Lee Hall, (deceased,) 118th infantry, of Fort Mill, S. C., was decorated for successfully attacking an enemy machine gun post alone and thus making possible a further advance of the American line. While attacking another nest later in the day he was mortally wounded.

Sergeant James E. Karnes, 117th Infantry, of Knoxville, Tenn., accompanied by another soldier, killed three and captured seven Germans, putting an enemy post out of action and permitting his company to advance.

Sergeant Arthur J. Forrest, 354th Infantry, of Hannibal, Mo., was decorated for a similar exploit. Near Remonville, on November 1, when his company was stopped by the enemy fire, Forrest worked his way alone to a point from which he was enabled to charge the enemy machine guns, driving their crews out in disorder.

Sergeant Edward R Talley, 117th Infantry, of Russellville, Tenn., "armed with a rifle only, rushed a nest in the face of intense fire, killed or wounded at least six of the crew, and when the enemy attempted to bring forward another gun he drove them back by effective fire from his rifle." This occurred near Poncheaux, on Oct. 7.

HOMEOPATHS MEET HERE.

State Society Holds Sixty-seventh Annual Convention.

The sixty-seventh annual meeting of the Homeopathic Medical Society of the State of New York was held yesterday, at the Hotel Bossert, Montague and Hicks Streets, Brooklyn. More than three hundred members were welcomed to Brooklyn by Dr. W. H. Price, President of Kings County Homeopathic Society, and Borough President Edward Riegelmann.

WAR ON BOLSHEVISM THROUGH RED CROSS

MEN ALREADY IN FIELD

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune.

LONDON, April 8.—Practically the entire European strength of the American Red Cross is being mobilized for a campaign against Bolshevism in the Balkans and parts of Russia. This action has been ordered by the Red Cross headquarters at Washington, following a direct request from the American Government.

It had been previously planned to withdraw the Red Cross from Europe after the armistice, with the exception of a small force to look after the needs of the American Army in France and Germany. But the alarming tendency of Bolshevism to spread to Southwestern Europe and to those parts of Russia hitherto not infected caused the authorities at Washington to seek the aid of the Red Cross in combating this evil.

American Red Cross commissions for civilian relief have already been sent into Albania, Serbia, Rumania, and Bulgaria, and an effort is being made to get one into Odessa, from which point it will operate in Southern Russia. All this work is being directed by Lieut. Col. Henry W. Anderson of Richmond, Va. He has been in charge of Red Cross work in Italy, but is now establishing his headquarters at Constantinople, where Balkan and Russian commissions will be based.

In fact, it was the success of the Red Cross in Italy which was chiefly instrumental in deciding the American Government to ask that organization to undertake its new mission. There the Red Cross was the first and greatest instrument in making the Italian people feel that America was in the war and was Italy's friend and in seeing that American protestations of friendship took many a form. There is no doubt that the work of the Red Cross, largely by money grants to local charities and by medical and other forms of civilian relief, was of priceless aid in improving the morale of the people.

Red Cross Commissions already in the Balkans are being largely supplied with medical stores and equipment and are composed principally of medical personnel. Their plan of operation is first to make a survey of the territories in which they have to operate to determine where and to what extent the first and greatest relief is needed. For instance, the Commission in Poland has made an eight-day tour of inspection in the eastern and southeastern part of that country, a journey of 1,500 miles, during which it distributed food, clothing and medicines to twenty cities and numerous towns and villages.

Primarily, the latter is the chief work of the commissions. They are fighting Bolshevism by fighting hunger, disease and dirt. In some cases they are cooperating with the United States Food Commissions in the distribution of supplies and by informing the latter organizations where food is most badly needed and how it can best be gotten to the starving populations.

There are several reasons why the American Red Cross is the only organization which can successfully and without complications carry on this work. In the first place, it is not hampered by the many diplomatic restrictions under which Government commissions have to labor. Second, the Red Cross is not answerable to Congress for either its policies or its detailed operations. The result, at least so far as past experience is concerned, has shown that it is the most useful agency existing today for dealing with the difficult and delicate question of civilian morale.

In addition, the Red Cross has discovered that it can go into countries and take up its work with a knowledge that the people there fully appreciate the disinterested character of its endeavors, whereas any European organization, official or semi-official, probably would at once become an object of suspicion to the people among whom it was laboring. The Red Cross is indulging in no actual political propaganda in this work and does not point the moral of its own work, but it believes that by disseminatinn of altruism and by demonstrating the principle that every man is his brother's keeper, the object aimed at will be achieved.

Miss Sheehan to Wed W. O. Swain.

Miss Blanche Sheehan, a daughter of John C. Sheehan, a Tammany Hall leader, and a niece of the late William F. Sheehan, at one time Lieut. Gov. of this State, and Wilmurt Oakes Swain of 137 East Fifty-seventh Street, obtained a license to wed yesterday. Mr. Swain gave his age as 24 and his occupation that of salesman. The marriage, it was stated, would take place tomorrow in St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Miss Nachmann to Wed In Denver.

The marriage of Miss Beatrice Edythe Nachmann of Yonkers and Frank J. Wiffler of Denver, Col., will take place on May 8 in Denver. Miss Nachmann is the daughter of the late Benjamin Nachmann, and was a student of music at Syracuse University. Mr. Wiffler, who formerly resided in Yonkers, is a graduate of Cornell University, and is a member of the Psi Upsilon Club of this city. He is a nephew of Miss Louise Beaudrias of Yonkers and I. J. Beaudrias. The couple are to make their home in Denver.

Mendelson-Mellor Engagement.

F. W. WOOLWORTH LEAVES $65,000,000

BUILT HIGHEST BUILDING

Merchant's Success Came After His First Store Opened in Utica in 1879, Had Failed—Dies at 66.

Frank Winfield Woolworth, founder of the chain of five and ten cent stores in this country and in England bearing his name, and builder of the Woolworth Building in this city, which is the highest building in the world, died early yesterday morning at his country home, Winfield Hall, at Glen Cove, L. I., in his sixty-seventh year. He had been in declining health for some time, and left his town home, 990 Fifth Avenue, last Friday, believing that the change would benefit him. Mrs. Woolworth is dangerously ill, and she was not able to go with her husband to their country home.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Jennie Creighton Woolworth, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Charles E. F. McCann and Mrs. James P. Donahue of this city, who were with him when he died, and a brother, C. S. Woolworth of Scranton, Penn. Mr. Woolworth became suddenly worse Monday afternoon, and soon after the arrival of Dr. W. H. Zabriskie of Glen Cove, who was summoned, he lost consciousness and grew steadily worse until the end.

The funeral services will be held at his home in the city tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Interment will be in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Born on a farm at Great Bend, Jefferson County, N. Y., the son of John H. and Fanny McBrier Woolworth, Mr. Woolworth lived with his parents and worked on the farm until he was 21 years old. For two Winters before he was 21 he got his first commercial experience helping in a grocery store at Great Bend. There was no salary attached to the work, and all Mr. Woolworth asked was the experience. After much effort, he finally obtained a job with Augsbury & Moore, merchants, of Watertown, N. Y., who took him on a six months' trial. The first three months he worked for nothing and the second three months he received $3.50 a week, which was the amount he paid for board. At the end of the six months he received an increase of fifty cents a week. In time he was getting $10 a week, and in the Spring of 1878 he got his first inkling of the five-cent business. It came about through the introduction of a five-cent counter in the store in which he was working in Watertown.

Purchasing $350 worth of goods on a note indorsed by his father, Mr. Woolworth on Feb. 22, 1879, opened his first store in Utica, N. Y. The venture proved a failure, and the store was closed in three months. In June of the same year he opened another store in Lancaster, Penn., which proved a success from the start, and has continued to the present time. Other stores were established. Several of them were failures at the beginning, while others thrived. He had different partners at different times in his ventures, and, in 1912, when the F. W. Woolworth Company was formed, they had 596 stores. The number continued to grow each year, until now the company, of which Mr. Woolworth was the President, owns and controls 1,050 five and ten cent stores in the United States and Canada. The business last year was more than $107,000,000. The Woolworth Tower, which was built out of nickels and dimes, is estimated at $65,000,000.

In addition to his connection with the Woolworth corporation, Mr. Woolworth was one of the largest stockholders and a Director of the Irving National Bank and the Irving Trust Company. President and largest stockholder of the Broadway-Park Place Company, which owns the Woolworth Building, which cost $13,000,000, and other properties in this city.

Mr. Woolworth was a member of the Chamber of Commerce of New York, the Union League Club, Lotos Club, and Hardware Club and a Director of the Pennsylvania Society.

WOOLWORTH.—Joint resolution adopted by the Board of Directors of the Irving National Bank and the Irving Trust Company, April 8th, 1919: The Directors of this bank, in meeting assembled, learn with profound regret this morning of the sudden death of their fellow-Director, Frank W. Woolworth, with many of whom he was affiliated for almost a score of years. It was impossible to know Mr. Woolworth well without being struck by his unique personality, his rugged integrity, and his keen and intuitive judgment of men and of affairs. He was a man of ideas and ideals, and he was as tenacious of the one as he was inflexible in clinging to the other. He combined these with creative gifts of a high order, and they explain in some measure his rapid rise from farmer's boy in Jefferson County, in this State, to one of the great merchants in the world. Tenacious of purpose, strong of will, persistent, he never lost sight of the end to be attained and the means to reach it. And yet he did all this without sacrifice of correct, homely, and good, old-fashioned principles instilled by his father and mother, to whom he frequently referred. Throughout his life he was devoted to his home, his wife, and to his children. He found relaxation there, surrounding himself with beautiful things and with indulgence in music. At this home he was wont to gather with those friends to whom he felt attached and with his colaborers, anxious that they should participate in the enjoyment of that art in which he found delight. Unspoiled by success and loyal to associates, he never forgot those who worked with him in the building of his career. His interest in his employes found practical expression in making it possible for them to participate in his abounding success. His breadth of vision and his foresightedness, whether applied to his own affairs or to those of others, led him to plan a home for this bank in the building he reared to house the headquarters of his personal enterprise, and the structure will stand forever as a monument to his genius and creative skill. Resolved, That the sympathy of each member of this board be conveyed to the members of Mr. Woolworth's family; Resolved, further, That these resolutions be spread upon our records; that they be published, and that they be sent to the family of Mr. Woolworth; and, Resolved, further, That the officers and Directors of this institution attend in a body the funeral services of their late friend and fellow-Director.

READY TO LEGALIZE SUNDAY BALL HERE

MOVE UP MONDAY DATES

Giants Will Have 10 Sundays and Yankees and Dodgers 12 Each Under Rearranged Schedule.

Just as soon as Governor Smith signs the local option Sunday Baseball bill at Albany, the Board of Aldermen in this city will take up an ordinance permitting Sunday games here. The ordinance has already been prepared, and will be offered by Alderman J. J. O'Rourke of Staten Island, probably at next week's meeting.

President Charles A. Stoneham of the Giants, who is the only baseball official connected with any of the local clubs now in the city, is highly pleased over the prospect of Sunday baseball. Mr. Stoneham was one of the club owners who was opposed to the adoption of the short 140-game schedule. He said yesterday that it was now too late to make any change in the schedule, but, nevertheless, the weekly schedules of the local clubs will be rearranged so as to provide for games on all the Sunday dates.

The probable procedure will be to move all the games scheduled here on Mondays forward one day and play them on Sunday. According to this plan, the Giants would have ten Sunday dates at the Polo Grounds, the Yankees twelve Sundays, and at Ebbets Field, the Brooklyns would have twelve Sunday dates.

The Giants' Sunday dates would be as follows: May 4, Philadelphia; May 18, Cincinnati; May 25, Pittsburgh; June 1, Philadelphia; July 13, Pirates; July 20, Cincinnati; Aug. 17, Chicago; Aug. 24, Pirates; Aug. 31, Boston; Sept. 28, Philadelphia.

The Yankees' Sunday dates would be: April 29, Athletics; May 11, Washington; June 8, Chicago; June 15, St. Louis; June 22, Athletics; June 29, Boston; July 6, Washington; Aug. 3, Detroit; Aug. 10, Cleveland; Sept. 7, Boston; Sept. 14, St. Louis; Sept. 21, Detroit.

The probable Sunday dates at Ebbets Field will be: May 4, Boston; May 11, Giants; May 18, Chicago; May 25, St. Louis; June 29, Philadelphia; July 6, Boston; July 13, St. Louis; July 20, Chicago; July 27, Giants; Aug. 17, Cincinnati; Aug. 24, St. Louis; Aug. 31, Philadelphia.

As there was some difference of opinion among the club owners on both circuits over the adoption of the short 140 games, it may be that some of the club owners will attempt to bring about a revision of the Eastern end of the schedule. New York, Boston, and Chicago were the cities which strongly favored the full schedule of 154 games.

The new Sunday bill will mean a strong revival of the International League. With Sunday games at Buffalo and Rochester, the success of the circuit is practically assured. It is also likely that the Hamilton franchise will be given back to Syracuse, where Sunday games may also be played. With Sunday games permitted at the Polo Grounds and Ebbets Field, there is no question now that the major leagues will give Harrison Park in Newark to the International League. It is understood that the probable purchasers of the Newark franchise have been holding off, waiting for a decision from the major leagues about the rental of the Harrison Park. The passage of the bill at Albany means that the Newark Club will have a clear field at Harrison, including Sundays.

The new bill will also mean the revival of the New York State League and probably the old Hudson River circuit.

A run of 39 points in his thirteenth inning gave Robert Steinbugler a victory over J. R. Langdon last night in the opening game of a double-header in the amateur handicap 18.2 balk line billiard tournament for the Poggenburg Cup at the Rational Recreation Academy. This cluster put Steinbugler in the lead at 83 to 46, and thereafter he was never displaced. He won by a count of 115 to 81 in nineteen innings.

Steinbugler went off to a lead in the first four innings, and showed the way until the sixth inning, when he was displaced by Langdon, the score then being 16 to 14. The latter then played consistent billiards, which held him in front until Steinbugler's run of 39 points in the thirteenth frame, which put a different complexion on the game.

The other game resulted in a victory for Sydney Brussel over Claude R. Lewis. The score was 115 to 91, after forty-two innings of tedious play. Lewis made the highest run, a cluster of 23 in his twenty-seventh inning. The rally placed him in front for a short space, but Brussel soon gained the lead again, and held it to the finish. He had a high run of 14.

All four men are Class C players.

This afternoon Charles E. White and Louis Servatius will be opponents. The evening game will bring together Robert Steinbugler and Charles Worcester.

The scores:

Robert Steinbugler—5 1 3 5 0 0 1 9 4 6 4 6 39 5 10 0 2 4 11—115. Average—6 1-19. High run—39.

RECORD RUN FOR FLINN.

Clusters Five In Angle Championship, but Is Defeated.

William H. Flinn created a new high-run record for the national amateur championship three-cushion carom billiard tournament at the Amateur Billiard Club last night. Flinn was defeated by Earl Patterson of Chicago by the score of 50 to 41 in ninety-nine innings. Flinn had his greatest session in the fifty-fourth inning, when he registered 5 caroms before missing. A particularly brilliant effort in this run was a difficult four-cushion massé on the lower rail. Patterson had a high run of 4.

Two games will be played today. In the afternoon Flinn will oppose Arthur Newman, and in the evening Gus Gardner and Harry Levine will be rivals.

N. Y. U. PLAYS COLUMBIA.

Teams Begin Baseball Season at Ohio Field.

New York University's baseball team will clash with the crack Columbia nine on Ohio Field this afternoon in the first home game of the season. Today's contest marks the initial appearance of the Blue and White this year. Coach Egan sent his team through a long practice session yesterday, finishing off with a six-inning game with the freshman team. The 'Varsity worked smoothly, but were handicapped by the loss of "Ted" Bromley, right fielder, who is out with a damaged wrist.

TRAPS TITLE FOR LEWIS.

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., April 8.—Shooting with almost machine-like precision, Tracy H. Lewis broke ninety-eight out of 100 clay birds in the annual Long Island Sound championship tournament at the traps of the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club here today and won the principal event, the championship. Despite the fact that he missed only two of the artificial birds out of 100, Lewis failed to win the trophy for the longest run of the day. The honor in that respect fell to Dr. George H. Martin of the New York Athletic Club, who broke ninety-two straight—the last ninety-two at which he aimed.

Instead of bunching clubs in squads of five as on former occasions, two men constituted a team. The team prize was again captured by the New York Athletic Club. Dr. Martin's ninety-seven, coupled with a ninety-four, returned by his clubmate, L. F. Curtis, 191, was better than any other pair could overcome. The combined efforts of Tracy H. Lewis and W. S. Silkworth representing the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club totaled 190, and this pair tied with the team of the Bergen Beach Gun Club, John H. Hendrickson, with ninety-six, and H. W. Voorhies, with ninety-four.

After the eliminations in the handicap, Hampton won the first prize, G. S. McCutcheon the second, and F. J. Ham, the third.

TAKES TOBOGGAN HANDICAP.

BOWIE, Md., April 8.—The Toboggan Handicap, the feature event on today's card at Prince George's Park, was won by Harry Breivogel against the easiest kind of opposition from Cobalt Lass and Dan Bright. The three-year-old son of Master Robert-Ida Kearney won in a canter and had a margin of five lengths at the finish. The winner went into the lead at the start and set a fast pace. He drew away from the field, and in the stretch opened up a big gap.

Cobalt Lass showed a lot of speed, but tired in the stretch. The battle for second place was a pretty race between Cobalt Lass and Dan Bright, Cobalt holding on gamely to take the place by half a length. Dan Bright was slow in the early stages, but finished fast.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For two-year-olds, maidens; five furlongs. Kallipolis, 114 pounds, (Carey,) $32, $6.10, and $2.80, won; Querca, 114, (Butwell,) $2.40 and $2.10, second; Miss Shackleton, 114, (Rice,) $2.30, third. Time—0::49. Escarpolette, Cobwebs, Hush, Alice Haigh, Miss Stathem, Sain Rose, and Drusilla also ran.

SECOND RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; five and a half furlongs. Sibola, 107 pounds, (Metcalf,) $17.40, $9.10, and $6.10, won; Comacho, 107, (Buehrerek,) $82.80 and $18.20, second; Laura Miller, 107, (Remanetti,) $10, third. Time—1:09 2-5. General, Ina Kay, Sea Beach, Lady Ward, Sir Haste, and Dr. Campbell also ran.

THIRD RACE.—For four-year-olds and upward; claiming; six and a half furlongs. Amackassin, 109 pounds, (Butwell,) $14.50, $3.20, and $4.30, won; Broom Peddler, 111, (Rice,) $3.20 and $2.60, second; The Masquerader, 111, (Metcalf,) $4.20, third. Time—1:21 3-5. Pilsen, Dan, Sunny Hill, and Wood Violet also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—The Toboggan Handicap; for three-year-olds and upward; seven furlongs. Harry Breivogel, 105 pounds, (Erickson,) $16.00, $5.30, and $2.90, won; Cobalt Lass, 100, (Richcreek,) $3.70 and $2.50, second; Dan Bright, 107, (Rice,) $2.30, third. Time—1:27 4-5. Waukeag and Katie Caval also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; one mile. Hauberk, 106 pounds, (Sneideman,) $4.10, $2.80, and $2.50, won; Ballast, 109, (Rice,) $2.80 and $2.40, second; Lord Herbert, 103, (Richcreek,) $2.70, third. Time—1:42 3-5. Amalette, Valspar, and Prunes also ran.

HALL WINS FOILS TITLE.

Sherman Hall, holder of national fencing titles, was crowned champion of the New York A. C. for the fifth year, in the annual fencing tournament which ended in the Mercury Foot Club yesterday. Hall, in gaining the title, displayed superiority with the foil, sabre and epee, over eleven rival members. Throughout the competition the champion encountered only one setback. This surprise was administered in the second strip of the epee event, when Ray W. Dutcher defeated Hall after a hard tilt.

The competitors were: Sherman Hall, Steddiford Pitt, Major W. Gotshall, Ray W. Dutcher, Joseph Schaeffler, Hudson Budd, H. Baird, J. H. Dennen, Charles Goodhue, Dr. J. B. Clemens, A. J. Eddy and T. Blaaud.

PECK'S MIGHTY BAT WINS FOR YANKEES

His Triple with Bases Filled Overcomes Lead and Beats Dodgers by 8 to 4 Score.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., April 8.—A triple by Roger Peckinpaugh, with the bases filled and two out in the seventh inning, turned the fifth game of the Yankees-Dodgers Spring series into a New York victory this afternoon. The Huggins troupe was one run behind when Peck delivered his mighty thump to the left field fence, and when the inning ended they were resting on a three-run lead, as Pipp's single chased Peck in. Another run came across in the eighth, the Yankees finishing on the heavy end of an 8 to 4 score.

Bob Shawkey's pitching was the best that his been shown in the series. He occupied the mound for the last five innings and set the National Leaguers down with one single.

Russell, who worked the first four innings for the Yankees, atoned for his poor start by tying up the game in the second inning with a single which scored two runs. The Yankees hit Pfeffer much harder than the score in the first innings would indicate. Before he had gone the length of the New York batting order the first time the Brooklyn boxman had been reached for a home run, two doubles and three singles, yet only three runs resulted from the collection of swats. Grimes pitched two innings and was hit hard.

Pipp and Peck were the batting stars. Pipp hit to the left field fence in the first inning for a home run, a minute after Peckinpaugh had lost a decision at third base on a long drive to left. Pipp later delivered a clean single to centre with Peck on third base. Peck collected a double, a triple and a pass in four trips to the plate up to the eighth inning. Then he came up with the bases again loaded and Grimes struck him out.

The Dodgers made three runs in the first inning. After filling the bases on hits by Johnston and Griffith and a pass to Zack Wheat, Myers hit a sacrifice fly to Bodie, Johnston scoring, and the other runners advancing on the throw-in. Malone's single past first base sent Griffith and Wheat home.

Pipp's home run put the Yanks in the game in their first inning and they tied the score in the second on Lewis a single, Ward's double and a single to centre by Russell.

Brooklyn's last run was scored in the fourth on Malone's single, Nagle's sacrifice and a hit by Miller. Then Shawkey came into the box and only one Brooklyn runner passed first base during the remainder of the game.

In the seventh the Yanks filled the bases on a pass to Bodie, an error by Malone and a fielder's choice. Peck's triple cleared the sacks and Pipp's single scored Peck. In the eighth Bodie singled, stole second, took an extra base on Kruger's poor throw and scored on Hannah's single.

GIANTS BLANKED BY WORLD'S CHAMPIONS

Special to The New York Times.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., April 8.—The Boston Red Sox still are piping and the Giants continue to dance. The world's champions clinched their series with the New York Nationals today, when they annexed the fourth straight game of the series. The Giants were shut out by a score of 5 to 0.

As the series has only three more games to run, Boston already is assured of the verdict. Today's game was limited to eight innings, to enable the teams to catch an early train out of Gainesville.

Ferdie Schupp was largely responsible for the Red Sox's victory. The champions made five runs in the first inning. Hooper started off with a base on balls, and moved up to second on McNally's infield single. Strunk advanced the runners with a sacrifice. Ruth also walked, filling the bases. McInnis singled to centre, driving in Hooper and McNally. Vitt came along with another single to left, and Ruth scored. Scott was the second out, fouling to Earl Smith, but the volleying started afresh when Walters and Pennock singled, scoring McInnis and Vitt.

A feature of the game was Rube Benton's driving out two singles. Kauff and Zimmerman each have made only one hit in the four games played to date.

After a week of training it looked as though Schupp again would take his place among McGraw's leading pitchers. But Schupp today displayed the same lack of control that made him useless to McGraw last season. In four innings he walked six men, and in the first inning he was bumped for five hits and five runs. After that Schupp went much better, but the damage was done. Rube Benton took a four-inning workout after Schupp pitched his four innings, and did well.

Herb Pennock and George Dumont, Boston youngsters, won the shutout for Ed Barrow's team. The Giants were constantly getting their first man on base, but there their efforts ceased. Pennock fanned Young twice, once with two runners on the bases. The Red Sox again played errorless ball.

TILDEN AND VOSHELL WIN.

Will Meet Today on Pinehurst Court —Kumagae to Play Richards.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 8.—The women's singles and men's singles were brought down to the semi-finals in the North and South tennis tournament at Pinehurst today. Mrs. Harry Franklin Morse of the West Side Club, formerly Miss Marion Vanderhoef, won fom her clubmate, Miss Florence Ballin, in the feature match of the day. Mrs. Morse lost the first set, 4—6, but took the match by winning the next two sets at 6—2, 6—4.

Miss Marion Zinderstein of the Longwood Club, the favorite for the women's singles trophy, disposed in succession of Miss Judith Jenks of Harbor Beach and Miss Carolyn Bogart of Moore County.

In the men's singles Kumagae and Richards came through in the upper bracket and are expected to provide an interesting match in tomorrow's semi-final round. Tilden and Voshell will oppose each other in the lower bracket.

The summaries:

Men's Singles, Second Round.—Ichiya Kumagae, West Side, beat C. S. Pidgeway, Jr., Columbus, 6—0, 6—0; Vincent Richards, New Jersey Tennis, beat C. F. Watson, Jr., Westchester, 6—4, 6—3; W. T. Hall, Moore County, beat Mrs. Gildden Osborne, Chicago, 6—2, 4—6, 6—0.

CLAPP WINS AT SQUASH.

Reaches Semi-Final in Yale Club Tourney.

E. J. Clapp advanced to the semi-final rounds in both sections of the Yale Club's squash tennis tournament yesterday. In each instance Clapp's victory came with comparative ease. In Class A Clapp defeated J. B. Cornell by 15—6, 15—9. R. Roome went down before Clapp in Class B, the scores being 15—7, 15—9.

The hardest match of the day came in the Class B section when J. F. O'Rourke triumphed over N. C. Holland. The match went three ames, the scores being 1—11, 12—15, 15—8.

The summaries:

Class A.—Second Round—E. J. Clapp defeated J. B. Cornell, 15—6, 15—9; Donald McKay won from Allan Corey by default; T. Livingston Platt defeated H. R. Stern, 15—8, 15—7; S. Walnwright, Jr., defeated H. C. McClintock, 15—8, 15—11.

Class B.—Second Round—J. F. O'Rourke defeated N. C. Holland, 15—11, 12—15, 15—8; E. J. Clapp defeated R. Roome, 15—7, 15—9; H. R. Stern defeated S. Walnwright, Jr., 15—7, 15—12.

ANOTHER SQUASH TITLE FOR APPEL

Wins Harvard Club Championship by Easily Defeating Coburn in Straight Sets.

John W. Appel, Jr., won the squash championship of the Harvard Club yesterday, easily defeating R. G. Coburn in three straight games, 15—5, 15—5, 15—4. Appel has won every tournament he entered this season, one of the victories giving him the national amateur title. He won the invitation tournament at the Yale Club early in the season against a field of the best college club players, and then scored an easy victory in the national tournament. He had no trouble in gaining the Harvard Club honors yesterday, for at no time was Coburn able to match the hard smashing game of the champion.

Once in the second game Coburn rallied and with the count 10 to 1 against him, he scored 4 aces on pretty placement shots and for a time it looked as if he would give Appel a battle. The champion, however, was able to score as he pleased, and whenever he felt that he needed an ace he had no difficulty in getting it with terrific corner-to-corner smashes or 'round the court drives, which baffled his opponent. Appel covers court with remarkable speed for a big man, for he weighs over 200 pounds, and is able to dance around the court like a lightweight.

Coburn's defense was stubborn in the first game and Appel was not able to score more than two aces in any one hand until toward the end, when he ruled off five in succession to win. The champion started off with a rush in the second game and after counting three in the first two hands, he rolled up five more in the succeeding hand and made the score 8—0. Two more aces on "kills" off the sidewalls sent his advantage to 10—0. Then Coburn's game picked up and he brought the count to 10—5 on placement shots. Appel, however, had plenty of speed in reserve and in the last two hands he scored five aces and took the second game.

Appel ran away with the third and deciding game and he scored frequently on terrific smashes up and down the court. Several of his corner drives were so low that it was impossible for Coburn to make a "get." The champion finished strong by making five aces in next to the last hand.

The summary:

CORWIN QUITS YALE BOARD.

Was Head of Athletic Committee for Five Years.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 8.—It was announced here tonight that Robert N. Corwin had resigned as Chairman of the Yale Athletic Committee. The reason given was the press of other duties as chairman on the Joint committee on entrance examinations.

Professor Corwin was captain and end of the football team in 1888. He had been at the head of the athletic committee for five years, during which time he had maintained high standards in the sports at Yale.

and their correspondents throughout the world

The personal introduction, which obtains for the traveller the services and facilities of the Correspondents named in the list attached to the Letter of Credit should, in addition to its financial safeguards, recommend the Letter of Credit, especially in these times, as desirable in the highest degree as a financial arrangement for those contemplating foreign travel.

12 Selected Bond Issues

If you now have funds to invest, or expect to have in the near future, we suggest that you send for our list of twelve carefully selected bond issues. The interest on some of the bonds is paid by the issuing companies without deduction for normal Federal Income Tax up to 2%, while the interest on others is wholly exempt from Federal Income Tax. Insurance companies and other institutions have included certain of the bonds among their investments. Please ask for List No. 1232.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The forward movement of industrial stocks gained greater headway yesterday, and the fact that dealings reached a total well in excess of one million shares persuaded the speculative community that buying by the public had become a factor of considerable importance. The general character of trading, however, was not changed and the greatest demonstration of strength was among those particular issues which have been bid upward rapidly for some time past. It looked as though a number of strong pools were active, more active than last week, although confidence in the whole price list, with the exception of the copper stocks, was evident throughout the day. Advances running from 1 to more than 3 points were well distributed at the close with a few stocks gaining considerably more than the maximum mentioned. Steel common was a laggard, perhaps because of talk of a further reduction of the extra dividend, but most of the other steel issues gained ground under a fair amount of purchases.

Whatever the superficial factors may be which have lent courage to the constructive side of the securities market, one great influence of real and lasting import appeared yesterday which was impressive. This was the forecast by the Department of Agriculture of the prospective Winter wheat yield. A record-breaking outturn of $837,000,000 bushels, with a guaranteed selling value of close to $1,900,000,000, was predicted, and when one considers the probable condition of the world's supplies and world markets during the year this vast total supplies material to stir the imagination of those who calculate the increase of the country's wealth entailed in this crop. Extraordinary as this estimate is, the indications are that with favorable weather and soil conditions the yield will be even greater, inasmuch as the Winter "kill" and abandonment of acreage is likely to prove less than the average of a period of years. The condition percentage of 99.8 is the highest for April in more than a generation. In actual yield the total predicted would exceed last year's Winter crop by 278,000,000 bushels and would surpass the best previous crop by more than 150,000,000 bushels. As time goes on and additional news comes of conditions in the other great wheat producing regions of the earth, the impression grows that the taxpayers of the United States will have less of a burden to shoulder through the guaranteed price of $2.26 per bushel than was considered probable a few months ago, with wheat going to outside consuming markets at high prices.

The meeting of railroad men and bankers yesterday may or may not have been of particular significance, but it showed at any rate that active measures are being carried out to meet pressing demands of the carriers until Congress meets again. Large maturities have to be provided for on May 1, and it is reasonable to assume that plans are being shaped to take care of requirements as far ahead as July 1. The market for railroad stocks, while neither strong nor active is showing confidence that whatever contingencies arise will be amply cared for. The foreign exchange market supplied nothing of especial interest. Call money loaned at 6 per cent., with an easing tendency toward the end of the day.

Export Shipments

A proper method of financing shipments to foreign buyers will permit you to do a maximum business on your capital and to compete with the credit terms offered by the exporters of other countries.

Through the medium of bank acceptances it is possible to quote favorable credit terms to your foreign customers and at the same time receive cash for your goods immediately upon shipment.

OPPOSED BY REALTY MEN

Decision by Appellate Division Saves State $8,000,000 in Corporation Franchise Taxes.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 8.—The State income tax proposed by the Davenport-Judson Special Committee on Tax Legislation as the best means of refilling the State's depleted treasury was bitterly attacked at a hearing this afternoon before the committee. It was characterized as dishonest and unnecessary by State Controller Eugene M. Travis. The hearing was enlivened by several tilts between Controller Travis and Professors E. R. A. Seligman of Columbia and Charles J. Bullock of Harvard, tax experts, employed by the committee to aid it in arriving at its conclusions.

"I challenge the committee to submit the income tax to a vote of the people," declared the Controller. "That was done in Professor Bullock's State. The people of New York State do not want this bill."

He warned the committee that such a measure would be resented, evaded, and avoided by the people, and declared that its enactment would result in the State's losing many estimable citizens "willing to pay their just share but intolerant of any unjust scheme."

Mr. Travis thus summarized his chief objections to the measure:

"First. No deduction is allowed on account of income taxes paid to the Federal Government. The theory of an income tax is that the individual shall be required to pay according to ability. One's faculty to pay is limited to the amount of income left after satisfying the requirements of the Federal Government. The individual with an income of $1,000,000 is already taxed, for 1919, $663,000 thereon. His capacity to stand further taxation is not measured by $1,000,000 but by the $337,000 which remains. The person with an income of $100,000 is already taxed $31,190 by the Federal Government. His ability to pay is not gauged by $100,000 but by the $68,810 left at his disposal. The individual with an income of $10,000 will pay the Federal Government $590 thereof. His faculty to pay taxes is not, therefore, determined by $10,000 but by the $9,410 remaining. Stated differently, with no deduction permitted on account of income taxes paid to the Federal Government, this bill provides for a tax on a tax as well as on ability or faculty to pay.

"The primary object seemingly is to collect money regardless of equity. It is my judgment that the enactment of this idea into law will result in losing, as citizens of the State, many thousands of estimable men, men who willingly will pay their share of the State's burden but will not tolerate this unjust plan of taking from them what, in all justice and equity, they should not be called upon to pay.

"Second. Income from State and municipal obligations heretofore issued is exempt, but income on future issues is to be taxed. That may be correct in theory but in actual practice the effect will be to the detriment of the State and its political subdivisions. Securities of this nature have sold at low rates of interest because they were tax exempt and for the reason that investors could rely on a fixed income even though it be at a low rate. The effect of taxing income from securities of this nature will be an automatic rise in the rate of interest on such obligations. Furthermore, the interest will mount out of proportion to the tax. Investors will fear as increase in the income tax rate and will adjust their bids on long-term securities accordingly. I predict that for every dollar of tax received on income of this nature the State and municipalities will pay more than a dollar of increased interest. Indirectly, the State or the obligor municipality will pay the tax and more.

"Third. Income from mortgages on real property and of investments upon which a secured debt tax or an investment tax was paid prior to June 1, 1917, is to be taxed. In other words, the State is not to keep faith with those who have paid mortgage taxes or taxes on secured debts and investments, relying on the exemption from other taxation granted by then existing laws.

If this tax is imposed it will, in the final analysis, be paid by the owner of the mortgaged property, or the obligor on an investment, just as certainly and surely as would an annual tax, at a fixed rate, imposed on the principal of the obligation. The man who borrows the money will pay the tax. No law can change this rule.

"Fourth—The failure to allow a deduction on account of bad debts not actually charged off is unreasonable, and not in sympathy with business custom or good accounting practice. Such an arbitrary rule is unfair. I realize that in this respect the provision of the Federal statute has been followed; nevertheless, that does not make it right. In actual practice, individuals and partnerships engaged in business cannot say at the end of a business year just what debts are worthless, and, therefore, they cannot and do not charge them off. I think this provision should be amended to allow as a deduction a reasonable reserve for worthless debts.

"Fifth—The provision regarding the withholding of income of nonresidents at the source is complicated and oppressive. It requires every person who pays rent or interest on a mortgage, or salary or compensation, or income of any nature, to a nonresident of the State, to withhold 2 per cent. thereof and to render reports to the Tax Commission. This provision will have the effect of discouraging dealings with nonresidents, or deterring residents of other States from being employed or investing capital in New York, and of calling mortgages on real property within the State. I can think of no more offensive provision nor one which presents such positive administrative difficulties."

New York City real estate men, led by Laurence McGuire, of the New York Real Estate Board, offered opposition to the measure. Mr. McGuire declared that the bill should be immediately rejected because "it is so replete with iniquities and insufficiencies."

"A personal property tax of two per cent. in New York City alone would yield $100,000,000, or twice the amount the income tax purposes to raise," declared Mr. McGuire. "A measure of this kind would be fairer."

Some of those prepared to speak against the income tax bill were not heard today because of the lateness of the hour at which the hearing was started. They will be heard tomorrow. Controller Craig, of New York City, is one of these.

The Special Tax Committee of the Mayor's conference today approved the income tax proposition with the exception of the provision which applies the share of cities to the payment of county taxes. The bill is expected to give relief to the municipalities of the State through sharing equally in taxes collected.

Amounts paid by corporations to the Federal Government for income taxes and excess profit taxes cannot be deducted from their net incomes before paying the State franchise tax of 3 per cent. on net incomes, the Appellate Division of the Third Judicial District decided today. The decision, which was unanimous, sustains the contention of Attorney General Charles D. Newton, and means a saving of approximately $8,000,000 to the State, which it would have been obliged to repay corporations if the court's ruling had been adverse. The decision was rendered in the case of the Barcalo Manufacturing Company of Buffalo, which, through ex-Senator Elon R. Brown, attacked the State's right to levy taxes on amounts already paid the Federal Government.

BANKERS DISCUSS NEEDS OF CARRIERS

PLAN CONSTRUCTIVE POLICY

Howard Elliott, Chairman of the Special Committee of Railway Executives which has been acting for the railroads since Congress failed to appropriate the funds which Director General Hines requested, was host at a luncheon yesterday at which several prominent bankers and railroad men attended. Late in the afternoon Mr. Elliott said that it was an informal affair and that it had been held for the purpose of discussing generally the financial situation of the carriers.

Among those who are said to have attended the luncheon, in addition to Mr. Elliott, are Dwight W. Morrow of J. P. Morgan & Co., Jerome J. Hanauer of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Harry Bronner, President of the Missouri Pacific; R. S. Lovett of the Union Pacific, Jackson Reynolds, Vice President of the First National Bank, and P. V. Davis, Vice President of the National City Company.

The meeting, it is understood, is not the first that has been held, and, according to Mr. Elliott, there probably will be several others within the next few weeks, or until such time as Congress may be reconvened and take action for the relief of the railroad situation.

Railroad maturities for May 1 are relatively small, and the same may be said of the maturities falling on June 1, but the July 1 financial requirements of the railroads will probably run into several hundred million dollars. As nobody knows when Congress will be called together, and how soon after it is assembled it will appropriate funds for the Railroad Administration, it is considered advisable that some temporary arrangements be made. In this respect, the War Finance Corporation is expected to be used extensively, but there are competent observers who believe banks and bankers will play an important part in financing the roads, as well. Several weeks ago it was said that many bankers were prepared to form a syndicate for the relief of the situation, and this state of affairs still obtains, according to leading financiers.

Although yesterday's conference was hedged about with the utmost secrecy, it was known of in most well informed financial circles and the fact that it was being held was considered as highly favorable, for it was generally felt that whatever might eventuate as a result of the meeting would be constructive.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

F. S. Smithers & Co. and Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co. are offering $1,500,000 Valvoline Oil Company 8 per cent. cumulative convertible (sinking fund) preferred stock at 100 and accrued dividend.

A committee headed by Mortimer N. Buckner, President of the New York Trust Company, and composed of J. C. Neff, Vice President of the Fidelity Trust Company of Philadelphia; S. F. T. Brock, Charles Counselman, Chicago; George T. Ordway, and John A. Langan, has been formed in the interest of holders of the two-year 6 per cent. collateral notes of the Memphis Street Railway Company, which is in the hands of a receiver.

The New York State League of Savings and Loan Associations will hold its thirty-first annual meeting in Oneonta, N. Y., June 19 and 20, next.

Henry L. Doherty & Co. have announced that the monthly distribution on Cities Service Bankers shares payable May 1 on shares of record April 15 will be 41.1 cents, as compared with 39.6 cents on April 1.

Charles W. Hill & Co. have issued a circular describing the capital stock of the Guaranty Trust Company as an investment.

Captain Arthur Grant, who served on the General Staff in France, will be located with R. M. Grant & Co. in New York. He was formerly in charge of the company's Boston office, which he left to enter an officers' training camp.

Two Periods in One Bank's History

IN NINETEEN HUNDRED AND FOURTEEN, THE NAME OF KOUNTZE, long prominent in American finance, became actively identified with one of the oldest banks in commercial New York. This institution—now the Atlantic National Bank—has a history of no small interest to the New York merchant of today.

In 1829—90 years ago—there was organized for the convenience of New York business men of those days the Merchants Exchange Bank. This bank, which was nationalized in 1865, was closely associated with the great districts wherein the produce, shipping, shoe and leather, dry goods and hardware businesses were conducted. More than 30 years ago, Phineas C. Lounsbury, former Governor of Connecticut and a prominent shoe manufacturer, was elected to the presidensy.

When the Kountze interests became identified with the bank, Governor Lounsbury was chosen chairman of the board and Herman D. Kountze president. The name was changed to the Atlantic National Bank. New Departments were added and others strengthened and enlarged.

The Atlantic National Bank seeks to serve the business man. It offers him facilities to meet his every banking requirement, both domestic and foreign. It fosters the spirit of constructive cooperation which in these rapidly moving times counts tremendously in the progress of American business.

COTTON PRICES RISE.

Market Overcomes Early Weakness and Closes Higher.

After a forenoon in which the cotton market was decidedly weak at times and was uncertain and irregular at all times, yesterday's market hardened before the closing, and finished the day at additional gains, which took the price level into new high ground for the movement. The early weakness was caused mainly by reports of unfavorable developments at Paris. It was said here that a crisis had been reached among the peace negotiators, and the South and some of the spot interests which have been accumulating cotton for more than a week past started to sell. This brought in liquidation from Wall Street houses and from some of the wire houses which also have been buying lately, and for a time there was a general scurry to get out. This took the market down something more than 30 points, on the average, and gave the list an appearance of weakness such as has not been seen in about ten days.

In the afternoon, however, the market improved on more encouraging reports from abroad, and also because of the strength which the stock market was developing. The Wall Street houses which joined in the early selling were among the first to buy back what they had disposed of. Then, too, advices from the South were more encouraging in the afternoon, and foreign reports on trade conditions were somewhat better than they had been.

The spot market was very firm, scoring an advance of 20 points, to 29.25 cents, the best recorded in some time. At the close futures were up 20 to 35 points for old-style contracts and 20 to 40 for new-style contracts actively dealt in.

Grange Urges Low-Rate Loan.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Headquarters of the National Grange made public today a letter addressed to Secretary Glass, urging that the interest rate on the Victory Liberty Loan be fixed at 4¼ per cent. The letter said masters of State granges and other representatives of farming interests were asking that the rate be no higher.

ATTACK COTTON EMBARGO.

Farmers Declare Administration Has Denied Them a Fair Deal.

DALLAS, Tex., April 8.—Supplementing resolutions adopted by the Texas Cotton Conference declaring that the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States had assisted in forcing down the price of cotton and that the control of movement and marketing of cotton by Bernard Baruch was antagonistic to the interests of the cotton growers, N. A. Shaw, Chairman of the Conference, announced today that a movement had been begun to organize Southern farmers to force the removal of the cotton embargo.

"The whole world is organized against cotton," said Mr. Shaw, "and our own Governmen is giving aid and encouragement to those who are trying to force down prices.

"The farmers believe that cotton has not had a fair deal and that the reason is that cotton is grown in Texas and other Southern States, rather than in Ohio, Iowa or Connecticut.

"For the first time since the war between he Saes, a conference composed of more than 400 farmers who have been unanimously voting the Democratic ticket all their lives have met and almost unanimously expressed their great dissatisfaction with the way things are being run in Washington as far as they relate to their own interests and industry."

National Railways of Mexico Report.

TO THE HOLDERS OF
The Memphis Street Railway Company
Two-Year Six Per Cent. Collateral Gold Notes
Bearing date November 1, 1917, and Maturing November 1, 1919.

The holders of large amounts of the securities above mentioned being of the opinion that immediate steps should be taken to protect their interest therein, have requested the undersigned to act as a committee to receive deposits thereof. Receivers of the property of The Memphis Street Railway Company were appointed by the United States District Court on the twentieth day of January, 1919, and the default of the Company in the payment of interest upon its Consolidated Mortgage Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds (of which $1,416,000 principal amount are pledged as part security for the Two-Year Six Per Cent. Collateral Gold Notes), which occurred on January 1, 1919, still continues.

In view of these conditions, it is most urgent that the holders of the above mentioned Two-Year Six Per Cent. Collateral Gold Notes, for their own protection, should organize at once for united action under a Committee having adequate power and authority. Holders of the Memphis Street Railway Company Two-Year Six Per Cent. Collateral Gold Notes are therefore requested to deposit their notes with the Depositary or one of the Sub-Depositaries named below under a Noteholders Agreement duly executed under date of March 12, 1919. All notes so deposited must be in negotiable form and must bear the May 1, 1919, and subsequent coupons. All depositors will be entitled to receive certificates of deposit issued in their names.

Before any depositor shall become bound by the terms of any plan or agreement of reorganization or readjustment made or approved by this Committee, he shall have an opportunity to withdraw on the terms and provisions set forth in the Noteholders Agreement, which provides that withdrawing depositors shall not be required to pay, in respect of the compensation and expenses of the Committee, any sums in excess of 2% of the principal amount of their deposited notes.

Copies of the Committee's circular and of the Noteholders Agreement may be obtained by application either to the Depositary or the Sub-Depositaries.

Dated New York, April 9th, 1919.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Prices closed steady in an active market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Closing prices in the standard issues, especially in the industrials, showed substantial reductions from the top quotations as the result of realization sales. Other issues, however, closed at about the best prices of the session. The reactions had no effect on disturbing the firm undertone.

DETROIT DEFEATS CITY OWNERSHIP

"DRY" VICTORY BY 94,654

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, April 8.—Mayor Couzen's plan for the purchase of the Detroit United Railway lines was defeated decisively in Monday's election. Requiring a 60 per cent. favorable vote to carry, the measure received about 48 per cent. complete returns—gave yes 59,479, no 63,382. Belief on the part of the voters that the amount of the purchase price, $31,500,000, far exceeded the combined physical and intangible valuations of the street car company's holdings is cited as the main reason for the defeat of the amendment.

By a majority twice as large as that by which they voted the state "dry" in 1916, Michigan voters rejected the constitutional amendment modifying the State's prohibition laws to permit the sale of beer and wine. Reports late tonight from 1,255 precincts out of 2,339 in the State gave a majority against the amendment of 115,400, which exceeds the prohibition majority three years ago by 55,000. Prohibition leaders tonight were predicting that the margin would reach 150,000.

Dry leaders do not hesitate to give women full credit for their victory. Analysis shows that the male "dry" strength remained just about what it was, and the women supplied the "overwhelming" end of the victory.

The entire Republican State ticket of minor State officers was elected by large majorities, and a $50,000,000 highway construction program was overwhelmingly adopted.

NORTHERN PACIFIC'S REPORT

Earns $8.11 a Share in 1918, Compared with $11.89 in 1917.

The annual report of the Northern Pacific Company for 1918, which was issued following the stockholders' meeting in this city yesterday, shows a net income after charges amounting to $20,129,334, equivalent to $8.11 a share earned on the $248,000,000 capital stock as compared with $11.89 earned on the stock in 1917. This was the result of the corporate report of the company based on a standard return of $30,089,692. Attached to the report was the Federal income account for the benefit and convenience of stockholders in providing a true comparison of operating results with the preceding year.

The Federal income account showed a net operating income of $31,891,957 for 1918, which indicates a profit to the Government over the guaranteed rental of approximately $302,265 for the operation of the Northern Pacific during the year. When all deductions were made, however, the account prepared by the Government showed a deficit amounting to $1,228,429. Interesting items from the Federal balance sheet follow:

Operating expenses	71,516,302	53,297,861
Net oper. income	$31,391,957	$34,927,865
Gross income	$30,678,681	$32,130,531
Deductions	1,817,418	750,995
	$28,861,263	$31,379,565
Net Federal deficit	$1,228,429

The general balance sheet of the company, as of Dec. 31, 1918, showed an increase in the sinking fund, item to $8,465,141 from $4,595 in 1917, while the amount of bonds held in 1918 decreased to $7,723,587 from $11,125,765 in the preceding year. Corporate surplus was $114,873,835, as compared with $110,727,127.

Howard Elliott, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the company, announced that the company now has 27,000 shareholders, 1,700 more than in 1917, and that the average holdings of the stock were ninety-two shares.

BRITISH REACH FOR TRADE.

Unofficial Envoys to Supplement Reformed Consular Service.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Information of plans for reform of the British consular service, with the proposed expenditure of £1,000,000 annually for consuls and £250,000 for commercial attachés, was received with great interest today by officials here, who are directing the Government's preparations for peacetime foreign trade expansion.

Co-operating closely with the new consular service will be a worldwide system of trade commissioners established by several British trade associations, one of which represents 20,000 firms with a combined capital of £4,000,000,000. The first commissioner of this association has already been stationed in Greece to organize trade throughout the Near East. Another has been stationed in Madrid, and a third is to tour South Africa. Other representatives have gone to Serbia and Holland.

Of especial interest here was the announcement that eight leading Brazilians have been invited by the organization to tour England this Summer accompanied by the newly appointed commercial attachés for Brazil.

If its plans are carried out, the association will cover the world with trade commissioners, who will not be selling agents or commercial travelers, but will have a freer hand than consuls or commercial attachés. They will make their reports by cable.

SECOND DAY OF FUR SALE.

Thus Far, $1,500,000 Worth of Pelts Have Been Disposed Of.

Buyers were again on the trail of Summer furs at the sale in the Masonic Temple yesterday, and in practically all cases these skins brought higher prices than at the mid-Winter auction. Sales for the day totaled $1,000,000, bringing the total for the first two days of the auction to $1,500,000.

The morning session opened with the offering of about 100 of silver fox lots that had been left over from Monday. Although several lots of these goods were of a minor grade, they brought good prices. The best sold for $340. Compared with the mid-Winter sale, fresh black silvers showed a gain of 15 per cent. Fresh clear skins gained 10 per cent., and the medium and low grades advanced 50 per cent.

Squirrel was next put on the block, with bidding fairly brisk and prices ranging from 6 cents to $1.02. Lynx prices ranged from $10.25 to $40. The offerings of this fur was considerably smaller than at the Spring sale of 1918, and a curious reason for the shortage of these furs was offered by a Canadian dealer. He said it was due to the prevalence among the rabbits of a peculiar malady that appears every seven years. This is the seventh year, he said, and the scarcity of this staple food for furs-bearers resulted in the death of many of the animals and a consequent diminution of breeding.

Gray fox prices ranged from $3.10 to $4.50, and other fox prices showed up this way; white, $20 to $56; cross, $14 to $169, and red, $7.50 to $55. Bidding for cross fox was active, after a slow start, and buyers also showed that they were considerably interested in the red fox offered. The poorest Australian opposum skins brought $1.55 each, while the best ones sold for $3.70. For ringtail opossum the range was 35 cents to $1.25.

Chinchilla was also sold during the day, but the offering of this fur was very small. Marten had to be put over until today, and will go under the hammer at 11 A. M. The sale will begin at that hour today in order to permit members of the trade to attend the funeral of Waldemar Eidtgon, a prominent fur man, who will be buried from the Temple Emanu-El at 10 o'clock.

Gray fox prices showed a drop of 15 per cent. from the point established at the mid-Winter sale, and white fox showed no change. These percentage increases were shown by the others: squirrel, 20; lynx, 10; cross fox, 10; red fox, 10; Australian opossum, 35, and ringtail opossum, 25. In addition to the 3,423 marten pelts left over from yesterday, Auctioneer Noakes will auction off following today: sundries, Chinese weasel, Chinese raccoon, wild cat, ringtail cat, otter, sundry fox, Australian fox, wolf and American opossum. The last-named will be the first really large offering of the sale, including 226,500 skins.

Dress Goods Advances.

Dress goods sellers are asking an increase of around 5 per cent. throughout the lines. While the distribution could be better at the present time, mill agents have no complaint to offer over conditions. One house, after being sold up on tricotines for next Fall, is now engaged in cutting orders in half so that the mills representing may be able to fill contracts. Continued labor trouble in the industry will probably have the effect of curtailing production, and this is also being taken into account in the revision of order books.

PROPOSALS.

SEALED BIDS WILL BE RECEIVED BY the Board of Water Supply, at its offices, twenty-second floor, Municipal Building, Park Row, Centre and Chambers streets, New York City, until 11 A. M., on Wednesday, May 14, 1919, for Contract 203, for the construction of the Bilbon dam, in the Town of Gilboa, Schoharie county, New York. The dam is part of the Schoharie Watershed development for the New York City watersupply and is composed of two parts,—an overflow masonry portion about 1,300 feet in length and having a maximum height of about 140 feet, and an earthen section approximately 1,000 feet long. At the above place and time the bids will be publicly opened and read. Pamphlets containing information for bidders and contract drawings can be obtained at the above address, at the office of the Secretary, by depositing the sum of twenty dollars ($20) in cash or its equivalent for each pamphlet. Further particulars apply to the office of the Principal Assistant Engineer at the above address. JOHN F. GALVIN, President; CHARLES N. CHADWICK, L. J. O'BRIEN, Commissioners. Board of Water Supply. BENJ. F. EINBIGLER, Secretary.

RECEIVERS' NOTICES.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on March 11, 1919, the District Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts, wherein the undersigned Wallace B. Donham was appointed Receiver of the Bay State Street Railway Company, made and entered a decree of foreclosure and sale, pursuant to the terms of Article Fourth of which the holders of all unpaid claims, debts and demands against the Bay State Street Railway Company, or the Receiver, except—

(a) claims, debts and demands in respect of the obligations secured by the mortgages or deeds of trust foreclosed by said decree; and

(b) claims, debts and demands in respect of the mortgages or deeds of trust or other instruments more particularly referred to in Article Fourth of said decree; and

(c) claims, debts and demands heretofore presented in the cause of The Archibald McNeil & Sons Company v. Bay State Street Railway Company now pending in the said District Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts, in equity No. 834, Consolidated cause, or in the constituent causes; are required to present the same on or before a certain date to be fixed by the Receiver, which the Receiver hereby fixes as April 15, 1919, to the Receiver as such Receiver, and any such claim, debt or demand not so presented other than

(1) Any deficiency judgment or judgments which may be obtained by American Trust Company, as successor trustee under the Boston and Northern Refunding First Mortgage in respect of the Boston and Northern Refunding Bonds secured thereby, or by the holders of said Boston and Northern First Mortgage Refunding Bonds, or any deficiency judgment or judgments which may be obtained by the Old Colony Trust Company as trustee under the Old Colony Railway Company Refunding First Mortgage in respect of the Old Colony Railway Company First Mortgage Refunding Bonds secured thereby, or by the holders of said Old Colony First Mortgage Refunding Bonds; or

(2) Any claim, debt or demand against the Bay State Company, or the Receiver, which may arise subsequent to the expiration of the time fixed by the Receiver for the presentation of such claims, debts and demands;

shall not, unless the Court shall otherwise order, be enforceable against the Bay State Company, or against the Receiver, or against the property sold under said decree of foreclosure and sale, or any part or portion of said property, or against any purchaser of the same, or any part thereof, or his successors or assigns, nor other than as aforesaid shall any such claim, debt or demand or so presented be entitled to share in the distribution of any proceeds of sale under said decree of foreclosure and sale.

Nothing contained in said Article Thirteenth shall affect any right that may exist to commence and prosecute to judgment in other tribunals suits against the Receiver, provided, however, that the claims to be presented as above required shall recite the fact of such suits. All proofs of claims, debts or demands presented as aforesaid shall also describe as definitely as practicable any collateral then held as security for the payment thereof.

All proofs of such unpaid claims, debts or demands should be mailed or delivered to the Receiver at the address given below not later than April 15, 1919.

Fancies Over Plain Ribbons.

The demand in the ribbon trade still centres on fancy goods of the higher priced variety, almost to the exclusion of the plain styles in cheaper merchandise. One plain goods manufacturer, in fact, is reported to have taken the contract of warping for a fancy ribbon maker. Velvets are good in spots, principally in red and blue shades. Wide goods still hold the big balance of business.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A special meeting of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association has been called for Monday next at the La Salle Hotel, Chicago. It will open at 10 A. M. Among the business that will come before the meeting will be the consideration of the present market situation and a discussion of selling policies.

The Fall and Winter color card of J. Claude Freres & Cie, Paris, is now being distributed by the firm's American agent, John H. Howell, 31 Union Square. The card contains sixty-six shades, divided into sixteen groups. The group names smack of the war, including among other Americain, Italien, Britannique, Canadien, Australien, and Roseau Japonais.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

BEN ALI HAGGIN, artist, of 875 Madison Avenue.—Judge A. N. Hand has appointed Percival Wilds receiver in bond of $2,500. It was stated that the assets consist of money due from his trust funds. He has several trust funds of which he is the beneficiary. His income therefrom has been attached and is being applied to one judgment, and many other suits are about to be commenced against these trust funds.

WELLWORTH LUNCH CO., Inc., of 1,560 Broadway.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against this company by these creditors: Ph. Wechsler, $391; Samuel Baum, $90, and Redas Bros. $26. Judge A. N. Hand appointed John L. Lyttle receiver. Liabilities are stated to be $10,000 and assets $1,000.

EMMA SCHWAB of 2,607 Jerome Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $2,944, and no assets.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The five-story building at 38 Pine Street, now occupied by the Mercantile Bank of the Americas, was purchased yesterday by Blandy, Mooney and Shipman, lawyers.

This transaction, which involved about $250,000, is the result of the constantly growing demand for office space in the financial district. The lawyers were forced to relinquish the sixteenth floor of 37 Wall Street, as it was needed for subsidiaries of the Equitable Trust Company, owner of the building, and following the lead of many other firms in that they purchased a permanent home.

The River Street building, which occupies a plat 23.7 by 61.6 was sold by the Underwriters Building Company, who purchased it a year ago through Arthur C. Sheridan, auctioneer, for $205,000.

It was erected about seven years ago in the heart of what was then the insurance district, but with the transformation of Pine Street into the financial district the building passed into the possession of the Mercantile Bank of the Americas.

William A. White & Sons represented the buyers and the Charles F. Noyes Company the sellers in the transaction.

The Mercantile Bank of the America's, which was developed about three years ago on Exchange Place, moved into the building just sold about two years ago. Subsequently, the bank leased the adjoining nine-story building at 40 to 44 Pine Street, and ultimately will occupy the entire structure, and it is intended to move here the activities now in No. 38, as soon as the leases expire next year.

Buys Downtown Lofts.

Harry Aronson, Inc., represented by Simon Meyers, bought from the United States Trust Company, trustees for the Public Library, the seven-story building at 127 and 129 Prince Street, northwest corner of Wooster Street, 94.6 by 40, with an "L" from Wooster Street 86 feet deep. Thomas C. Buek of Stewart and Sheerer acted as attorney for the sellers and Simon and Feinberg represented the buyers.

Resale of Front Street Loft.

Ross W. Weir & Co. resold the five-story loft building 30 by 80, held at $55,000, at 52 Front Street, to the Seatrade Corporation. The Charles F. Noyes Company negotiated the sale. Merrill, Rogers & Terry, attorneys, represented the sellers and Knox & Deignan acted for the purchasers.

B. Altman & Co. Buyers of Former Morris K. Jesup Residence.

B. Altman & Co. are the buyers of the former residence of the late Morris K. Jesup at the southeast corner of Madison Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street. The company recently purchased the property under the name of the Commercial Improvement Company of Madison Avenue, Inc., through George R. Read & Co. from the Barstun Realty Company. The property consists of a four-story building on plot 49.5x100 and faces the Altman store, which occupies the block bounded by Fifth and Madison Avenues, Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Streets. Just what disposition is to be made of the Jesup corner has not been definitely decided.

Negotiations for Sale of German Odd Fellows' Home Pending.

Asked yesterday concerning recent rumors that the German Odd Fellows' Home Society in Yonkers was about to sell its twenty-eight acre property near Tuckahoe to the Hebrew National Orphan Asylum of East Seventh Street, Frank Wuttge, a prominent German Odd Fellow said that negotiations were under way to that end. He also said that in case the deal was effected the inmates of the home at Tuckahoe would probably be removed to the old Odd Fellows' Home in Unionport.

ASKS DISMISSAL OF BREWERS' TEST SUIT

DECLARES WAR IS NOT OVER

Says Further It Does Not Appear That the Government Consented to be Sued.

An answer was filed with the Federal court yesterday by Assistant United States District Attorney Barnes to the suit brought by the Jacob Hoffman Brewing Company for an injunction to restrain the United States District Attorney and Mark Eisner, Collector of Internal Revenue, from interfering with the manufacture of beer containing 2.75 per cent. volume of alcohol. It has been ruled by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue that beer containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol was intoxicating, and therefore came under the President's proclamation forbidding the manufacture of alcoholic beverages as a war measure. The brewers set up the primary claim that the law did not give the Commissioner the right to set a standard of intoxication.

The answer filed yesterday asks that the suit be dismissed because Mr. Eisner ceased to be Collector of Internal Revenue on March 23, because it seeks to restrain the authorities from doing their duty in regard to enforcing the criminal statutes, and because it does not appear that the United States Government consented to be sued.

In the suit, which was filed by Emory Buckner, and in which Elihu Root, William D. Guthrie, and William L. Marbury appear as counsel, an injunction was asked restraining Mark Eisner, then the Collector of Internal Revenue, and Francis G. Caffey, United States District Attorney, from interfering with the manufacture of beer containing not more than 2.75 per cent. of alcohol.

The answer, continuing, contends that the Federal Court is without jurisdiction to grant the relief sought, and that the facts set forth in the complaint are not sufficient to create a cause for action. One of the reasons stated in the complaint, as furnishing legitimate cause for the suit, was that the war was over and that President Wilson had declared it to have come to an end when the armistice was approved by Congress on Nov. 21, 1918. It was alleged by the complainant that the law objected to was therefore unnecessary, as it had ceased to be a war measure.

In reply the answer states that the war still continues, that there has been no exchange of ratifications of any peace treaty, and that demobilization of troops has not yet been terminated. Therefore, it is pointed out, the statement in the complaint that the war was over, was unfounded and impertinent, and that the complaint should not be permitted to stand. Then the answer seeks to explain the precise attitude of the courts concerning the situation. It says:

"The Court judicially knows that a state of war which existed between the United States and Germany on Aug. 10, 1917, has not ceased, and that the President of the United States has not ascertained or proclaimed the fact or date of such termination, and that the war which existed on Nov. 21, 1918, has not been concluded, and that demobilization has not terminated, nor has the President determined or proclaimed the date of the conclusion of the war or of the termination of demobilization."

It is contended that statements in the complaint at variance with these facts should be stricken out and dismissed as "insufficient, irrelevant and impertinent." District Attorney Caffey and William C. Fitts, special assistant to Attorney General Palmer, filed separate papers in a motion to dismiss the complaint, and Mr. Caffey asks that he be relieved from further action in the suit.

CHALONER SUIT GOES OVER.

Postponed to Allow Document to be Procured from Another State.

The trial of the $100,000 libel suit brought against The New York Evening Post by John Armstrong Chaloner was postponed yesterday by Federal Judge Dietrich until Friday to permit George M. Curtis, Chaloner's counsel, to obtain from North Carolina, where Chaloner was living at the time of the alleged libel, a copy of a decree declaring Chaloner to be sane so far as the jurisdiction of that State was concerned.

When the case was called yesterday William M. Wherry, counsel for the defendant, raised the question of jurisdiction, but Mr. Curtis contended that as long as Chaloner was sane in some State in the United States he was competent to sue in the Federal courts. Mr. Curtis was sustained by the court.

During the proceedings, Thomas T. Sherman, the committee of Chaloner's property in this State, came to court and for the first time saw the man whose claims for larger allowances he has contested. He talked with Chaloner for a few minutes.

TAXICAB STRIKE IS SETTLED.

The strike of more than 900 chauffeurs of the Black and White and Town Taxicab Company ended yesterday through the mediation of the State Board of Arbitration and Mediation, and at the offices of the company it was said that the taxicab service would be resumed either today or tomorrow.

The drivers of the Town Taxicab division of the company voted to return to work at a meeting held on Monday, but decided to await a ratification of their position by the Black and White division drivers who voted yesterday.

A league of employes to take the place of the old organization will be formed by W. Bundy Cole, President of the company. The drivers accept the new organization.

Sea Endangers Lighthouse.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., April 8.—The lighthouse at Barnegat is endangered by the encroaching ocean, and the Government has been requested to safeguard the structure, it was announced today by the Superintendent of Coast Guards. The ocean has cut away the shore 250 yards in two years, and is now about 50 feet from the lighthouse and a number of residences. Engineers say that, unless breakwaters are built before the next heavy storm, great damage will be done.

Minnesota Pine Trees for France.

ST. PAUL, April 8.—Several million young pine trees will be sent by Minnesota to the devastated regions of France, it was announced today. Minnesota forestry officials recently offered the trees to the French Government. Acceptance of the gift was reported to Governor Burnquist today by the War Department at Washington.

Are your clothes stylish?

THEY ought to be; it doesn't cost any more to have them that way. The question is—what is style? You can't put it into words—neither can we; but we can put it into clothes. You'll see it in the general "air;" in the lines; in the turn of a lapel; in the slant of a pocket.

We know how to create style for the man of 20 and the man of 50; we know how to make clothes that stay stylish—all wool; careful tailoring. We guarantee satisfaction—or money back.
